Predicts Difficulty Explaining Bolts

Barkley Says Congress Yet Will Pass New Deal Laws.

By Robert C. Albright.

Postmaster General James A. Farley and Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley yesterday hooted Republican claims that the President is slipping politically, and declared Democratic leadership remains intact.

Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said "people of the United States are for Mr. Roosevelt's program whatever it is." The President is as popular today as he was in 1936, Farley added.

He repeated that there would be no Administration reprisals against court-plan opponents. But, he said, their return to office is in the hands of the voters in their States, and "Senators and Representatives who opposed the Roosevelt program are going to have a lot of difficulty in explaining their action."

Barkley Issues Statement.

Shortly before sailing for Paris to attend the assembly of the Interparliamentary Union, Barkley denied a "breakdown in the President's leadership." Barkley said in a statement, the Democratic Party has "hurled back attempts to divide or weaken it," and forecast enactment next session of major Roosevelt proposals passed over by the Congress just adjourned.

"The pledges of a single campaign cannot all be fulfilled in one session of Congress," Barkley explained.

Farley's press conference and Barkley's statement followed a conference here Monday of John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Republican officials from 14 States. Hamilton said the President was "slipping plenty" and predicted substantial gains in the next election.

The Postmaster General genially answered questions for half an hour, "on" and "off" the record. On only one was he silent—did he plan to resign in the near future to take a job in private life?

Farley was asked if he shared the radio views of Senator Joseph F. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who called for the political scalps of Democratic court plan opponents.

"Every member of the United States Senate has a right to express himself on any subject he sees fit," said the national chairman.

"It isn't for me to criticize or say kind things about them."

"No Control of Voters."

He was asked if there would be "no reprisals."

"I hold that, of course," Farley said. "Insofar as the Administration is concerned, I can say there will not be. But we have no control of the voters of any State to approve or disapprove of what the Legislature has done."

Then he added "Very frankly, you are not going to get anywhere in politics by trying to get even."

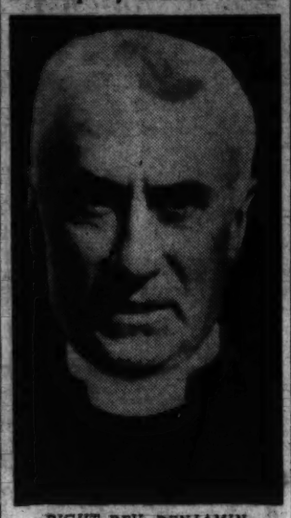

"Will the Democratic court plan opponents who come up for re-election receive aid from the Democratic National Committee?" he was asked.

"The committee never aids in the primaries," Farley replied. "But every Democrat nominated will have the hearty support of the committee."

Asked whether he thought Guffey

Court Battle Will Continue, Roosevelt Says

Signs Reform Bill But Points Out Seven Faults of Omission.

(Text—Page 7.)

President Roosevelt gave notice to the Nation yesterday that his fight to reorganize the judiciary will go on.

He signed a bill reforming lower-court procedure—the fragment of his court-reorganization program which passed the rebellious Congress—but pointed out seven faults of omission in the measure.

He said the bill "registers a moderate and limited advance into a field which calls for further and more complete exploration."

"7 Points Necessary."

The seven objectives the bill left untouched, which the President said "are of a necessity a part of any complete and rounded plan for reform of judicial processes," were:

Relief by "any method" of "the burden now imposed on the Supreme Court;" a "flow of new blood to the Federal benches;" tackling of "the problem of aged and infirm judges who fail to take advantage of the opportunity accorded them to retire or resign on full pay;" provision for an increase in lower court personnel; provision of effective means for assignment of district judges to pressure areas; establishment of "flexible machinery, with methods of administration readily adaptable to needs as they arise;" relief for "the crowded condition of the dockets in our lower courts."

Four of these objectives of the President were severely criticized in the Senate uprising which buried not only the President's original bill seeking a six-justice increase in the Supreme Court, but the Hatch-Logan compromise, which would have allowed appointment of not

Police Kill 17 Strikers Besieging Prison to Release Friends.

56 Slain in 10 Days in Fight for Democracy and New Elections.

By the United Press

Warsaw, Aug. 25.—Twenty persons were killed and 30 wounded today, according to provincial reports, in rioting between police and farmers in the climax of a 10-day farm strike against government decrees.

It was reported that 56 persons, mostly farmers, had been killed and scores injured during disorders of the last 10 days.

The government announced that the agricultural strike had succeeded in choking off city food supplies "through terrorist actions which, in several sub-districts, led to sanguinary encounters with police."

The government insisted, however, that order had been reestablished.

200 Under Arrest.

It was estimated that more than 200 persons were under arrest, some removed to the government's concentration camp at Bereza.

Farmers' organizations tonight distributed leaflets formally ending the strike, calling it "a complete success."

Today's worst disorders were reported in the east Galician town of Munin where police fired on farmers besieging the town's prison. Seventeen were reported killed.

Sympathy Strike Called.

Simultaneously Socialists in the Cracow, Tarnow and Kielce industrial districts ordered a 24-hour general strike in sympathy with the farmers, who demanded release of several comrades from the Munin prison.

Two farmers were reported killed fighting police at Brzecko, West Galicia. Another was killed when police charged farmers picketing the Cracow city gates.

The peasants have demanded new elections, more "democracy," amnesty for exiled political leaders and a foreign policy more friendly to France.

The disorders began shortly after Vincent Witos, leader of the Peasant Party, was exiled. The nation-wide farmers' strike was called primarily as a protest against the government decree exiling Witos.

Seventeen peasants were killed last Saturday in clashes with police and soldiers.

Low Temperatures And Rain Forecast Again for Capital

Extra blankets and umbrellas are still in order because Washington's August dish of drizzle and chill will be on the menu again today, according to the weather man.

Cloudy skies with occasional rain today and the low temperatures which evoked an order to police to wear their warm jackets were predicted.

Yesterday, the mercury half-heartedly climbed to 70 at 4 p. m., from a low of 64 in the early morning.

The solid deluge caused no appreciable rise in the Potomac. No roads were reported closed.

Meanwhile, warnings were issued to vessels north of the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico of a tropical disturbance about 80 miles north of San Juan, moving west northwestward about 12 miles an hour. Until the squall further takes shape, forecasters said, it will be impossible to predict whether it will sweep inland.

Japanese Commander Killed By Northern Chinese Snipers

Nipponese Pincers Close on Shanghai

(Pictures—Pages 14, 18, 28.)

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Thursday), Aug. 26.—The Domei (Japanese) News Agency reported today Maj. Gen. Shigeo Fujii, commander in chief of the combined Japanese and Manchukuo armies north of the Great Wall, had been killed in action by Chinese snipers while on a scouting mission on the northeastern border of China.

Shanghai (Thursday), Aug. 26.—Japan struck crushing, vital blows ashore and at sea today that spread the undeclared war virtually to all China and imperiled her main defenses.

Japanese reinforcements of unknown strength swarmed ashore north and east of Shanghai, despite terrific cost exacted by the Chinese, and were pressing in on the city from two directions.

The Japanese high command claimed that eight divisions of the Chinese central government had been smashed, the United Press reported. A spokesman claimed the Nanking 84th, 89th and 198th Divisions and two divisions of Gen. Fu Tso-yi's Suiyuan provincial army were caught in a double drive by Japanese from Peiping and Manchukuo into Chahar, and crushed in fighting around Hwailai. Three Chinese divisions allegedly were smashed at Shanghai. They were the 87th, 88th and 50th Nanking units.—Editor's note.]

Coast Blockaded.

Landing of the troops in a wide area of the Woosung promontory and from the lower Yangtze River put Shanghai's defenders between the blades of a pincers.

The effects of these reinforcements, military observers said, made it certain the war had reached a critical stage here, that Japan was pressing the situation with all her strength and that decisive developments were impending.

Even more telling pressure in the long run, they declared, would be felt from the blockade which Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commander in chief of the Japanese third fleet, established south along the Chinese coast from the mouth of the Yangtze.

Foreign vessels were exempted.

Although no state of war has been declared between China and Japan, the theater affected now has been spread down almost the entire Chinese map.

The southern half, which had escaped at least the direct effects of the struggle until now, became a war zone because of the Japanese naval patrol extending through the straits between Formosa and the South China mainland.

The blockade paralyzed Chinese

Copeland Blasts C. I. O., Warns N. Y. Democrats

Party Must Support Him or 'Starve,' Announces Would-Be Mayor.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 25.—Tammany's mayoralty candidate, Senator Royal S. Copeland, denounced the C. I. O. yesterday as a "rabble-rousing, blustering, impudent and lawbreaking" organization, and announced to the Democrats of New York City that "whether they like it or not they must swallow the Copeland ticket or suffer party starvation."

Copeland is the choice of the anti-Roosevelt wing of the vast Manhattan Democratic organization—an organization torn now internally with factionalism over the New Deal.

His expressions in a statement similar to, if not cued by, the tone of an earlier manifesto of a Republican faction supporting him, accented a picture of himself as not merely a Democratic candidate, but a frankly conservative "right hope" for all parties.

Copeland attacked John L. Lewis personally, saying:

"No self-respecting citizen can applaud the violence and insistence of the C. I. O. leader. If I had to depend for election on the votes of the Lewis crowd, I would rather go down in defeat than to accept them."

The Senator added, "I'm for William Green and his unions 1,000 per cent."

Franco Sweeps Into Santander, Capturing Tanks, 35,000 Men

Loyalists Scatter in Panic, Their Army of 60,000 Cut to 18,000; Rebel Veterans Now Free to Storm Madrid.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Santander, Spain, Aug. 25.—Rebel legions tonight poured into Santander while their sympathizers seized control of the ancient seaport after bloody street fighting and snared 35,000 loyalist prisoners. Many were reported dead.

All resistance to the smashing drive of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's 60,000 skilled troops—giving Franco possession of 32 of Spain's 47 provincial capitals—was wiped out by the internal uprising. Franco's officers expected to be in complete control before dawn.

The revolt of civilian sympathizers in the crowded city—its normal population of 72,500 swelled to nearly 175,000 by war refugees—was swift and merciless.

While the rebel sympathizers fought in the streets, Franco's advance units were at Astillero, 3 miles south.

The revolt was led by the Guardia Civil and Rightists, who had remained under cover during the two weeks of siege, fearful of being executed by the Loyalists.

The rebel radio station Espana said the first of Franco's brigades entered the city at 5:30 p. m.

It was reported that the government defenders, scattering in panic, abandoned their lines along the entire mountain front and the coastline.

The capture of Santander will release the cream of Franco's forces to attack Madrid.

Woman Is Found Chained by Neck On Tenant Farm

By the Associated Press.

Clarksdale, Miss., Aug. 25.—Cotton Planter J. S. Decker was under $1,500 bond today upon charges that a colored woman sharecropper was chained on his farm and her husband threatened with chains to insure payment of a $175 debt.

Department of Justice agents investigated the peonage story of the woman, Ethel L. Wiggins, and her mate, J. W. Wiggins.

"I went to the Decker place and in a sharecropper cabin I found the woman chained to a bed with a trace chain," Sheriff Dogan said. "The chain was locked around her neck. She had been there several days. She had been fed well and other than being chained, apparently had not been harmed.

England Joins U. S. in Plea to End China War

By the United Press.

London, Aug. 25.—Great Britain, alarmed by the threat to her enormous interests in Shanghai, tonight joined the United States in a formal appeal for an immediate end to the Sino-Japanese warfare.

The appeal, announced in a communique after day-long emergency consultation of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and cabinet leaders, said:

"The British government shares the anxieties of the United States Government regarding the damage to the Far East in general from the present fighting, and welcomes the appeal made by the United States Secretary of State for both sides to cease their hostilities.

"The ministers observe with satisfaction the close collaboration maintained with other governments, especially the American and French. They regard it as most important that such collaboration should continue."

The communique said the ministers reaffirmed that all practical measures would be taken to protect British lives and property in Shanghai, but asserted:

"There is no truth to the report that the British government is contemplating a policy of evacuation. The British government proposes to persist in efforts to secure the exclusion of Shanghai from the area of hostilities."

Maritime Board's $3,200 Pay for Inspectors May Rob Navigation Bureau of $2,900 Men

By Sidney Olson.

Reason: $300 more pay and a lot less work.

Yesterday, all over the country, Civil Service posters went up advising one and all that the Maritime Commission is ready to hire qualified inspectors at $3,200 per year.

Bureau of Navigation inspectors draw only $2,900. Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper has been foiled at every turn, including three times in the past session of Congress, in his efforts to get more pay for his 300 inspectors, many of whom have worked for $2,900 a year for as long as 20 years.

Terming the commission's action a "personnel raid," Navigation Bureau chieftains laid a memo on the Secretary's desk yesterday expressing concern, discouragement and the aforementioned sea-blue funk.

They see no hope of keeping their skilled men, they said.

For one thing, the Navigation Bureau is ultimately responsible for all American shipping—some 7,000 vessels strong.

The commission, they said, is responsible merely for the 10 per cent or less of the Government-subsidized merchant marine. Even after the commission's inspectors have approved a vessel as seaworthy, the ship cannot leave port until bureau inspectors check it more rigorously and approve.

Maritime inspectors primarily look to see if the Government's interest in a boat is preserved properly. But Navigation inspectors, their job further complicated by the new safety-at-sea act, stand responsible for the safety of nearly every American ship afloat—inland, coastal and ocean.

Yesterday the bureau's assistant director, Capt. Halert C. Shepheard, and Administrative Assistant James E. Davidson were definitely viewing with alarm.

The thing they can't understand is why the Maritime Commission needs nearly as many inspectors for its 10 per cent of the merchant fleet as the Navigation Bureau needs for the full 100 per cent.

First Big Firm Bows to Act to Curb Utilities

$384,000,000 American Water & Electric Offers Simplified Setup.

By the Associated Press.

The American Water Works & Electric Co. moved yesterday to simplify its set-up, the first big holding concern to bow to a section of the 1935 utility holding company act which empowers the Securities Commission to force utility companies to integrate their systems geographically, economically and financially.

Without waiting for the section to become effective January 1, or constitutionality of the act to be determined, the $384,000,000 system filed a voluntary reorganization.

Would Remove One Firm.

The plan would eliminate a $75,000,000 sub-holding company—the West Penn Electric Co.—merge other companies, and in at least one case cut from three to one the number of intermediate companies between the parent holding company and an operating utility. The system operates in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Marvland and Virginia.

American Water Works asked the commission to rule that its plan will satisfy the law. Observers anticipated early approval, after learning commission experts worked with the company in formulating the proposal.

A hearing on the plan will be held September 18.

Commission circles were highly pleased by the company's action. They recalled American Water Works was one of the many utilities which challenged the act in the courts before the industry and the Government got together on a single test case, now pending before the Supreme Court. The test case involves the Electric Bond & Share System and was won by the Government in the lower courts.

New Capital Wanted.

Subsidiaries of the three larger American companies under the plan would be:

West Penn Power Co.—Beech Bottom Power Co., Potomac Transmission Co., West Virginia Power & Transmission Co. and six non-utilities.

Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co.—Marietta Electric Co., State Line Gas Co., West Maryland Power Co., Monterey Utilities Corporation, West Virginia Public Service Co. and three non-utilities.

Potomac Edison Co.—Northern Virginia Power Co., Potomac Light & Power Co., South Penn Power Co., Franklin Transmission Co. and three non-utilities.

To finance the estimated $51,000,000 capital required in connection with the reorganization, American Water Works proposed to sell $40,000,000 worth of its bonds and $7,000,000 of common stock to the public.

Neutrality Called Harmful to China

By the Associated Press.

Raymond Leslie Buell, president of the Foreign Policy Association, declared last night invocation of the neutrality act would intensify the conflict in China.

Urging a "restrained" course for the United States, Buell said application of the neutrality law would handicap China, but not Japan.

"Should President Roosevelt proclaim that war exists, Japan would be encouraged to declare war and establish a naval blockade of the Chinese coasts, thus striking a severe blow at Nanking," Buell said.

Politics and People

Farley May Be Too Optimistic in Observation People Support Roosevelt, Right or Wrong.

By Franklyn Waltman

JAMES A. FARLEY, speaking as chairman of the Democratic National Committee—rather than as Postmaster General—yesterday declared that despite the setbacks President Roosevelt has suffered this year, he remains as popular as he was in 1936. Mr. Farley is probably correct in making that observation.

WALTMAN

But there is great doubt whether genial Jim was any more correct in a subsequent observation than he was when he predicted that the President's original Supreme Court plan would be enacted by Congress. He added to his utterance about Mr. Roosevelt's popularity this observation:

"The people of the United States generally are for President Roosevelt's program, whatever it is. They believe what he has done in the past justifies whatever he does in the future."

* * * *

I do not believe that is an accurate observation. I believe if it were an accurate observation, it would constitute a damnable indictment of the American people. I believe that because I have faith in the intelligence and the discrimination of the American people and because I have a deep, abiding faith in the future of American democracy. If the Farley observation were accurate, it would mean the American people had ceased to be self-governing, but had abdicated their sovereign rights in favor of a dictator, albeit a benevolent one.

I have no desire to reflect on the veracity of Jim Farley. Indeed, in almost five years' association with him I have found him to be one of the most honest, truthful men in politics. Without doubt he has talked with a large number of Democrats who have told him that they care not for the merits of any question, but are for President Roosevelt whatever he does.

But that is the frame of mind of the professional party man. It is the type of mind evidenced last week by Senator Joseph F. Guffey when he asserted "there is no greater mistake in public life than for a man to be disloyal to those who helped bring success to his career" and added that "I was elected to the United States Senate in 1934 because I assured the voters of Pennsylvania that it was my intention to support loyally and without wavering the program of the Chief Executive."

Aside from party workers, there are not many Americans who would give Mr. Roosevelt carte blanche to do as he pleased. Without doubt, a majority of the people of this country still applaud Mr. Roosevelt personally and his program in general. They are convinced he made a heroic and gallant fight during the depression years to bring back recovery and to assist the economically under-privileged man.

But this is a far cry from saying that because of what he has done they would support him in whatever he might desire to do. All available records indicate they did not support him in his effort to pack the Supreme Court. The predominant attitude of the last two months on Capitol Hill indicated little enthusiasm there for a continuation of economic experimentation and a centralization of power in the President. And let it be remembered that the members of Congress keep in as close touch with their people as Jim Farley or anyone else—and they do not recklessly stick their necks into nooses.

Much is said in New Deal quarters about the difficulty those Democrats who opposed the President will have with their constituencies. But as far as one can observe none showed any fear about going home. Indeed, it is probable that a majority of these constituents are for President Roosevelt, but want him kept in check. At all events, there is no sense in electing a Congress merely to rubber-stamp the President.

Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd of Virginia have been, perhaps, the sharpest, if not also the most effective, critics the President has on Capitol Hill. Do the people of Virginia resent their activities? Not so one would notice. Aside from the governorship fight, in which his organization kept hands-off, the Byrd faction came off victorious in the recent Democratic primary fight in that State.

More to the point, however, was the victory of the Byrd-supported candidate for Congress from the Richmond district, Dave E. Satterfield. And, let it be noted well that Mr. Satterfield openly declared against the court packing plan, whereas his opponent, Gordon Ambler, originally declared in favor of it but subsequently ran for cover, pleading that the shift in the Supreme Court's decisions and Justice Willis Van Devanter's retirement made such action unnecessary.

* * * *

The fact that Mr. Farley believes the President's popularity gives him a mandate to do "whatever" he wishes, is significant of the frame of mind of those who control the New Deal. Mr. Roosevelt on various occasions has indicated he holds the same belief. He frequently has told his press conferences that the people demand some scheme he has put forward. It is a sort of messianic complex.

This state of mind explains much. It explains, for instance, the perseverence of the President in adhering to his Supreme Court packing scheme. Despite all the factual and statistical proof piled up last winter and spring to demonstrate that the Supreme Court is not overburdened, does not need help of additional judges and that if additional judges were placed on that tribunal it would probably slow down the work of the Court, Mr. Roosevelt yesterday criticized the judicial procedural reform bill because "it leaves entirely untouched any method of relieving the burden now imposed on the Supreme Court."

* * * *

Former Senator "Tawm" Heflin called at the White House yesterday to tell the President, so he said, that he was a candidate for the Senate from Alabama and that he was hot for the New Deal. Why shouldn't he be hot for the New Deal, having lived off it for the last four years? His latest post has been as a special attorney in the Justice Department at $6,000. All the $6,000 lads in the New Deal are for it.

Cuba Senators, In D. C., Praise U. S. Relations

By the Associated Press.

Cuban Senators Guillermo Alonso Pujol and Luis F. Cainas Milanes praised yesterday relations between Cuba and the United States and supported the "democratic" program incorporated in Col. Fulgencio Batista's "three-year plan."

The two senators are visiting here for a few days. Alonso Pujol, secretary of the Cuban Senate and a guest of Ambassador Martinez Fraga said:

"My stay in Washington is to allow me the pleasure of spending a few days wtih my good friend the Cuban Ambassador. However, when I am asked about political and economic conditions in my country I must say they are evidently progressive.

"The democratic institutions fully guarantee all civil rights and the people will exercise, with liberty, the vote to elect their legislative delegates in the near future. The opposition parties are developing with protection of the laws and use freely normal means of propaganda and action in the Congress, the press and before the tribunals.

Three-Year Plan Described.

"I believe that by the end of September the new electoral law inspired by precepts of the old Crowder code, will be promulgated.

"The three-year plan is a brilliant conception of the head of the revolution, Col. Batista, and its principles are similar to those of the New Deal which deserves such applause from the people of North America. A law co-ordinating the sugar industry, protecting the small planter, and the Cuban worker will be enacted immediately, and laws on welfare, recuperation of state lands, development of possible petroleum wealth and others will not be long delayed.

"The economic relations between Cuba and the United States, I realize, continually acquire better prospects. The trade balance of the last six months is a good proof of this, and in every way the co-operation between the two friendly peoples is positively efficient.

Fraga's Work Praised.

"In my brief stay in Washington, I have observed the excellent work which our Ambassador, Martinez Fraga, is accomplishing toward that co-operation, and as a friend and countryman of his, I naturally feel proud."

Cainas Milanes said, "My trip to Washington is to visit this great country to which Cuba owes so much in every way.

"Although I dislike to discuss the internal policy of my country away from it, I am fully satisfied with the manner in which the plan of government conceived and directed by the chief of the revolution, Col. Batista is developing, as it will abound in positive benefit for all Cubans."

Cainas Milanes is chief of the Liberal Party in Oriente Province.

Mt. Rainier Officer Acts to Withdraw His Resignation

Bernard W. Hysan, Mount Rainier (Md.) policeman, who resigned a month ago after a controversy with Mayor Norman H. Pruitt over an alleged request to "fix" a traffic ticket, withdrew his resignation at a meeting of the mayor and city council last night.

The city council also initiated plans for making policemen answerable to their chief alone. Their position heretofore has been undefined.

Hysan's action was taken on the advice of Corporation Counsel Bird H. Dolby, who ruled the resignation was not effective because it had not been passed on by the mayor and city council.

Lottery Operator Slain at Own Door

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 25 (AP).—Ten shots from an assassin's gun early today killed Mike Russell, 42, known as a numbers lottery operator, as he stepped from his car in front of his home. He died in the arms of his pretty 32-year-old wife, Elsie, who from their upstairs apartment heard the shots.

McNutt to Be Democrat Choice For President, Minton Predicts

Little Chance of Third Term for Roosevelt, He Believes; Lauds Commissioner's Ability; Van Nuys Joins Praise.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Minton (Democrat), Indiana, predicted yesterday Paul V. McNutt, American High Commissioner to the Philippines, will be nominated by the Democrats in 1940 to succeed President Roosevelt.

The Indiana Senator, a New Deal stalwart who is close to both the President and McNutt, said he did not believe Mr. Roosevelt would run for a third term.

"He's a natural," Minton said of McNutt. "He gave Indiana the best administration Indiana ever had. He put more legislation on the books of Indiana for labor and the farmer than anybody ever did in the history of the State, and he demonstrated his executive ability.

"He has acquaintances all over the United States. There isn't a cross road that doesn't have someone that knows him.

Has New Deal Views.

"He's a great campaigner, too. There isn't a better one in the country.

"His views are substantially the views of the New Deal."

Minton's prediction regarding McNutt was seconded by Senator Van Nuys, Indiana's senior Senator. The latter said at Indianapolis he, like Minton, was convinced President Roosevelt would not be a candidate for a third term.

"Paul McNutt would make an ideal candidate and an ideal President," Van Nuys said, adding, "and I would be glad to 'go right down the line' with him in 1940."

Lewis Doubts Third Term.

In New York, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, said he did not believe President Roosevelt was "interested" in a third term.

"Bear in mind, however," he said, "that there are no political parties today. There are just committees of organization. If matters remain as they are now, with general prosperity and business encouraged, and Roosevelt wanted the nomination, I believe the Democratic Party would give it to him. He would be elected by the people at large, however, rather than by the Democratic Party.

"Opposition to the third term for a President has grown in sentiment, but if you study history you'll learn that Washington and Jefferson opposed it for personal reasons and freely conceded there might be a time when some group would unite and want to return a President to office for a third term."

Treasury Hints Budget Change To Cut Deficit

Roosevelt May Revamp Estimates to Brighten Fiscal Outlook.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt may revamp his budget estimates for this fiscal year and show a brighter picture of Federal finances, Treasury officials said yesterday.

These authorities said two recent developments will tend to improve the Government's financial outlook. They are: Enactment of the Administration tax loophole bill and the "freezing" of a portion of departmental appropriations in reserve accounts.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was said, may ask the Budget Bureau to recast spending and revenue estimates of last April to take these factors into account.

The April budget, which was itself a revision of original estimates in January, forecast a $418,000,000 deficit for this fiscal year, which started July 1. Authorities said any new revision in estimates probably would show a substantial reduction in this figure.

They said the tax loophole law, enacted after a prolonged Congressional study of alleged tax avoidance by wealthy persons, is expected to bolster revenues by $100,000,000 or more annually.

On the spending side of the ledger, departments already have set aside about $400,000,000 of this year's appropriations in reserve accounts. Funds can be released from these accounts only upon authorization by the Budget Bureau.

Officials said it is almost certain substantial amounts will have to be released from the $400,000,000 fund, but that some saving will be effected.

The dual influences of greater revenues and lower expenditures should bring a material cut in the projected $418,000,000 deficit, it was said. Thus far this fiscal period, the Treasury has run deeper into the red than a year ago.

Pay Plea Lost, Strike Possible On 86 Railways

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—A strike of 350,000 men who operate the Nation's trains was threatened today in the wake of the carriers' refusal to meet demands for a 20 per cent increase in wages.

Three weeks of conferences between a committee of 15 representing 86 major railroads and spokesmen for the five operating brotherhoods ended suddenly with the announcement by Chairman H. A. Enochs, of the management group, that the raise could not be granted because it would prove ruinous.

The unionists then issued a formal statement setting forth:

"This leaves no alternative for these organizations other than to set the day and hour for the men to strike."

A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, pointed out, however, that the Government could forestall a walkout.

"Under the railway labor act the railroad mediation board could act if it desired," he said. "Upon failure of the board to get results, President Roosevelt could appoint a board to hold hearings and present its findings."

Intervention by such agencies would automatically postpone a strike for 30 days if one were called.

Hamburger Fans Warned to Look For Adulterants

Watch that hamburger before you bite!

Such was the advice yesterday of Health Officer George C. Ruhland, who disclosed that two persons had been prosecuted and fined recently for adding sodium sulphite to hamburgers to make them look red.

The chemical is added, Dr. Ruhland explained, to give the meat the appearance of having been freshly ground.

"Meats treated with sulphites may look and smell all right," he said, "yet at the same time they may undergo putrefaction and contain toxic substances."

4 Dutch Firms Sue Lackawanna Steel

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Another international lawsuit growing out of the 1933 gold clause abrogation was filed in Federal court today when four foreign corporations dealing in securities began an action to enforce payment in Dutch guilders of the principal and interest on Lackawanna Steel Co. bonds which they hold.

The plaintiffs are Anglo-Continental Trust Co., of the Netherlands; Hydropress Handels, A. G.; Mondiale Handels-Und Verwaltungs, A. G., and Anglo Continentele Treuhand, A. G., all of Liechtenstein.

Judge Robert P. Patterson, on Hoffman's motion, granted an order requiring the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., as trustee, to show cause on Wednesday why an injunction should not be issued.

Unrest in British Navy, 3 Officers Lose Posts

London, Aug. 25 (AP).—Disciplinary troubles aboard the battleship Warspite on June 30 were disclosed tonight with publication of findings by a naval court of inquiry, which recommended three officers be relieved of their posts. Nine seamen were ordered transferred to other warships and three discharged from the navy.

It was understood the inquiry concerned breach of discipline, involving a misunderstanding concerning week-end leave while the ship was at Portsmouth.

Blonde in Slaying Is Given Lie Test

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—Blond Grace Synder, the taciturn "glamour girl" who saw Herbert W. Lee shot to death in Grant Park Sunday, talked for a lie detector test tonight, and Police Lieut. Thomas F. Kelly said the instrument indicated she had answered falsely several questions about the crime.

Miss Snyder, who is 21, was Lee's companion on the fatal moonlight stroll. Authorities were working on a theory that Lee, alias Robert Francis Burns, was slain by vice racketeers because of his intention to marry Miss Snyder and take her away from her former life.

Deal to Assure Early Action on Crops Is Closed

Roosevelt Signs Priority Resolution Traded for Crop Loan.

President Roosevelt yesterday sealed a compact with Congress to give crop control legislation a green light next session, but kept silent on whether Congress will be called back this fall for that purpose.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said he regarded the resolution signed by the President as "almost a contract between the President and both houses," virtually assuring approval next session of his "ever normal granary" plan.

Wallace repeated his "hopes" for a special farm session. He has recommended to the President that Congress be called back. But embarking in New York for Europe, Senate Majority Leader Barkley said that if Congressional committees have the farm measure ready for the regular January session, Congress can act in time for 1938 planting.

Cotton Loan Promised.

Wallace said enactment of the program in the fall would give the AAA and State and county committees a "break," and assure application of the plan to 1938 crops.

In return for its agreement to expedite the farm measure, the President has promised Congress to make price-pegging loans on cotton. Wallace has recommended a 9-cent loan. Southern Senators want 10. The Agriculture Secretary said the Commodity Credit Corporation probably would reach a decision on loans late this week or early next. He said $130,000,000 in custom receipts will be available for subsidies, apart from the loan, to assure those farmers who cooperate in the next farm program, 12 cents a pound for their cotton.

A Bureau of Agricultural Economics wheat outlook report yesterday added fuel to demands for early action on the crop control plan passed over last session.

The bureau warned a 950,000,000-bushel wheat crop might result next year, with "materially lower prices," if "wheat growers respond to relatively high prices this year as they have in the past."

The bureau said that under ordinary conditions "there is little probability that they will reduce their acreage seeded for harvest in 1938 much below the 81,000,000 acres seeded for this year's crop—the largest acreage in the history of the country." August first reports indicated an 890,000,000-bushel production this year.

No Wheat Loan Planned.

Wallace said yesterday no wheat loan is contemplated this year, and no decision will be reached on a corn loan until the crop reaches the market this November.

President Roosevelt yesterday delayed signing the controversial sugar marketing bill, containing restrictions on Hawaii and Puerto Rico refined sugar importations.

A delegation comprising Senators Pope, of Idaho; Murray, of Montana, and Ellender, of Louisiana (Democrats), yesterday urged him to sign it, but received no assurances. In New York, Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter, of Hawaii, expressed hope that the President would not sign it.

Wallace said he considered the measure "somewhat less objectionable than it once was," and that "if" the President does not sign it, he thought sugar-producing districts might consider that a good reason to call Congress back into special session.

Wallace yesterday also defended his proposal for 9-cent, instead of 10-cent loans on cotton.

Teachers to Test Union Preference In Naming Officers

Madison, Wis., Aug. 25 (AP).—Old guard members of the American Federation of Teachers maneuvered today to prevent an open convention choice between the Committee for Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor, but the question of affiliation was scheduled for a test vote in an election tomorrow.

The federation is an A. F. of L. affiliate now.

A direct vote was sidetracked by the old guard proposing to poll the 25,000 federation members in a national referendum; then the nominations committee announced it had selected leaders of the rival factions as candidates in tomorrow's presidential election.

One nominee was Dr. Jerome Davis, of Yale University, now president, who has been outspoken in his praise of John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. The other was Charles B. Stillman, of Chicago, backing the A. F. of L.

Post Reporter's Testimony Helps Acquit Holzworth

John M. Holzworth, lawyer and big game hunter, yesterday was acquitted of charges of disorderly conduct and "displaying propaganda" following his trial before Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court. Fifty dollars collateral was restored to him.

The charges were preferred against Holzworth after his arrest on the Capitol steps August 6. He had gone there with Miss Ethelyn Chrane, who claimed a Public Health Service doctor, in making an experiment on her, had wrecked her health.

Three Capitol policemen testified yesterday Holzworth refused to cover up a placard, argued with them and fought them when he was placed under arrest. Two newspaper reporters—Miss Una Franklin, of the Herald, and Edward T. Folliard, of The Post—testified Holzworth covered up the placard when asked to do so. They testified further that he muttered, "Is this Russia?" but denied he resisted arrest.

Cummings to Push Weapon Bill Again

By the Associated Press

Attorney General Cummings said yesterday he would ask Congress again at its next session to enact legislation controlling ownership and sale of small firearms.

"In some respects small weapons are even a greater menace than machine guns," he said. "The situation is one of urgent necessity and must be brought under control."

The present national firearms act imposes a tax of $200 on every submachine gun and sawed-off shotgun sold. In addition, such weapons—other than those issued to law enforcement agencies—must be registered with the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Nations at Last Accept Nazi Bid To Party Parley

Diplomats Will Attend Nurnberg Congress, Dodge Speeches.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 25.—Elated Nazis learned today that Adolf Hitler finally has wooed the diplomats of other powers to Nurnberg, his September rostrum for national socialism.

Diplomats of the United States, Great Britain, France and most of the other important countries accepted, at long last, Hitler's invitations to the annual Nurnberg Nazi Party Congress, which will be held September 6 to 13.

In other years of Hitlerism power the invitations have been sidestepped. This time, however, Prentiss B. Gilbert, who, as American charge d'affaires, got the invitation direct in the absence in Washington of Ambassador William E. Dodd, accepted for one day. The British and French embassies likewise accepted on the understanding that the Nazis would not feel hurt if their envoys stayed only a little while and dodged most of the political speeches.

End of Rotary Forecast.

It has become German policy to tell the world each year at Nurnberg what Hitler's external and internal policies are to be for the next 12 months.

Meanwhile, "voluntary" dissolution of all 42 German rotary clubs was expected tonight to be voted September 4, as a result of Walter Buch's campaign against the organization.

Buch, chief justice of the Nazi party court, charged the rotary organization is anti-Nazi and its "essential principles" run counter to national socialism.

"Not Anti-Semitic."

Members said today Buch had "killed rotary in Germany." Meetings were called for September 4 to consider dissolution, but members said this act was a foregone conclusion.

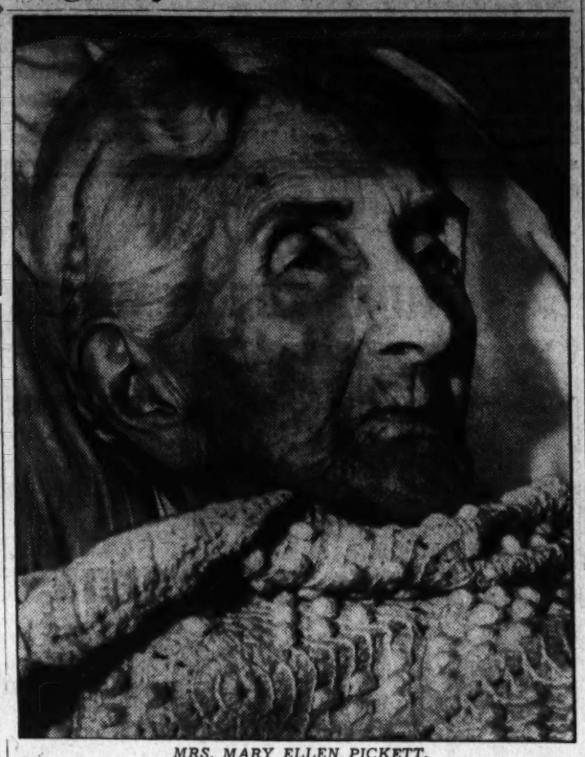

A principal Nazi criticism of the rotary organization was that the clubs are "not anti-Semitic." The official rotary yearbook shows 1,365 members in Germany.

Okla. State Senator Dies at Johns Hopkins

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (AP).—State Senator Knox L. Garvin, who was 46, became seriously ill about three months ago. He entered the hospital here on July 27.

MRS. MARY ELLEN PICKETT.

Napoleon had been dead only 18 years and Andrew Jackson was serving his second term as President when Mrs. Mary Ellen Pickett was born in Prince William County, Va. The year was 1839.

Today the 98-year-old woman is bedridden at the home of her son, W. O. Pickett, in Arlington County, Va., suffering from a sprained hip, the result of a fall six months ago.

The bed on which she lies is a rare antique, more than 200 years old. Canopied, with high posters, it was fashioned by Mrs. Pickett's grandfather, Thomas Ferrell, who was too old to serve at the front when Virginia and other colonies revolted against England in 1776.

The bed is much more than an antique in the eyes of the ailing woman, who now lies on it, praying. Looking down the length of it from her propped pillow, she is sometimes transported back to a glorious day in 1866. She was a belle of 27 then, charming in her crinoline, and glad that the boom of cannon had ceased the year before.

She stood at the foot of the ancient bed, George S. Pickett beside her, and there a clergyman pronounced them man and wife.

Mrs. Pickett, whose father was James Forsythe, attended the private school of M. Green near her childhood home in Prince William County. All her life she has been an omnivorous reader and has read the Bible from cover to cover several times.

Until her accident six months ago, she had enjoyed remarkable health considering her age. In fact, it was her very activity that was responsible for the accident. She was taking a walk at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Mountjoy, in Prince William County. Reaching the bottom of the stairs, she stumbled and the sprained hip was the result.

She has been in her 200-year-old bed ever since. The bed is of solid walnut. There are no slats or springs. Instead the heavy, comfortable mattress rests on a net of woven rope.

Graves, Chairman Split on Primary

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 25 (AP).—Gov. Bibb Graves today proposed election dates which would guarantee that his wife, Mrs. Dixie Bibb Graves, keep until February 4, at least, the United States Senate seat to which he appointed her when Hugo Black resigned to become a Supreme Court justice.

The Governor suggested January 4 for the primary, with the election a month later.

Democratic State Chairman John D. McQueen suggested November 9 and December 14. The Democratic nomination is tantamount to election.

The executive committee, which has power to select the nominee without a primary, will meet Saturday.

Boys Show Prank Which Derailed Passenger Train

Carlyle, Ill., Aug. 25 (AP).—John and Emmett Schaefer, 8 and 11 years old, showed their father and police today how they fastened a steel tie to the Baltimore & Ohio tracks August 8 "to see what would happen."

What happened was that a passenger train hit the plate at 60 miles an hour and its engine and tender plunged down a 20-foot embankment. Ten passenger cars were derailed, but no one was seriously injured.

King Would Abolish Tax Appeals Board

By the Associated Press.

Senator King (Democrat), Utah, said yesterday he would propose Congress abolish the Board of Tax Appeals, as one move toward simplification of the Nation's tax machinery.

The Senator asserted the board complicated tax machinery by voluminous and intricate opinions.

King would give internal revenue collectors career jobs under the merit system, with broad authority to interpret the law. Limited appeals would be permitted from their decisions.

French Wheat Up, Hikes Cost Of Living Again

Ministers Act to Boost Production, Cut Adverse Trade Balance.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 25.—The cost of living in France, already rising because of devaluation of the franc, was boosted again today when the government of Premier Camille Chautemps raised the price of wheat and bread.

The action was part of a series of decrees affecting the economic life of the nation promulgated at a meeting of the council of ministers on the advice of Finance Minister Georges Bonnet.

Tha program was designed to stimulate production and cut the nation's adverse trade balance.

August wheat will sell for 180 francs a quintal, about $1.95 a bushel, nearly 25 cents a bushel to about 8 cents for a 2-pound loaf.

The price of bread was increased more than last year.

The decree was intended to aid wheat producers.

Other decrees benefited debtors, industrialists and holders of government bonds.

Delay in the payments of debts was authorized for "debtors of good faith." Low interest rates on loans made to improve the equipment of industrial firms and for construction of buildings were provided.

The 10 per cent tax on interest on government bonds which had been paid by the holders was wiped out.

The council also provided for an investigation into all phases of French industry to determine what can be done to increase production.

No statement was made on a plan for modified nationalization of the country's railroads.

Heflin Tells President He Wants Black's Seat

By the Associated Press.

Former Senator "Tom" Heflin of Alabama said after a White House call yesterday he informed President Roosevelt of his candidacy for the seat vacated by Senator Hugo L. Black.

Janitor Faces Chair, Inquest Convinces State

Jury Hears Widow's Niece Testify, Views Stained Furnace-Shaker.

The State is satisfied it can send William (Major) McAfee to the electric chair for the murder of Mrs. Henrietta Anderson, regardless of any motive or extenuating reasons he gave in his confession, Assistant United States District Attorney Samuel Beach said yesterday.

Beach's declaration followed a quick finding by a coroner's jury that the colored janitor should be bound over to the grand jury. The inquest before Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald developed considerable new evidence and also indicated lines which the defense will follow.

Chief sensation at the inquest was the display of the alleged murder weapon, a 30-inch furnace-shaker weighing about 10 pounds, upon which could be seen several blue stains. These, the coroner's assistants explained, were blood spots which had been washed off with soap and water but later brought to light by the use of benzedine, acetic acid and peroxide.

Murder Weapon, Claim.

Sergt. John Dalglish, chief police witness, brandished the shaker before the jury and testified:

"I took the shaker to McAfee and he said it was the one he had brought up from the basement into her room. He said he had killed her with it."

Rebecca Roberta Lucas, adopted niece of Mrs. Anderson, a hat check girl at the Mayflower Hotel, told how she came home about 6 p. m. last Sunday and walked around the apartment some time before she knew her aunt was lying murdered nearby.

"I paused in the kitchen a while and called in to her 'Come on, get up.' I could see the lower part of her body on the couch. I thought she was asleep. I went in to see why she didn't answer me. I touched her on the shoulder and her arm rolled off the couch."

Miss Lucas, young brunette, told how she ran screaming for help and how three young men rushed back to the room with her and quickly called police. When police arrived two of the young men were in the basement trying to arouse the janitor, who was in a drunken stupor.

Plans 3-Way Defense.

Miss Lucas said she had seen the janitor around her aunt's apartment "once or twice." One of these occasions was Sunday morning when "Major" went out into the street and bought a half-pint of liquor for Mrs. Anderson, which he placed on the kitchen sinkboard, and left, she said.

Robert I. Miller, counsel for McAfee, said he had several important witnesses to bolster McAfee's case and much evidence for use at trial which he did not introduce at yesterday's inquest. It is known he expects to produce two witnesses who will say they saw Mrs. Anderson chasing McAfee with an icepick shortly before she was slain in her apartment at 1633 L street northwest.

Funeral Today.

McAfee will use a triple defense—that he was drunk when the crime was done and drunk when he confessed, that he was subjected to a "third-degree" in that he was questioned for 12 hours, and that he is not mentally responsible, his lawyer said.

Criminologist Dr. Richard Rosenberg, assistant coroner, revealed the District has built up a strong scientific case to support the confession. He and Dr. Chris Murphy after the inquest said they had found blood spattered on McAfee's pants, which they brought to light with chemicals.

Meanwhile Veterans Administrator Gen. Frank T. Hines appointed Mrs. Dorthy B. Harper, president of the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion Auxiliary, as special representative to handle funeral arrangements for Mrs. Anderson.

Services will be at 12:30 p. m. today at Chambers undertaking establishment, Fourteenth and Chapin streets, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

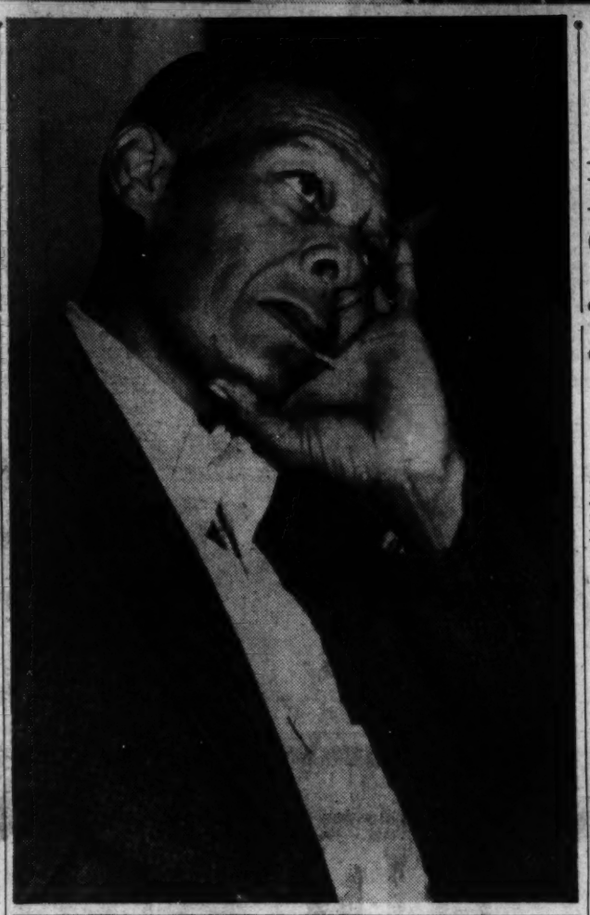

Pallbearers will be uniformed American Legionnaires, all employes of the Veterans Administration: Frank McCarthy, Robert Hertzer, Michael Lyons, Rodney A. Horton, H. E. Golden and John P. Lester.

Janitor Held After Inquest Into Murder of L Street Widow

Post Staff Photos.

Dr. Chris Murphy and Dr. Richard Rosenburg, deputy coroners, hold the furnace shaker used to kill Mrs. Henrietta Anderson in her rooming house bedroom Sunday afternoon. The shaker, dustless in the basement, led detectives to arrest Major McAfee (right), colored janitor, and charge him with the crime.

Roberta Lucas, attractive hat check girl who lived with Mrs. Anderson, told the coroner's jury yesterday how she found the body when she returned from work. McAfee, apparently unruffled, was held for the grand jury.

Inquiry Opens Today on U. S. Courts in D. C.

Rep. McLaughlin Heads Body to Recommend Bench Changes.

By the Associated Press.

Representative Hatton Sumners, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, yesterday designated Representative Charles F. McLaughlin, of Omaha, Nebr., chairman of a sub-committee to investigate operation of Government courts in the District of Columbia with a view to recommending legislation.

McLaughlin announced he will start an investigation today into the Court of Claims and later probably would make an inquiry into operation of the Court of Tax Appeals and Customs Claims.

The Nebraskan said he did not expect to inquire into the Washington City courts and would determine later whether his committee would examine the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

McLaughlin said he will remain in Washington about ten days to start the work and will return to Washington from Nebraska about November 1 to continue the inquiry.

Representatives U. S. Guyer (Republican), Kansas, and Walter Chandler (Democrat), Tennessee, are scheduled to work with McLaughlin.

"I plan to contact the Department of Justice first and make inquiry into the relationship between that department and the courts," McLaughlin said.

"I intend to investigate the scope of the Court of Claims activities, examining the character of cases handled, disposition of those for which authorizations have been made by Congress, the state of the docket, the proceedings of the court and how long various cases have been there."

Tricksters Palm CCC Enrollee's $18

The hand was quicker than the eye yesterday—so much quicker that Eddie F. Blair, colored, 29, of the CCC Camp at Twenty-eighth and M streets northeast, was out $18 after two unidentified colored men showed him a handkerchief trick.

Blair told police he met the pair in the 1200 block Seventh street northwest and went with them to a nearby restaurant for beer. One of the men persuaded Blair his money would be safer if tied in a handkerchief, and Blair agreed. Later when Blair opened the handkerchief the money was gone.

Victim of Holdup Visits Jail to See 'Mystery Golfer'

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP). Mrs. Kin Hanna and two of her three daughters, "curious" to see the debonair golfer who is accused of holding up their roadhouse at Jay, N. Y., seven years ago, visited the Essex County Jail today for a glimpse of mysterious John Montague.

Unknown to Montague, who was brought here from California Tuesday, the three watched as he was permitted to walk about the lawn.

Mrs. Hanna said her visit was not prompted by a hope that she might identify Montague as one of the four men who bound and gagged her husband, herself and her daughters during the $700 holdup in 1930.

Man, 69, Admits Slaying Step-Son With Baseball Bat

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Adolph Peterson calmly confessed that he bludgeoned his stepson to death with a baseball bat, Sergt. William Kells reported today.

"I've led a life of hell," the officer quoted the prisoner as commenting anent the motive for the slaying of the 38-year-old victim, Gerald Peterson.

The stepfather, 69, claimed his stepson cursed and kicked him more than a dozen times because his housekeeping chores proved unsatisfactory.

The body was found last night by Gerald's bride of a year, Mrs. Kathryn Peterson, 24, upon her return from a California visit.

Last Marchers Quit Flooded Jobless Camp

Officials Refuse Principal Demands, But Leaders of 2,100 Pleased.

Ankle-deep in mud and water after a three-day rain, the WPA job marchers' camp in West Potomac Park was virtually deserted last night as the last of an estimated 2,100 Workers' Alliance demonstrators started their long homeward trek.

A few stragglers remained to present State WPA problems to Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. No efforts have been made to remove nearly 100 waterlogged tents which were rented from a local sports concern.

By bus, truck and battered auto, the marchers departed after day-long rounds of farewells and handshaking. Leaders of the group beamed with satisfaction over what they described as "a series of real victories."

Although Administration spokesmen and officials repeatedly refused to grant the marchers' principal demands, the encampment disbanded with job seekers assured of a cnotinuing WPA program and a White House promise that there would be no more layoffs "without cause."

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, agreed with park authorities that the march was the most orderly of its kind since the famous "bonus march."

Police, however, notified State enforcement agencies that the marchers were en route home. A number of trucks and flag-bedecked cars were met at the District line by a detail of Maryland State Police.

Body Taken From Canal; Maritime Employe Was Despondent.

The body of Everett D. Kern, 40, was taken from the C. & O. Canal near Fort Hall and Canal roads yesterday afternoon by police of the Harbor precinct. A certificate of suicide by drowning was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Kern, who was a marine engineer with the Maritime Commission, left two notes. One was scribbled on the back of an envelope and left on the canal bank. It read, "Nobody is to blame for this but myself."

Kern was living with his mother during the summer while his wife and three children were in Norfolk.

He was in excellent health, but had been despondent for several weeks, his brother said.

In addition to his mother and wife, he is survived by three brothers, Willis F., Wells B., and Miles S. Kern. His children are: Catharine, 12; Dolores, 11, and Charles, 3.

He was born in Washington and had lived here all his life. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1919. His father, the late Charles E. Kern, was a well-known Washington lawyer and newspaperman.

The assailant, according to Levitin, was about 25, and fled on foot.

Maritime Chief Denies Priority To A. F. of L.

Kennedy Keeps Neutrality as Green Assails C. I. O. for Sit-Downs.

By the United Press.

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy of the United States Maritime Commission last night refused commission support to A. F. of L. seagoing unions in preference to those affiliated with the C. I. O.

William Green, A. F. of L. president, demanded the discrimination, charging that unions affiliated with the John L. Lewis committee "advocate and practice sit-down strikes." Kennedy replied that the commission...

Kennedy told Green, now attending the A. F. of L. executive council meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., that the commission would stand by the neutral policies laid down during its brief life under the 1936 maritime act.

Kennedy said he appreciated the fact that the federation was in "wholehearted accord" with the commission's efforts to avoid factionalism which might jeopardize America's position in the international marine world.

To "Remain Neutral."

"You charge that this commission," Kennedy said, "has assumed a neutral attitude toward all labor organizations. That charge is true. The commission is neutral and will remain neutral. . . .

"I am sure that you would be the first to protest any action by the commission calculated to 'support and encourage' any group other than your own."

Consolidation Planned.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 25 (AP).—Reorganization of East Coast waterfront union men still loyal to the A. F. of L. to combat the C. I. O. invasion was discussed behind the scenes today by American Federation of Labor leaders here for the executive council meeting.

They said privately consolidation of "loyal ranks" would have to precede any anti-Lewis campaign.

Some were of the opinion the International Longshoremen's Association, headed by Joseph Ryan, of New York, who arrived here this afternoon, should be the keystone of a united-front organization.

Poisoner to Die.

Marshall, Ark., Aug. 25 (AP).—A jury returned a verdict of death in the electric chair late today for Hollis Ray, 60, timber dealer, who pleaded guilty to the poisoning of his 51-year-old wife here several weeks ago.

Belzoni, Miss., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Hundreds of Mississippi Delta sharecroppers, freed from cotton-picking by heavy rains, jammed Humphreys County courtroom today as their neighbor, Henry E. Barnett, went on trial on charges of beating to death his 11-year-old son, Jordan.

Board Lops Off Own Pay.

Order Restored After Riots on Inaugua Isle

By the Associated Press.

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug. 25.—British authorities reached Great Inaugua Island today to deal with natives who ran amuck in an apparent race riot last week, forcing the commissioner and a group of Americans to flee to Cuba in an open boat.

The investigators found the government house, wireless station and other buildings burned and sacked, but the colored natives had settled back to their accustomed routine.

The Americans, including Josiah and Douglas Erickson, of Swampscott, Mass., who operate extensive salt works at Inaugua, and Commissioner Dudley Arthur, reached the coast of Cuba, 50 miles away, in a disabled motor launch after five days at sea without food or water. They had rigged a makeshift sail with their clothing.

(Advices from Cuba said rural police arrested them as suspected revolutionaries because of their large store of arms which included two tear gas guns and several rifles, shotguns and pistols, with ammunition. They were ordered to trial at Santiago on charges of unlawfully possessing war materials. The United States consul was reported to have demanded release of the Americans.

Racial feeling apparently caused the disturbances. Letters from Inaugua residents received before the outbreak indicated high tension over an arson case involving the son of a leading citizen. One man was slain in the rioting.

U.S. Pilots Back After Teaching Chinese to Fly

Fifteen United States Army Reserve aviators who served as instructors in the Chinese army have returned to the United States to avoid loss of citizenship, it was learned yesterday.

Secretary Hull said all Americans have been urged to leave China, but would neither confirm nor deny that the airmen had been asked to leave China.

War Department officials pointed out that contracts under which the officers were employed contained a clause permitting the aviators to leave the country in the event of war.

"The men are probably exercising the privilege contained in the contracts," an official said.

Gen. Malin Craig, Army chief of staff, said no orders had been issued to the Reserve officers to stop their activities.

War Department officials pointed out, however, that reservists remaining in China face loss of citizenship and commissions.

Spain's Fascists Called Peril to World Liberty

Disregard Popular Front, Help Loyalists, D. C. Speaker Urges.

"If the so-called civil war in Spain is not won by the loyalists, the aggressive Fascist movement in the world will come with such rapidity that we will find ourselves incapable of holding public meetings—even in this country."

This was the statement made last night by Dr. Eduard C. Lindeman, of the New York School of Social Work, in a talk before a meeting in the National Press Club auditorium, sponsored by the American Friends of Spanish Democracy.

"In this country of late, the genuineness of the Popular Front has been questioned," he said, "and this doubt is offered as a reason why Americans should not interest themselves in what is going on in Spain. The genuineness of the Popular Front is not the issue—Americans should not be misled by questions as to what kind of government will be set up by the loyalists, if they are successful. That is not our business. When victory comes, the Spanish government must decide for itself the form its government will take.

"We in America did not ask Lafayette what his social philosophy was when he came to aid us in our struggle for liberty—or what kind of government he would like to see erected in the United States. Likewise, this question as applied to Spain is not for us to ask, but for those who win this war."

Dr. Edward Barsky, organizer and head of the American hospitals in Spain, and Jay Allen, former war correspondent for the Chicago Tribune, also were speakers.

Mint Director Speaks at Coin Society Dinner

American Numismatic Association Has 25th Birthday.

More than 200 members of the American Numismatic Association celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the association with a banquet at the Hotel Washington last night.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint and former Governor of Wyoming, headed the list of after-dinner speakers, which included Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and Theodore T. Beloth, curator of history, Smithsonian Institution.

Thomas H. Chapman, of the Washington Numismatic Society, presided.

Earlier in the day Edward F. Feeley, adviser on coinage for the International Nickel Co., Inc., said the world's metallic currency was likely to be simplified.

"It is not unusual to find a score of coins comprising several different alloys in circulation in a given country when this same monetary work could well be done by four or five coins made of a single metal or alloy," he said.

The association will hold its final business meeting at 10 a. m. today, to elect national officers and choose a city for its convention next year.

Farley, Barkley Hold Roosevelt Strong as Ever

expressed the Administration's views?" Farley said "No, I don't. I think Joe's views were his own views."

The Postmaster General repeated that "Senators are voted for by the voters in their States, and it is up to those voters to determine whether they should come back."

He said not only court plan opponents, but those who opposed wages and hours, housing and other legislation would have difficult explanations to make to their constituents.

Farley said he had not "heard" of any court plan opponent being denied patronage because of his court views.

A reporter broached Republican claims and Hamilton's statement that the President has "slipped plenty," and Farley seized on the opening. He said it was "just as silly as other statements Mr. Hamilton has made."

"Mr. Hamilton made a lot of statements in the last campaign," he said. "I don't think the people who heard him election night are going to pay any attention to anything he says. Why, of course, they will make no gains. With all due respect to Mr. Hamilton, he doesn't know what's happening in this country. He hasn't been here all the time."

In All But Two States.

"I have been in every State except two in the past three months. There is no doubt in my mind that the President is just as popular as he was in 1936. If the election were held today, he would be elected by just as many States. All you have to do is go around the country, see how business is and crops are, and talk to businessmen and laborers who have benefited."

He said the people generally "believe what he has done in the past justifies what he may do in the future."

"I know that members of Congress who opposed the President were not representing the sentiment of their districts," he said. "The court fight never affected the President's popularity."

Farley was asked if he thought there would be a third party in the field in 1938 and he said there would be "no third party that would be effective."

He was asked if the Democrats would have the backing of John L. Lewis in 1940.

"I can't answer for Mr. Lewis," said Farley, "except the Administration's policies will be so effective that I would say we will have the same support from labor we had in 1936."

He said the Democratic committee still owes Lewis $50,000, but he thought the committee's total indebtedness to Lewis and others would be wiped out by next January. Questioned about the sale of Democratic campaign books, subject of Republican attack, he said the supply of 2,500 autographed copies was exhausted before the complaints started.

Then a reporter asked whether the President would run for a third term.

Ask the President.

"Ask the President what his views are," Farley retorted.

"Do you think he could get it if he wants it?"

"Don't be foolish," Farley replied.

Senator Barkley in his prepared statement charged "those who went down to inglorious defeat in 1936," are attempting to "divide or weaken" the Democratic Party, and declared "any party with enormous majorities such as those which were elected last year by the Democratic Party must expect this sort of attack."

The Kentucky majority leader said Republican Chairman Hamilton's forecast of Republican election gains in 1938 "is undoubtedly a great tribute to his well-known modesty."

Barkley eulogized accomplishments of the Congress just adjourned and predicted passage of farm adjustment and wages-and-hours legislation next session. He said the President's power and flood control development program will receive "careful study and consideration."

Barkley said recent Supreme Court decisions had set "milestones" on the "high road to accomplishment" and had removed "most of the barriers to the accomplishment of the New Deal program."

"Regardless of differences of opinion as to method and objective," he said, "regardless of the earnest controversy which the issue aroused, no one can deny that the objective of liberalizing the judicial interpretation of the Constitution has become obvious to every thinking American.

"press conference" in the Mayflower Hotel. A moment before reporters were admitted, she had been presented with the prize money by officials of the P. Lorillard Co.

The $5,000, said Mrs. Barlow, will go into annuities for her children, Joan, 16, and Lundie W., jr., 13. Early reports of the contest in The Washington Post, she added, prompted her to try her luck.

Yesterday's presentation ceremonies were apparently well rehearsed. Mrs. Barlow greeted interviewers with an Old Gold in her hand. The room was thick with smoke—everyone had a cigarette.

She had an answer for every question—what brand of cigarettes do you smoke? . . . What did you smoke before the contest? . . . what did you start smoking?—the answer was always "Old Gold."

No sooner did Mrs. Barlow finish one cigarette when a company representative stepped forward and lighted her another. She appeared a bit baffled, but continued to puff and finger the prize check.

It took her an average of three hours each to accurately complete the 270 puzzles, Mrs. Barlow said. Everyone in the family joined in to offer suggestions.

Because numerous contestants throughout the country—it was estimated 2,000,000 persons tried for prizes—submitted correct answers, Mrs. Barlow credited her success to a letter, or essay, on the contest which she inclosed. Contest rules required each person to write a 200 word letter.

"I have certainly learned a lot of things," smiled Mrs. Barlow in a pleasing Southern drawl. (She comes originally from Georgia.) "The contest was an education in itself."

Neither winners nor company officials were quite sure how much of each check the Government would claim in taxes. There was some dispute as to whether the money would be counted as a gift or additional income.

Staggs, the first prize winner, is a native of Vaiparaiso, Ind. He is the son of Lieut. Col. R. L. Staggs, of the Corps of Engineers, Chicago.

Second prize of $30,000 was won by Florence Zimmerman, Peoria, Ill. She is 35, a registered pharmacist and operates her father's drug store.

The $10,000 third prize went to R. J. Johnson, Seattle, Wash. He is an automobile accessory salesman and has four children.

The fourth prize of $10,000 was won by John E. Roberts, Philadelphia. He is an engineer.

"I had a lot of fun out of the contest, but, really, I didn't go into it for the money—I was just interested in it," Roberts told the United Press.

"Now I can realize a long-hoped-for ambition. "I'm going to sink the money in a Lancaster County farm which I've already practically picked out."

Text of Court Statement

"On the fifth day of February I brought to the attention of the Congress the necessity of a careful and thorough-going reformation of our judicial processes and submitted tentative plans outlining essential objectives.

"These objectives, recognized as desirable by most of our citizens, were predicated on the necessities of a great and growing Nation. Many of us have viewed with concern the widening chasm between the people on the one side and the courts and the bar on the other—a chasm recognized and deplored by many of our ablest and most enlightened judges and lawyers. It can hardly be doubted that our people are restive under the slow and uncertain processes of the law.

"I spoke, therefore, for an upbuilding process, not only to preserve the independence and integrity of the judiciary, but to reinforce it and strengthen it as an essential and honored part of our institutions.

"In effect, I spoke in behalf of the American people in their desire for increased respect for, and confidence in, speedy and fundamental justice as represented by the Federal courts.

"We have wanted to bring to an end a trying period during which it has seemed that a veritable conspiracy existed on the part of many of the most gifted members of the legal profession to take advantage of the technicalities of the law and the conservatism of the courts to render measures of social and economic reform sterile or abortive. Because representative government, in order to succeed, must act through the processes of law, it is necessary for it to attain a high degree of co-operation among its three co-ordinate branches.

"In the light of the above, therefore, let us examine H. R. 2260, which is a bill affectuating certain changes in judicial procedure. It contains meritorious provisions and registers a moderate and limited advance into a field which calls for further and more complete exploration.

"On the side of omission, it leaves entirely untouched any method of relieving the burden now imposed on the Supreme Court.

"It provides no increase in the personnel of the lower courts—an increase confessedly necessary.

"It provides no effective means of assigning district judges to pressure areas.

"It sets up no flexible machinery, with methods of Administration readily adaptable to needs as they arise.

"It leaves untouched the crowded condition of the dockets in our lower courts.

"It provides for no flow of new blood to any of the Federal benches.

"It does not touch the problem of aged and infirm judges who fail to take advantage of the opportunity accorded them to retire or resign on full pay.

"All of these are objectives which are of necessity a part of any complete and rounded plan for the reform of judicial processes.

"The bill, on the other hand, contains several provisions which are definitely a step in the right direction. It provides that the Attorney General shall be given notice of constitutional questions involved in private litigation and accords the Government the right to defend the constitutionality of the law of the land. No longer must the Government stand idly by, a helpless spectator, while acts of Congress are stricken down by the courts.

"It expedites appeals to the Supreme Court in such matters.

"It seeks to improve intolerable situations created by the reckless granting by the lower courts of injunctions to restrain Government officials in the operation of Federal statutes.

"It tends slightly to relax the rigid system within circuits of assigning district judges to congested areas.

"All of these provisions possess merit and are either a part of, or consistent with, the plans originally submitted to the Congress.

"Under this Administration the Department of Justice has made great advances in that portion of the field of judicial reform which relates to crime and criminals. It has sponsored improvements in the rules of practice and procedure in the lower courts. The bill moves in the same general direction of reform, and I have therefore given it my approval."

Court Battle Will Continue, Roosevelt Says

Signs Reform Bill But Points Out Seven Faults of Omission.

more than one additional justice a calendar year.

Most court bill opponents are out of town, and could not be reached for comment. Senator Hiram W. Johnson (Republican), California, said however, "I trust this is the dying wail of the court-packing plan."

Chairman Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and Senator Carl A. Hatch, of New Mexico, both Democrats, visited the White House yesterday to discuss with the President their plans for the study of further possible court changes. Both are members of a special committee investigating the subject.

Ashurst, asked if Supreme Court enlargement would be studied, said: "We are not afraid to touch or avoid any subject." Hatch said: "We will take up all proposals on any and all of the courts."

Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), Nebraska, an opposition leader, said yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Boston, "The bill signed yesterday was a step in the right direction, which the President's bill was not."

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, said the President's statement "is a continuation of the plan to change our judicial system. I had hoped, with defeat of the Administration's plan, that there would be no continuation of the controversy."

Statement Conciliatory.

The President's statement yesterday that "these objectives recognized as desirable by most of our citizens, were predicated on the necessities of a great and growing Nation," was taken as evidence he has not relaxed his determination to effect "thorough-going reformation of our judicial processes."

The tone of his statement yesterday was smooth and conciliatory, however, and on the whole a much milder document than the fiery speeches of last winter, when he urged the change "now!" on the ground of national crises brought about by judicial delay or obstruction of justice.

He recognized some merit in the bill he signed, noting it expedites appeals to the Supreme Court from lower-court decisions holding acts unconstitutional; that it allows the Attorney General to intervene in private litigation attacking laws as unconstitutional, and that it relaxes the "rigid system" in circuits of assigning judges to congested areas.

He noted further that "it seeks to improve intolerable situations created by the reckless granting by the lower courts of injunctions to restrain Government officials in the operation of Federal statutes."

The only paragraph in the page-and-one-half statement that contained the old-time ring of the President's attacks on judicial conservatism came when he said:

"We have wanted to bring to an end a trying period during which it has seemed that a veritable conspiracy existed on the part of many of the most gifted members of the legal profession to take advantage of the technicalities of the law and the conservatism of the courts to render measures of social and economic reform sterile or abortive."

A. F. of L. Chief Prepares to End W. Va. Charter

Green Seeks to 'Try' Head of State Group for Seating C.I.O. Men.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 25.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, prepared swift action tonight to revoke the West Virginia State federation's charter in retaliation for seating C. I. O. delegates at its convention.

The first step, he told reporters, would be for the A. F. of L. executive council to summon John B. Easton, president of the State federation, to appear for "trial" on charges of disobeying an order to keep C. I. O. delegates out of the convention. He said the council probably would issue this summons tomorrow. Then, Green said, the federation probably will revoke the State federation's charter, and take "whatever legal steps are necessary" to obtain the State federation's books, papers and other property.

These, he said, would be turned over to a reorganized State federation of loyal A. F. of L. unions.

The West Virginia federation voted this week at its Parkersburg convention to seat C. I. O. as well as A. F. of L. delegates.

An overwhelming portion of organized labor in the State belongs to the United Mine Workers, largest of the C. I. O. unions.

"It appears," Green said, "that the miners have turned a bona fide American Federation of Labor organization into a C. I. O. agency."

U. A. W. Boos Pickets.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—More than 1,000 members of the United Automobile Workers of America took time out from their second annual convention today to stage a noisy demonstration against picketing of the Seaman Body Corporation plant by an A. F. L.-affiliated union.

Members of the American Federation of Labor building trades council are picketing the plant in a jurisdictional dispute with the U. A. W., affiliated with the C. I. O.

Previously the delegates launched a drive for a two-week vacation with pay for all the Nation's 600,000 automobile and aircraft workers, approving a resolution calling for all locals to insist upon a vacation clause in collective bargaining contracts.

Meanwhile, committees pondered proposals for raising a "war chest" for a fight with the Ford corporation, only major automobile manufacturer with whom the union does not have a contract.

A new compromise program, calling for re-election of all present officers and adding a new vice president for Richard W. Frankenstein, Detroit, was reported gaining ground in caucus.

8,000 Pullman Porters Raised $12 Per Month

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—Eight thousand Pullman porters won a wage increase of $12 per month today when the Pullman Co. signed a working agreement with the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. Robert F. Cole, mediator for the Federal Railway Mediation Board, said the pay boost would raise the basic wage to $100 per month.

Social Security Outlay Approved

By the Associated Press.

A bill authorizing an outlay of $30,000,000 to States and Territories late in complying with the social security act became law yesterday with President Roosevelt's signature.

Areas involved are Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Ne- Delaware, Georgia, Florida, Illinois, braska, Nevada, North Dakota, Washington, Wyoming, Hawaii and Alaska.

Under the social security act States were required to pass unemployment compensation laws by the end of last year. Only 35 did so.

WPA to Investigate Floridian's Record

By the Associated Press.

The Works Progress Administration announced yesterday it had agreed to investigate the relief administration record of John C. Emerson, now director of the Federal employment service in Florida.

A file of letters and reports concerning Emerson's expense accounts as an operations director of the Florida emergency relief administratoin was delivered to WPA headquarters by Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, who said he received it from Gov. Fred P. Cone.

WPA officials said Emerson also had requested the inquiry.

Cincinnati, Aug. 25 (AP).—A demand for "vindication through an early, public trial" came today from counsel for Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31-year-old German immigrant, charged with the poison deaths of George Gesellman, 67, and Jacob Wagner, 78.

A Trumpet Is Heard.

A once very familiar trumpeting cuts through the summer haze. It is an elephant —The Elephant. But, to judge from his call, he is still somewhat dazed and blundering.

If the Republican Party is to fulfill the hopes of the 16,000,000 voters who stuck loyally by it during the last national campaign, it will have to find better inspiration than its chairman offers to date. Meeting here with G. O. P. leaders, preliminary to a series of conferences in various sections of the country, Mr. Hamilton swiped at the New Deal for its recent failures, mentioning particularly the Supreme Court issue and what he termed the Administration's "vacillation" on labor problems.

These, he declared, have stimulated a Republican trend in many sections of the country. It may well be so. But Mr. Hamilton would be poorly advised to count heavily on disillusioned New Deal supporters in his plans for a comeback. An opposition with constructive and specific proposals, not merely a basket of criticisms, is needed to appeal to voters.

Republican chances were not improved by Mr. Hamilton's tacit indorsement of a voluntary unemployment registration which is certain to be a pure waste of money. And they are not helped by Senator Capper's announcement that he will undertake a "grass roots campaign" against the Administration's reciprocal trade agreements policy.

If there is one point in the New Deal's record which has firm support everywhere, it is Secretary Hull's courageous initiative in seeking to revive international trade as a prop to peace and a stabilizer of prosperity. For a Republican Senator to tour the country on this issue will scarcely enhance the party's claims to political perspicacity.

Key To Highway Safety.

The annual report of the Police Court serves another reminder that traffic accidents in Washington are mounting steadily. During the past fiscal year, 109 persons were killed on District streets, while 4,662 were injured. This represents an increase of seven deaths and 506 injuries during the twelve months ended June 30.

On the very day that the Police Court report was published, a check throughout the city revealed a substantial increase in visitors here. The Washington Monument, which few sightseers can essay more than once and which almost all must visit during their stay, was climbed by almost three times as many persons last month as compared with July of last year. Other tallies show similar increases. This explains some part of the mounting traffic toll, since a large proportion of visitors to the Capital drive in automobiles.

But the new influx does not justify the increase in accidents. On the contrary, it only stiffens the challenge before the city to improve the efficiency of District highways. For in their present clogged condition lie their principal dangers. This was the first and principal comment made last winter by the head of Harvard's outstanding traffic school after a survey of the city. For remedy, he recommended express boulevards, elevated if necessary.

This received polite but somewhat incredulous attention. Yet 20 years ago Washingtonians would have shaken their heads just as strenuously if anyone had suggested the traffic facilities we today take for granted.

The sooner the District joins the safer sections of the country in the realization that traffic engineers, adequately financed, hold the key to highway safety, the less hazardous it will be as a place to live.

Help From The Aged.

There is food for reflection in the plight of the New Brighton, Pa., firm which recently found itself with a contract, part of which called for printing on coin bags. How to do this was baffling until somebody thought of the old Washington handpress. One was discovered in a second-hand machinery shop, in Columbus, Ohio, and the job was happily, if somewhat slowly, completed.

The Washington handpress, last and best of the handpresses, was invented in 1829. Starting out as an up-and-coming member of the printing profession it lived a long and useful life. Then along came necessity's children and the old handpress was first turned to job work, then to proof work, and as a centenarian was at last relegated to the junk pile and the shop of the antiquarian.

But there's life in the old boy yet. What greater praise can you give to man or machine than to say that he, or it, can rise to and be useful in emergency?

The President's Statement.

On the principle that half a loaf is better than no bread President Roosevelt has signed the bill making various revisions in Federal judicial procedure. The significance of his action, delayed until the last possible moment, lies in the fact that this bill resulted from the agreement reached in the Senate when the bottom fell out of the court-packing proposal.

If the President had signed this legislation without critical comment it would have been intepreted as signifying his acquiescence in the defeat he has suffered. If he had applied a pocket veto it would have been admission that procedural reforms, which the new act provides, were never his real objective, in spite of the way in which they camouflaged the court-packing proposal as introduced last February.

Mr. Roosevelt perhaps sought to prevent either interpretation by issuing a statement which emphasizes all the real and fancied shortcomings of the legislation but at the same time takes notice of those provisions "which are definitely a step in the right direction." The bill, says the President's statement, "moves in the general direction of reform and I have therefore given it my approval."

But the statement, since it hints at a resumption of the court-packing plan when opportunity favors, is not a happy solution of the dilemma. On the one hand it is admitted that the last Congress did a good deal to effectuate desirable changes in judicial procedure. And Congress never pretended that everything appropriate to this end was accomplished in the act now signed. This was demonstrated when a special Judiciary Committee was named to follow the subject through and make recommendations to the next session.

On the other hand, Mr. Roosevelt's statement reiterates some of the weather-beaten arguments, such as "the burden now imposed on the Supreme Court," which were so thoroughly exploded during the late unpleasantness. If the President really proposes to reintroduce the court-packing scheme, now inevitably shorn of much of its protective coloring, all those devastating facts, drawn from actual court records, will have to be trotted out again.

Suspicions as to Mr. Roosevelt's ultimate design for the Supreme Court were not lulled by the Black appointment. It is to be feared that they may be further reanimated by this grudging approval given the Congressional compromise as reached after Senator Robinson's death.

It may be true, as the President suggests, "that our people are restive under the slow and uncertain processes of the law." But it is at least equally true that they are forced to be alertly on guard against the rapid and uncertain processes of personal government as a substitute for the law.

Franco Has The Minerals.

The fall of Santander, which places all the Basque country and Spain's entire northern seacoast in Gen. Franco's hands, has been a foregone conclusion since the capture of Bilbao two months ago. Isolation of the region from other loyalist territory made this outcome almost inevitable. And the delay of the insurgents in their "mopping-up" operations is probably to be explained by the recent fighting around Madrid, which has monopolized Franco's attention.

With the Basque country in their possession, the insurgents now have control over the richest part of Spain's great mineral resources. Except for the great Almaden mercury mine, and less important zinc, sulphur and coal deposits remaining in loyalist hands, Franco now holds by far the most valuable part of the mineral wealth in the Iberian Peninsula. The Basque country is loaded with iron and coal, in return for which Germany and Italy will gladly barter munitions. Moreover, the loss of this territory finally deprives Barcelona of the normal source of raw materials for its industries.

In addition, near Gibraltar the insurgents hold the Rio Tinto Copper Mine, the biggest in Europe. They have more coal north of Seville, manganese in Morocco and the south of Spain, tungsten in Estramadura, and scattered deposits of phosphates, lead and tin. The value of these holdings is made clear by the assistance which Italy and Germany have freely given to Franco in order to secure them.

In other words, Franco's allies now have full access to the mineral wealth which was such a factor in prompting their intervention. And if their puppet can hold these resources, Italo-German interest in helping him further will probably be nominal. Stalemate, already so apparent at Madrid, is likely to be intensified by the submergence of the Basque country.

Fore, Ladies!

It seems that every time the sports world loses a champ, the fashion world gains a designer. Two years ago Gertrude Ederle embarked on a career of fashioning frills for the pleasingly plump. And now Helen Wills, after securing a divorce, announces that she will no longer concentrate on 40 love but will give all her time to the perfect 36. She is going to design streamlined golf costumes for the country club set because as she says, "so many women look dumpy in golf clothes."

It is somewhat paradoxical that neither Miss Ederle nor Miss Wills seem interested in improving the costumes with which they are most familiar. Gertie, the Channel champ, dealt only in the chic landlubber's wardrobe. Helen's new "service" has nothing to do with tennis, but is aimed at devotees of the links. Perhaps the former felt that she did make a contribution to the swimmer's ensemble when she sponsored a form-fitting, non-wrinkable coat of grease. Likewise Miss Wills, who may feel that her sun visor inspired the recent popularity of crownless hats.

Gertrude Ederle's extra poundage, taken on after her memorable swim, may have been responsible for her sudden interest in slenderizing the foolishly fat. But it isn't so clear why Miss Wills should get the blues every time she looks at women on the green. Unless, of course, she thinks this may be a useful way of staying out of the red.

The Future Of Palestine.

In its report on Palestine, the mandates commission of the League of Nations follows a curious line of reasoning and reaches somewhat contradictory conclusions.

Recently a British royal commission came to the conclusion that the Palestinian mandate is, in its present form, no longer workable. A tripartite partition of the Holy Land was recommended. This proposal the British government promptly approved.

Now the mandates commission comes forward with the suggestion that the emergency which led to the drastic solution advocated by London was exaggerated; it was the medicine, not the disease, which made the patient sick. The British mandate for Palestine only became unworkable, the League body declares, "when it was publicly declared to be so by the royal commission and the mandatory government itself."

Admitting, however, that the present mandate must go by the boards, the League commission refuses to approve the British proposals in their present form. It is not prepared to follow London in recommending the establishment of completely independent Arab and Jewish states in what is now Palestine and Transjordan, with Great Britain retaining a mandate over a corridor from Jerusalem to the coast.

Any delimitation of new frontiers, the report says, will only conflict with the same contradictory aspirations as have prevailed under the present system. Therefore there must be a prolongation of the period of political apprenticeship, under British guidance, either through a system of "provisional cantonization" whereby Jews and Arabs would exercise a large measure of autonomy in districts where they are respectively in a majority, or through the establishment of separate mandates for the Jewish and Arab areas.

The mandates commission's hesitation in approving the British plan of partition is understandable. So is its recognition of the fact that a new arrangement in Palestine is now unavoidable. Yet it is questionable whether the alternative proposals are workable. For at bottom the same difficulties would obtain under cantonization, as a tripartite mandate, as obtain now.

What is clearly needed, as the commission itself recognizes by appealing to Jews and Arabs to make sacrifices for the common good, is Arab-Jewish co-operation. And that co-operation is not likely to be fostered as long as British policy in Palestine continues to be what it has been.

Despite the commission's generous tribute to British statesmanship it is hardly in accord with the facts to say that Great Britain has for 20 years "sought to appease the antagonistic feelings prevailing in Palestine." Indeed had such a course been pursued, rather than the policy of "divide and rule" which was actually followed, the devices which the British government now recommends as a solution would never have been necessary.

Democrats For Republicans.

From the Charleston News and Courier.

In New York City Fiorello LaGuardia, former Socialist, Republican, New Dealer and Roosevelt man, is being nominated for a second term as mayor by the Republican Party, and the Tammany Hall Democracy is nominating against him United States Senator Copeland, who is not accounted a New Dealer or Roosevelt man. Democratic New Dealers hope to displace Dr. Copeland with another candidate.

In New York City politics will President Roosevelt be a Democrat or a Republican? From this distance it appears that Mr. LaGuardia is a better mayor than New York is commonly blessed with. Under his administration New York City has had in three years $167,000,000 for its parks alone from the Treasury of the United States. We Charlestonians pay three or four times as much per capita for the maintenance of New York City as we receive from the Federal Treasury.

Perhaps it may be argued that if the Democratic Party is to have the support of a Republican mayor of New York, it should cheerfully pay the price.

Meaningless Comparisons.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why all the editorial finger-pointing and Il Duce cartoons when a senatorial magnifico howls for the heads of Democratic apostates? Guffey merely made the mistake of putting his cards on the table. I believe that a checkup of the records of past and present legislators will show that "something" invariably happens to the mavericks who refuse to listen to reason. And this neat bit of political strategy is not confined to the Democratic Party.

During the reign of the late Lord Hoover, a Republican Representative from Pennsylvania went so far as to thumb his nose at the Great Engineer and demand his impeachment. As I recall the incident, you made no impassioned defense of the Pennsylvania heretic although I believe his heresy cost him his job. I do remember, however, that his patronage candy was promptly lost in the scuffle. But was his sin any greater than that of the Messrs. Wheeler, Burke, McCarran, et al.? And inasmuch as you remained dry-eyed at his political demise, why do you weep when the Western Senators are threatened with sudden death?

Your past editorial performances would indicate that you are keenly in favor of revolt—among the Democrats. On the other hand every time Mr. Borah indulges in a bit of political sleep-walking and wanders off the reservation, you immediately break out in an editorial rash, deploring the incident and wagging a reproving finger. In brief, why do you eulogize Democrats for irregularity and damn Republicans for the same offense?

For an "independent" newspaper, your judgments appear slightly warped. For example, you view with alarm the Machiavellian Mr. Farley . . . but you saw nothing wrong in the machinations of the Ohio gang's Mr. Brown. You yelp at the heels of the President when he is defeated in his efforts to put across his social legislation . . . and you remained eloquently mute for four years while Mr. Hoover gazed at his crystal ball and twiddled his thumbs. Comparison of policy since that date with policy before that date is at best meaningless, at worst deliberately unfair.—Editor.]

Sordid Publicity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A decent sense of propriety forbids an unrestrained expression of opinion of the police authorities in giving out the statement purported to be made by the self-confessed murderer of Mrs. Anderson that he killed her because of jealousy and of the newspapers in having so little sense of propriety as to give publicity to the statement. The horrible implication from the statement is plain.

Was it not enough that this poor woman was murdered in cold blood by this inhuman fiend without blackening her memory and character by making public such a statement?

I have always been an advocate of freedom of the press, but I am beginning to wonder if some restraint is not necessary when the press shows so little sense of decency and responsibility.

The record of crime in Washington the past several years and the inefficient enforcement of law indicate that Washington is the most lawless city in the world, and that it is inadequately and inefficiently policed. There is really little security or protection to life and property in the District of Columbia.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So often people thoughtlessly fail to park to best advantage to all concerned. Make it a rule always to park three feet back of the auto ahead, no matter how much space there is behind, in areas where parking is at a premium. In many a block it is safe to say 5 to 10 per cent more autos could thus be parked. You and you and you and I will all benefit. OBSERVER.

No Majority Rule.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When President Roosevelt shouts from the housetops for rule by majority, he means a majority he can control under a Constitution which he interprets.

We have never had majority rule, unfettered, in this country, and no one now wants it. The majority will always look to some minority which is either more intelligent or more clever for its guidance. A majority running loose would be just like General Motors with all the managing heads removed. The workers would go into a general panic. So would the people in a political state if everything were left to uninfluenced and uncontrolled majority rule.

What we really need is a return of men to public office who are able to influence public voting toward themselves, but who have the intelligence and the honesty to enact legislation solely in the interest of the people.

A new party, espousing such a principle, might make a very considerable political upset.

Plymouth Colony Socialism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Seldom do I read one of Mr. Roosevelt's chats without feeling the same as a member of Parliament felt about Macaulay: "I wish I were as sure about anything as Macaulay is about everything."

Now, as reward for modesty, the wish is fulfilled. I feel as sure as does Mr. Roosevelt that "certain Americans if given a comprehensive view of the earliest American colonists and their methods of life and government would promptly label them Socialists."

Why hesitate about a label that history applies? Some of those settlements were frank experiments in socialism and every such experiment was found as unworkable as the New Deal socialism—and wisely discarded.

The Plymouth Colony is a good illustration, though it was the necessity for obtaining capital and not a game of find-the-forgotten-man that induced the members of that band to sign an agreement whereby they were to work for the common good and the common storehouse.

Gov. Bradford's report of the unsatisfactory result has been available for over three hundred years. He recorded: "It was found to breed much confusion and discontent and retard much employment that would have been to their benefite and comforte."

After three years of the experiment, he "with the advice of the chiefest among them," declared that thereafter all "should set corne every man for his own perticular and in that respects trust to themselves. This had very good success; for it made all hands very industrious, so as much more corne was planted than other waise would have been by any means."

There are many other interesting "New Deal" items in the pages of history, but isn't it a bit reactionary to found "a new philosophy" of thinking and living on theories that were tested and discarded as failures long before horse and buggy days? ELIZABETH EMMETT.

President's Democracy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President says that he believes in democracy and a majority rule, yet he wanted to pack the Supreme Court because he did not want a majority rule in that court.

He is reported as saying that he seeks no change in the form of the American government, and yet no President has ever tried harder to make so many changes in it as he has.

He reaffirms his faith in democracy, and yet under his reorganization plan he wants all the power of the Government vested in himself.

Reactions To The Oriental Fighting.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A recent article in the New York Times quotes the views of Toshio Shiratori, former spokesman of the Japanese Foreign Office, with regard to Japan's threat to close the Orient to Westerners.

I should like to make the following observations on Japan's "Monroe Doctrine."

(1) This distinguished Japanese has frankly admitted that Japan is going to carry on her "continental policy" and even suggests that "China abolish all armament throughout the country and entrust Japan with the maintenance of peace and order." In other words, Japan definitely intends to subjugate China and to be the real master of the whole of Asia.

(2) The Japanese "continental policy" aims at establishing a hegemony over the Pacific, thus putting Japan in a position to challenge the whole Western world. This is because Japan intends to utilize the Chinese territory and China's man-power "against foreigners."

(3) If Japan's "continental policy" is to be successful in any way it would jeopardize Western interests in China. This means the Open Door will be closed to the Westerners, especially to Americans.

(4) Mr. Shiratori says: "It is impossible to regulate Sino-Japanese relations by international law." This undoubtedly means that Japan refuses to be bound by any accepted principles of international law which govern the family of civilized nations. It also signifies that Japan refuses to accept any treaty obligations or international agreements if the civilized world acquiesces in this Japanese aggressive policy. It also means the doom of the white man in Asia, and is a threat to world peace.

Many humans are becoming too highly organized to endure even the thought of such things as imminent. But perhaps there is a way to stop some of it.

"War Brides," one of the most impressive movies ever made, depicted an expectant, but crusading young mother who shot herself in front of the "Kaiser" after exclaiming "No more children for cannon fodder." With birth control at one end of life and medical skill at the other, life expectancy has increased from 40 years in 1900 to over 60 years at the present time. We are becoming literally an older people in this country at least. And let us hope, more mentally mature.

Malty Dream.

CARS full of evening diversionists rush along them to the whine of pistons and the hum of radios. Their occupants, fleeing the downtown swelter, chattering and laughing, are "looking for a place to stop." They observe the roadside inducements. Custard, dancing, sizzling platters, and, supreme over all: beer . . ., beer,. BEER! Legion neon beacons to tempt the quenchless public maw.

Suppose they stop under one of these piercing red and orange miracles of high pressurism. The approach will probably be full of ruts and chuckholes. The screen-door will flap loosely behind them. Beer and fried onions will greet the nostrils. The sole source of music may be a nickel record machine. One's cigarettes may plop out of an aluminum slot. There may be a fair young thing or two whose eyes our joysters may catch by beating spoons on the coffee-spotted table top. Finally it may arrive foaming over the lips of its tall glasses, beaded and sparkling, mad bubbles swirling through it—the amber liquid.

We have again our beloved "nectar of the rabble." Once more the mead that rejoiced the heroes of Valhalla sits brimming to regale our sparkling gaze. Again busy breweries compete to gorge their "outlets." And that is what we want to talk, or think wishfully, about—these outlets.

Washington is unique in its civic beauty, its orderliness and neatness. However, there is something sadly dissonant in its suburban beer dispensaries. Not all, perhaps; only the grand majority. Here and there on an unlandscaped terrain there are some metal tables covered by undried paint where beer can be consumed in the open. But they are drab and barren of liveliness.

On all sides there are air-conditioned cocktail lounges, comfortable old bars ornamented with plaques of rubric Benedictines and chubby cupids, with steins, naked timbers, and all the knickknackery of the disciples of Bacchus. But what in the name of all the gods has become of the family beer gardens?

How many, like myself, have sallied forth these sultry August evenings for a glass of foaming brew and a chat with friends over the state of the Nation, armed with the forlorn hope against hope that just around that next bend in the highway the miracle would happen? . . . that one would see behind hedgerows or screens of poplars the twinkle of Japanese lanterns, and, across the carefully tonsured sweep of terraces, a myriad of gay tables. Waiters scurrying with trays of beer glasses. Tilted beach umbrellas here and there, and, in a corner, an arbor sheltering an orchestra softly playing Strauss waltzes.

But that garden itself, not "eastward in Eden" but on the outskirts of the National Capital! A procession of flowers: tulip beds in May, rose trellises in June, hyacinths, hollyhocks and comfortable maples or oaks to shake their leaves at the diadem of heaven. Astral shoots in the greenery, a braid of fireflies over all.

No kleigs, no floor shows, no cupie cigarette girl—no tap, adagio, or ballet, no gags, no acrobatics "Ach du leiber!" or tyrolese dances from the rotund waiters. Liverwurst, Dixie pig, shrimp, Camembert, Cheddar, gouda, hamburger—BEER—Munchner, "Bud," local ales—and wines from Moselle to Chateau Yquem.

Ah, dream! Maybe in Antwerp or Cologne or St. Moritz. It is like the sidewalk cafe, uncertain, probably to enjoy the same fate. It may be all right on les grands boulevards. In America it is just "not possible." There is curb service—it is and the memory of the old swinging door. There is that army of modern interior decorators who kowtow to the hole-in-the-wallers.

Do we not have tables in America, bricks, concrete, grass seed, men with good practical sense, spaces of clean air, a public which loves beer and conviviality? What are beer gardens made out of?

So we round them, those next corners. And so we step on the gas, squint at the neon glare. Ooogah! "Boy! Ham and cheese on toast, one beer!" The coffee pot sputters, kitchen fumes smutty the open bar, and a lone fan strives to rid the hole in the wall of tobacco smoke. We eat because we are victims to the midnight snack and we wend homeward wearier than before.

Let us offer libations to the appearance of some roly-poly enterprising restaurateur with sabre mustachios who will bring us back the rustic table with its well-worn top, its countless seidels, its gleaming schooners. Let us hope to hear once more the lilting "Blue Danube" and a good basso profundo work out on "Frankie and Johnnie." Oh, to sink a tooth in the luscious bologna, to clink our steins and shout till the rafters of the Milky Way tremble and reverberate to the bravura beery ballads! Is it futile, un-American, this dream of malt and hops? Must it be so? Let us, if only the editorial "we," urge into our unwritten manifesto the wholesome comradeship of the beer keg and of the pine-scented Lustgarten.

Dirty Pool.

NEVER LET IT be said that your correspondent put in a good word for old Doc Copeland because the Doc is a Tammany Senator, but in the current scuffle for the job of Mayor of New York an attempt is being made to label him the Nazi candidate, and that is dirty pool. Cheap as he has been in some of his publicity gags—and he once made ballyhoo for himself by conducting a reducing class for a group of fat women at the old Madison Square Garden—he has never done a thing to justify the charge that he has anything in common with Adolf Hitler.

The old Doc is pure American in all respects; his record on dictatorships is a lot better, if it comes to a showdown, than that of Jerry Mahoney, who professes to string along with Roosevelt in everything the President proposes, including some very dictatorial measures, and it wasn't his fault that the New York outpost of the Nazi government decided to smear him with its indorsement a little while ago.

• • • •

As far as sound conservatism is concerned, he is a steadier man than either Mahoney or Fiorello La Guardia, and before this campaign is over a lot of old-line reactionary Republicans will find themselves voting for a Tammany man—to wit, the Doc—because he is the only one in the field who represents what they want. Of course, he also represents Tammany, but the conservatives will be in the predicament of the miner who played the only wheel in town, even though it did have a gimmick on it.

• • • •

THE NAZIS' indorsement was a foul blow to the Doc and typical of the dumb square-headedness which only a few months ago in the Nazi papers threatened to take an unpleasant interest in our internal affairs and called us a nation who wear our hats in the house, put our feet on the table and spit chewing gum at the walls.

The local Nazis couldn't go for La Guardia, because he said Hitler belonged in a chamber of horrors, and they were off Mahoney, because he tried to prevent the participation of the American team in the Nazi Olympics.

But Copeland just happened not to have said anything, so they indorsed him, which was equivalent to patting him on the head with an ax, because for every vote they can give him also will drive six votes away. This, no doubt, is the promised manifestation of that unpleasant interest in our internal affairs.

However, in the interest of a fair deal, even for a Tammany politician, it is time to point out that Hitler isn't running in this campaign and is just as phony an issue as King George V was in the campaign of Big Bill Thompson in Chicago.

The local Nazi organization includes only a fraction of local Americans of German origin or descent, and there are many such who detest Hitler and his fellow murderers as heartily as any Jew, Catholic or Mason, and resent any attempt to deliver them to any candidate in Hitler's name.

• • • •

MAHONEY has plenty to explain in the appointment of Jimmy Walker to an artificial job in order to qualify him for a pension which will cost the town at least $120,000 if he lives ten years, because Jimmy is playing on Jerry's team and the appointment came from Washington, where we heard some recent complaint about the diversion of money from the relief of the ill-kept third of the population. He probably will avoid that subject, however, just as Mr. Walker, in his plaintive reply to Sam Seabury's resume of the Walker case, neglected to refute a reference to one of his trips abroad. Mr. Seabury said the trip was financed "by a letter of credit paid for by the agent of the Equitable Coach Co." Interesting indeed, if true.

In his first speech of the campaign for Mayor of an American city, Mr. Mahoney spoke in Yiddish, and if it isn't asking too much, perhaps he will explain why it isn't possible to reach the understanding of an audience claiming the right to vote in an American election in the accepted language of the country. If Mr. Mahoney's audience can't understand the language well enough to comprehend the simple campaign foolishness of an old-style politician how come they are voting here?

This is a pretty low form of political kidding, because Jerry will do the Jews no good to segregate them from the rest of the people and, even if elected, will be unable to give them any benefits comparable to the prejudice which he will arouse by seeking high office by orations in a foreign tongue.

Aberhart Rebuffed

Ottawa Government Disallows Alberta Legislation Proposed By Premier In Desperate Effort to Effectuate Social Credit.

By William Marchington.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Ottawa.

THE LONG-EXPECTED crisis in the relations of the federal government of Canada and the Social Credit ministry of Alberta has at last developed. It has arisen from the recent passage at a special session of the Alberta legislature of a series of measures, obviously designed to compel the chartered banks operating in Alberta to serve as the instruments of the Aberhart ministry in the establishment of a system of Social Credit. The King government at Ottawa holds that these laws constituted a flagrant invasion of the field of federal jurisdiction under which banking and monetary matters are placed by the British North America's act, Canada's constitutional charter.

The government has exercised its prerogative of disallowing provincial legislation which is either ultra vires or construed as detrimental to the general interest of Canada.

Premier William Aberhart is accused in a pamphlet lately published by Mr. John Hargrave, one of the leaders of the Social Credit movement in Great Britain, of being sublimely ignorant of the fundamental principles of Social Credit. For nearly two years he has staved off any practical action towards the inauguration of a scheme of Social Credit, which he was pledged to put into operation within 18 months after his accession to office. Last spring, however, he found himself faced with a widespread insurgency on the part of the radical elements among his own supporters. It became obvious that further procrastination would mean his downfall.

So he appointed a Social Credit board armed with authority to work out a plan of Social Credit. Apparently this board, which had the benefit of the services of Messrs. Byrne and Powell, two lieutenants of Maj. C. H. Douglas the original parent of Social Credit, has managed to evolve a scheme which is considered worthy of a practical trial.

Douglas Has Insisted Banks Should Be Adapted.

MAJ. DOUGLAS had always insisted that it would be preferable to enlist the co-operation of the existing banks in working a plan of Social Credit than to set up new credit machinery. Since it was plain that this co-operation would not be voluntarily given, the Alberta legislature was called early in August for the purpose of taking steps to compel this co-operation. Premier Aberhart, having thus pacified most of the insurgent Social Crediters, had no difficulty in getting a large majority to rush through a series of bills of a very drastic character.

Of these, the three most important were a law which would compel all banks operating in Alberta, although holding a federal charter, to take out provincial licenses and submit to regulation by local committees dominated by appointees of a Social Credit commission. Another would debar officials of banks from bringing or defending actions in the courts of Alberta in regard to any claim in law or equity, unless these banks had taken out licenses. A third seeks to prevent any person from challenging in the courts the validity of any measure passed by the Legislature of Alberta.

It was clear as soon as the text of these measures was published that they constituted a challenge not merely to the banks but to the authority of the Federal Government and the latter was immediately subjected to pressure to exercise its power of disallowance. But the King government had resisted pressure to use this power against measures passed recently by the provincial ministries of Ontario and Quebec, each regarded as meriting its application it was loath to expose itself to the charge that at the bidding of the banks it was discriminating against Alberta and to present Mr. Aberhart with a first-class grievance which he might well use as the basis for a demagogic appeal to the voters for a new mandate.

So it suggested to the Aberhart ministry that it should facilitate a test of the validity of three measures referred to above by a judicial reference to the Supreme Court of Canada and that meanwhile their operation should be suspended until the verdict of the court was available.

Aberhart Rejected Test Of Legislation In Court.

BUT PREMIER ABERHART scornfully rejected this proposal on the ground that his mandate from the people of Alberta left him no alternative but to put the legislation into effect. Thereupon, as soon as his reply was received at Ottawa, the King ministry, realizing that further negotiations were hopeless, took swift action to assert the Federal authority over the banking and monetary system. It had fortified itself by a long written report from Mr. Lapointe, the minister of justice.

He pronounced all three measures ultra vires of the Alberta legislature, and an unwarrantable invasion of federal rights which, if permitted to continue, could only lead to confusion detrimental to the national interest. He declared he felt no project or policy of a provincial legislature should be interfered with by the exercise of the federal power of disallowance merely on the ground that measures to promote such a project or policy were of doubtful constitutional validity. But, he continued, a distinction must be made where a legislature deliberately attempted as the Alberta legislature had done—to interfere with the operation of federal laws and to substitute laws and institutions of its own for those legitimately enacted by the Federal Parliament, particularly when a legislature was trying to deny people access to the courts of justice.

Accordingly, he recommended immediate disallowance of the three bills and the cabinet without delay passed the necessary order-in-council. In notifying the Aberhart ministry of this, Premier King expressed his regrets that the latter had not accepted the reasonable proposal for a reference to the Supreme Court. He declared that when this was rejected his government had found no alternative but to fulfill its responsibility for maintaining the federal authority. He added that his government fully recognized the special difficulties of Alberta but thought that they could be solved without violation of the constitution and the denial of free access to the courts. Finally, he expressed its entire willingness to consult with the Alberta ministry about practicable measures for solving its problems.

Ottawa Decision Stirred Premier To Declare 'Fight.'

THE NEWS of the decision at Ottawa came to Premier Aberhart while he was in act of addressing a political picnic of Social Creditors at a beach on a lake near Edmonton. Announcing the decision to the crowd, he declared that his ministry, standing fast by the constitution, would fight the issue through.

When a man in the audience shouted "Give us a gun" he said, "No, none of that. This is not a matter of bloodshed. We may disagree with their prejudices but we'll stand together and fight together and try to solve our difficulties. We want to be allowed to fight out our difference in our own real home. As members of a great Dominion, will you keep steady and go ahead on lines we have always stood for?"

Later he said, "I am satisfied that there are some means in the British constitution for bringing to our people the food, clothing and shelter they need in a land of abundance. I believe we have in this province the greatest example of true democracy that the world has ever seen. . . .We are in for a real fight. Unless our hands are together, we won't accomplish what we hope to accomplish."

He seems to have rallied behind him the main body of the Social Credit party and its representatives in the Federal Parliament have backed him up.

It was confidently expected in political circles at Ottawa that Premier Aberhart would call a provincial election and appeal for a fresh mandate to frustrate a conspiracy between the federal government and the banks. Some political experts were inclined to think that he might win out with such appeal, especially as the grain crops in the province, while not as bad as in Saskatchewan, are far from abundant. However, he has so far given no sign of an intention to appeal to the voters and the assumption now is that he is dubious of the results of an immediate election.

If he takes the plunge, the chief burden of the fight against him will fall upon the local Liberal party which lately provided itself with a new leader in the person of Mr. E. L. Gray, a former civil servant in Alberta, who although inexperienced in politics is regarded as a man of considerable ability.

He can probably count upon the cordial co-operation of the Conservatives and the business interests of the towns and cities will be solidly behind him. He will also have the whole-heartedly backing of the influence of the federal government and it can be taken for granted that the banks and business interests will not see him lacking in adequate campaign funds. But Mr. Aberhart is now a seasoned campaigner and a real master of the art of broadcasting and if an election comes it will be a real battle as he predicted.

Should a President be prohibited from running for a third term? American voters answer in the latest poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion—The Sunday Post.

9-Power Pact

By Barnet Nover.

The Responsibility Of The U. S.

The Contracting Powers agree that, whenever a situation arises which in the opinion of any one of them involves the application of the stipulations of the present Treaty, and renders desirable discussion of such application, there shall be full and frank communication between the Contracting Powers concerned.

Article VII of the Nine Power Treaty.

IN THE EXTREMELY serious situation which has arisen in the Far East as a result of Japan's latest series of aggressive acts on the mainland of Asia, the Government of the United States has not remained silent. Nor, precisely, has it pursued a policy of folded hands.

On July 16, soon after fighting had begun in the vicinity of Peiping, Secretary Hull issued a statement of policy which he deemed important enough to transmit to the governments of the world for their information and comment and which have since been indorsed by more than 50 nations. In that statement the American credo regarding ways and means of maintaining peace was adumbrated.

Certainly there would be no war in the world now or hereafter if all nations practiced "international self-restraint;" if they resolutely abstained from the use of force in pursuit of their policies; if they agreed to adjust all differences with other nations "by processes of peaceful negotiation"; if they were faithful in their observance of international agreements"; if they upheld the principle of the sanctity of treaties and so on.

• • • •

THE POINT needs no stressing. It is as axiomatic as would be an assertion that many of the evils that afflict the world would disappear like mist in the morning sun if all individuals observed the Golden Rule and the Ten Commandments. But even while favorable comments on Mr. Hull's statement of policy were pouring into the State Department from every corner of the earth, the war in the Far East to which it had particular pertinence was spreading.

Mr. Hull has not, however, limited his action to the issuance of this high-minded pronunciamento. If we have a vital stake in the preservation of peace everywhere in the world we have a particular interest in its maintenance in the Far East. We have proved that again and again in our history, from the days of the clipper ships to those of John Hay and the Open Door declaration, from the Boxer expedition to the Washington Conference and since.

Thus it was that during recent weeks the United States has also been urging upon both China and Japan "the importance of refraining from hostilities and of maintaining peace." And we have also, as Mr. Hull revealed in his statement of August 23, "been participating constantly in consultation with interested governments directed toward peaceful adjustment" of the Far Eastern conflict. The American Government clearly does not believe in "extreme isolation."

THERE NEED BE no quarrel with either the scope or the nature of this section. Rain will in the course of centuries wear away even the Rock of Gibraltar. Unfortunately the Far Eastern situation cannot be left to the operations of geologic time. If the holocaust is to be extinguished, action must be taken now.

Already a large part of Shanghai is a shambles and the undeclared war in the Far East increases hourly in intensity and ferocity. And as incidents are multiplied as the brutalitarian nations carry out one unimpeded aggression after another, the peace of the world becomes flimsier and flimsier, more and more of a hollow and meaningless fiction.

The Japanese rape of Manchuria was followed inevitably by the Italian rape of Ethiopia, which in turn provided the setting for the Fascist intervention in Spain. The latest blood bath in China is the price the world is paying for past inaction. And the price steadily becomes more fearful. Each episode in this unholy chain has proved more disturbing than its predecessor. And if this state of affairs is permitted to continue, if the gangster nations are indefinitely allowed to run amuck with the peace-loving nations forever scurrying to cover like a lot of frightened rabbits, there will soon be security for none. And peace for none.

A man living several doors away from a raging fire may comfort himself with the thought that the flames do not reach him. But the world rightly regards such an individual as a fool. Unless the fire is controlled his house may be the next victim of the conflagration. Clearly co-operation with all the other householders who, like himself, have something to lose if the fire spreads, in putting out the flames is called for.

• • • •

WITH REGARD to the Far East this community of interest in the maintenance of peace was clearly enunciated in the Nine Power Treaty. That agreement was negotiated here in Washington. The official text is deposited here. And we cannot ignore it except to our and the world's peril. For if it has any application at all it applies to the present situation with unmistakable force.

Only those blind to facts headlined in the world's press can deny that as a result of Japan's actions "the sovereignty, the independence, and the territorial and administrative integrity of China" are imperiled. Clearly Japan is doing everything possible to obstruct China rather than permit her, as was pledged in 1922, "the fullest and most unembarassed opportunity to develop and maintain for herself an effective and stable government." And events of the past two years have made it plain indeed that wherever Japan has managed to establish itself in control "the principle of equal opportunity for the commerce and industry of all nations" has been flouted.

As promoter and signatory of the Nine Power Treaty the course for the United States is, therefore, plain. Either the treaty has some meaning or it has not. If it has, the time has come to invoke it. Isolated action by us in the present situation is inadvisable and might prove dangerous. Co-operative action with the other signatories of the 1932 treaty is called for if only to determine what validity this solemn instrument possesses. As Dr. Raymond Leslie Buell aptly points out in the Bulletin of the Foreign Policy Association:

"The dangers implicit in the neutrality act can only be avoided by a policy of concerted action." Only such action, he adds "would protect the United States from assuming responsibilities alone in the Orient, and tend to shorten a war which otherwise may rapidly spread to various parts of the world."

Lawn Tennis.

By William Lyon Phelps

A Book On It.

Here is a brand-new or bran-new (which do you say and what does either mean?) new book on lawn tennis, which is, however, unlike any other work on the same theme. It is written by an accomplished scholar, Dr. Philip B. Hawk, and is embellished by illustrations, photographs and caricatures. (Published by American Lawn Tennis, Inc., 500 Fifth avenue, New York.)

In addition to serious criticism, appraisals of the stars, history of famous battles, analyses of the temperaments and of the technique of champions, we find delightful nonsense and outrageous humor.

"The purpose of this book is to amuse and entertain rather than to advise and instruct." He had fun in writing it, and has not scrupled to use the vernacular, those who wish to read his more "serious works are referred to his "Practical Physiological Chemistry."

• • • •

The anecdotes of famous players of the past and present will divert all readers; and the all-time mythical word championship, The Great Open Tournament, is exciting reading. The second chapter has a list of names under the following heads: Greatest Strategist, Match Play Courage, Least Temperamental, Most Temperamental, Finest Court Manners, Greatest Stroke Repertoire, etc., etc.

Like every other authoritative writer on tennis he places Tilden as the greatest player who ever lived. Ten years ago Capt. Liddell Hart, the London Times military expert, who has written so many books on the World War, wrote a book on tennis players, and he, too, put Tilden first. For Tilden is not only first, he is in a class all by himself.

The most temperamental player is called Count Salm, and no one will dispute that who ever saw him. I played against him in a tournament on the French Riviera 25 years ago.

Tom McCarthy

The Postilion Interviews the Beloved W. C. Fields

Hollywood, Aug. 25.—The legend of W. C. Fields is the story of a man who wouldn't stay beaten. He is the most beloved figure in Hollywood.

Once in a while when he isn't convulsing you with one of his inimitable stories you sense a bit of wistfulness in his manner, or you find him lashing out at some injustice with the quick flame of one who has not forgotten days of poverty. Mostly, though, he's telling a story.

TOM McCARTHY.

My introduction to the "off-stage" Fields came several minutes before I actually met him. Waiting in the living room of his luxurious house in Bel-Air, I was startled by a lion-like roar from an upper floor.

"What's going on?" I asked. "Is he rehearsing a part?"

"Oh, no," I was told; "that's just Bill Fields giving an interview." There followed a new cataclysm of sound from the room upstairs—grunts, wheezes, groans and the original Fields "bellow." Bill Fields was simply being interviewed.

• • • •

BILL FIELDS has been a sick man. He is now recovering from the complications of a half-dozen illnesses.

"How did you happen to become a comedian, Mr. Fields?"

"I was always a lazy kid," he tells you, and as he continues you can't separate the speaker from the man you've seen so often on the screen. As he talks the accents, the gestures and the voice are at one with the character he has created.

"I looked around for a lazy man's job, and I thought I'd found one. I decided to be a juggler. For three years I practiced juggling cigar boxes, baseballs, Indian clubs or whatever I could lay my hands on. All the time I was roaming about the country on freight cars, practicing my juggling any time I happened to land.

"What a merry lad I was in those days. I shall never forget the time I was riding along on top of a freight. We were entering a tunnel, so I grabbed two handfuls of those streamers at the tunnel entrance and galloped along on top of the moving train.

"My, but I was a charming half-wit, galloping along with a song in my heart and no brains in my head. I thought of everything in those days. I was never caught unprepared, except that time, when the train rolled by and I found my feet hanging down over a line of coal cars.

"I could always get out of trouble, though, with the elusive daring of an overloaded camel. For example, I was arrested in a street fight in England. The fellow arrested with me was 'Dip' Waterbury, a famous crook. The British police with their fine perceptiveness were all for letting the 'Dip' go because he looked like a gentleman. I was just a vaudeville 'ham;' so they decided to throw me in the cooler and toss the key away.

"But they couldn't fool old 'Bill.' Nosiree! The 'Dip' paid the fine and they let us go. The thing was that the 'Dip' paid the fine by check and I gave him the money for my half. You couldn't do it here, but those English cops took the check. 'Dip' took my money, and when the cops ran me down a couple of days later I had to pay it all over again because the 'Dip' had given them a phoney check!

• • • •

"WELL, starting out as a kid bumming around the country and then as a sort of juggler, who regularly got himself in jail, in England, Germany, Australia or whereever I happened to be, I got into what they called 'big time.'

"In that time I had more ups and downs than an elevator boy, but the pay-off came out here in Hollywood. Oh, they're smart people out here—always using their heads. They've got more 'figurer-outers' in Hollywood than they've got in the Income Tax Bureau in Washington.

"These smart boys out here had me all doped out. In the first place they said I couldn't make a go of it in the 'silents' because you couldn't hear my voice. Then I wouldn't make a go of it in the talkies because you could hear my voice.

"Master minds? Why, this town is crawling with them, and they can figure out everything except how to keep from shutting their fingers in the door.

• • • •

"CHARLEY McCARTHY? Why, that little sliver of irritation, that little bundle of impudence——" Mr. Fields gave out, as he started to laugh. "You know, people almost think that little dummy is alive. Girls come up to the studio and chuck it under the chin and little children write me asking me not to be so rough with 'little Charlie.'

All of a sudden Mr. Fields jumped from his chair.

"Say, you said your name was McCarthy. Help! I've been betrayed. There's a McCarthy in the house! Take him away before I lose my temper! Don't hold me back! Let me at him!"

Youth Who Found $20,000 Dies at 18; Fortune Unspent

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (AP).—Three years ago, Henry Grob and a playmate unearthed a $20,000 fortune in old gold coins. Today Henry's family completed funeral arrangements for him—dead at 18 and never able, because of a court order, to spend a penny of his treasure share.

Young Grob, who, with Theodore Jones, dug up the gold in a cellar beneath an empty house, died last night of pneumonia. Because the court order required that Henry and Theodore had to wait until they came of age before gaining possession of their money, Henry had a $16-a-week job in a packing house.

In the bank at the time of his death was $7,000—residue of his share of the gold hoard after lawyers' fees and court costs were deducted. Both boys were involved for months in a legal wrangle over ownership of the gold.

The court held finally that, in this case, "finders were keepers."

The planes will leave Dominica October 12, skirting South America, Central America, Mexico, the United States and Canada, returning to their point of departure via Cuba and Haiti.

All nations of the Western world will co-operate in erection of the gigantic memorial to Columbus at the spot where he is believed to have first landed. The lighthouse is in the shape of a recumbent cross.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Don't Overrate Distribution.

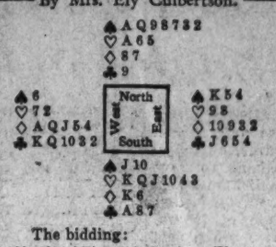

Distribution seems to exercise a circle-like spell over many players—give them an abnormally long suit and they lose all sense of values where honor-tricks are concerned. No one appreciates the power of good distribution better than I do. But it must be remembered that repeated bidding on a player's part is accepted by his partner as evidence of top tricks. Consider North's bidding in today's hand. It is all too typical of a vast number of players.

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Sixty, part-score.

North's first bid was correct; he had a good seven-card suit and a total of 2½ honor-tricks. His free rebid over West's three diamonds was, however, questionable. He could hardly expect his partner to realize that the rebid was predicated entirely on spade length. South, knowing his partner's predilection for bidding every time it came his turn, controlled himself over the three spade bid even though the excellence of his hand would easily have justified a free rebid. When North came in again over four clubs with a heart raise (which, considering his previous vigor, was nothing short of outrageous), South would have had to be the greatest "sissy" of all time to have remained silent. His six heart bid and subsequent redouble were entirely justified.

Unfortunately, this was just one more case of one partner having to take the punishment that was due only the other.

West opened the club king; declarer won, drew trumps in two leads and, with a minimum of hope but maximum of necessity, tried the spade finesse. East pounced on the trick with his King, and returned a diamond. Declarer, with a glare of unadulterated hatred directed at partner, had to concede two diamond tricks for a penalty of 1,000 points. North had placed entirely too much reliance on a few extra low spades.

The bidding:

Ex-Soldier Freed After Detention as Mattson Suspect

By the Associated Press.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 25.—Harry Ward, 31, held here yesterday as a suspect in the Charles Mattson kidnaping at Takoma, Wash., last December, was released today when his United States Army record showed he was cooking at Fort Monroe, Va., at the time of the crime.

Ward, who obtained a job in a soda fountain here three weeks ago, bore such a resemblance to the artist's conception of the Mattson kidnaper that Federal agents and police thought he should be questioned.

The Washington Post

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Washington's heat, of course, is vastly exaggerated; it may leave natives of Maine or Alaska a little droopy, but it's fairly bracing for a plainsman . . . I'll buy Senator McCarran a tie-clasp if he'll promise not to tuck his necktie inside his shirt . . . One way to discover whether there's a war going on in China will be to watch the Chinese Ambassador this fall and see if he goes to any parties at the Japanese Embassy.

• • • •

Inlanders who are accustomed to bread of a uniform tastelessness go mildly agog over the selection of tasty rolls in the Capital's restaurants . . . One of the equestrienne nymphs in the Congressional Library fountain seems scared to death of her horse; the other is all serene.

• • • •

They say Mr. Roosevelt sees half a dozen movies a week at the White House; a great way to relax . . . The last time I saw Senator Hiram Johnson I was the age of a page and he was demanding a division for Teddy Roosevelt to lead to France.

"——maybe hot for an Alaskan."

Some of the eminent matrons in the Senate galleries seem to dress a bit on the gaudy side . . . Washington's labyrinthine traffic is controlled wtih amazing skill, but one moron driver can lick his weight in traffic signals.

• • • •

Until I can see for myself I shall accept the verdict that Lelia Stiles is the champion eyeful at the White House, but not the report that an elder statesman (a widower, doubtless) is enraptured by her, at a distance.

• • • •

Some naughty Senators won't be invited on the President's train when he goes West this fall . . . It may be safe for Ambassador Bowers to spend Xmas at San Sebastian, with the fighting over in northwest Spain.

• • • •

Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, wears tan silk suits, very popular garb among the Beau Brummels on the Hill, and would look well and even Romanesque in a toga . . . I am puzzled by the lion's head motif around the cornices of the Supreme Court Building—is it that justice is so fierce in its impartiality?

• • • •

Once an American diplomat cabled the State Department from Vibourg, Finland: "Have the honor to suggest that I be transferred to Vigos, Spain, or that my mail be sent here" . . . Through an open door I saw four beds in one bedroom at one of the swankiest Washington hotels.

• • • •

"——a monument should commemorate."

Presumably the purpose of a monument or a statue is to commemorate; so why shouldn't the names on the various obscure statues and monuments in the Capital be in letters big enough so a passing motorist may catch them? . . . I seem to remember a recent ruling that this is no longer the horse and buggy age; let him who whizzes past at 23 m. p. h. be reminded of our heroes.

• • • •

My favorite bon mots by Senator Connally: "Mr. President, you need not rap so hard for order; the Senator from Texas is often disorderly himself and does not object to noise while he speakes" . . . "Mr. President, please do not cut short these signs of approval for the remarks of the Senator from Texas. The Senator from Texas hasn't enjoyed much approval lately."

• • • •

Strange assortment of special exhibitions at the Library of Congress: Susan Anthony, Pushkin (the Russian) and Horace Mann . . . Incidentally, the records show that Horace Mann once borrowed a book (Lamartine's Monarchy in France), from the library and did not return it until 15½ months later, when a fine of $22.50 was due, which is not a good example to book borrowers. There is nothing to show that he ever paid the fine, either . . . As the old-fashioned poets might have explained it, even the heavens are weeping at the record of the last session on the Hill.

Boys and Girls Who Learned Woodwork This Summer Will Exhibit Their Products Next Monday at Elliott Community Field Day Show

Post Staff Photos.

Teacher Says Experience Instills Industry and Courtesy.

It's all work and not much play for the boys and the girls who spent most of their summer vacation at Elliott Junior High School bending over the lathes and sawhorses in the Community Center's shop class.

But the enthusiasm they showed yesterday as they put the finishing touches on their products, indicated that the work did not produce a dull boy among them. From 6-year-olds to 18-year-olds, all glowed with pride as they lined up their completed projects on shelves and tables in preparation for a public exhibit opening Monday afternoon.

The girls who took the course are 13-year-old Dorothy White, a student at Holy Comforter School, and Vivian Berry, 14, who graduated from Elliott in June and will enter Eastern High School this fall. Neither had done carpentry work before. They confined themselves to small garden decorations. Vivian did pluck up courage to build a footstool, and Instructor Hubert H. Cleary claims none of the boys could have done a better job.

About 60 came to the class every day, Cleary estimates. He taught the junior boys, from 6 to 12 years old, in the morning and the older ones in the afternoon.

When the crowd was too large for him to handle alone, he would assign small groups to older, more experienced boys and thus conducted a teachers training course on the side. These assistant instructors included Thomas and William Wilkinson, Fred Hill and Raymond Clapper, jr.

Each student decided for himself what he wished to make, and as a result Monday's exhibit will show a great variety, not only of workmanship but of types of work. The 6-year-olds did not venture beyond envelope-holders, spindles and similarly uncomplicated contraptions.

The older boys went in chiefly for lamps, book-ends and taborets, which they will give their mothers. One practical youngster produced a scooter for his own use. Several sold their more successful attempts for as much as $2.50 apiece.

The only joint project was a set of 36 pairs of paddles, which were made for use on the District playgrounds in paddle tennis.

According to Instructor Cleary, who teaches shop at Eliot during the school year, "What these kids make doesn't amount to a row of pins. It's the habits of work they acquire and the shop courtesy which counts."

To give them the proper training, Cleary has the boys clean up after work every day. Then he lines them up, inspects them for posture, and each day selects the one who has been most quiet, orderly and co-operative. The boy who receives this honor most often during the summer will receive a prize from the instructor.

Overhead has been kept at a minimum. The equipment is the same that is used at Eliot during the winter. The wood consists of discarded crates which Cleary collects twice a week from Sears-Roebuck.

Other Playgrounds Arrange Exhibitions for Handcraft Classes.

The exhibit Monday is one of several being held by playgrounds and other recreation centers in connection with the closing of the season. The Macfarland shop exhibit will be tomorrow morning. The airplane class at Buchanan, the only other project of this type, will exhibit Monday.

The Eastern High School Recreation Area, of which the Eliot class is one part, will hold its field day this afternoon at 1 o'clock. In addition to athletic events, the girls will stage an exhibition of their art work, which includes a series of water colors depicting playground activities.

Langley Junior High School's final program will be held tonight at 7:45. There will be dancing, drama, and a handcraft show. Tomorrow's schedule follows: 9:30 a. m., field day at Roosevelt High School; 2 p. m., drama and aircraft exhibit at Paul Junior High School; 2:30 p. m., drama and craft exhibit at Force School; 8 p. m., gymnasium work and social dancing at Roosevelt High School; 8 p. m., drama and dances, Dunbar High School.

Ruhland Asks Funds to Help Health Drive

New Budget Calls for $3,416,000, Gain of 54%.

A new campaign to improve Washington's public health record was outlined yesterday in estimates submitted by Health Officer George C. Ruhland to the District Commissioners.

Calling attention again to the Capital's high mortality rate, Dr. Ruhland asked that health appropriations be increased by 54 per cent over the current year to a total of $3,416,655.

Among new construction items proposed by the health officer are:

Hospital Personnel Increase.

Substantial increases in personnel at Gallinger Hospital, the Glenn Dale sanatoria, and in the nursing bureau were set forth in the estimates as necessary to make an effective fight on disease.

Citing figures to show that Washington's public health record and its per capita expenditure for public health are both below the Nation's average, Dr. Ruhland observed:

"It may be seen that here, as may be expected, a high mortality attends a low expenditure for health."

Although the Public Health Service recommends a per capita expenditure of $2.50, the District this year has only 97 cents. The District's mortality rate in 1936 was 14.69 per 100,000, while that of the Nation was 10.92 in 1935.

White Mortality 12.47 in 100,000.

Dr. Ruhland stated that, though the large colored population and its higher death rate were partially responsible, the mortality rate among the white population was 12.47.

"In some instances," he said, "death rates for the District are practically twice as high as for the rest of the country generally.

"Among these are deaths from tuberculosis and venereal diseases, with pneumonia a close runner-up."

Dr. Ruhland asked funds to increase the Gallinger Hospital staff from 515 to 589, and explained the hospital had been understaffed for several years, while the number of patients shot upward.

An addition of 124 to the staff at the District tuberculosis sanatoria was proposed to put it into full capacity operation. This would include 34 graduate nurses, 3 medical officers, 6 head nurses and 6 educational assistants.

30 More for Bureau.

The proposed increase in the staff of the department's nursing bureau is from 75 to 105. According to standards of the American Public Health Association, Dr. Ruhland said, the District should have 300 nurses, whereas it has only 150.

An increase from $45,380 to $64,900 for tuberculosis and venereal disease clinics was asked to make the fight on these maladies more effective. More than half of the communicable diseases reported last year, Dr. Ruhland said, were cases of gonorrhea or syphilis.

One-Man Gang, 14, Has Short Career

A 14-year-old boy ended a brief career of crime in the Receiving Home last night after he had assaulted a man with a knife; escaped from the Second Precinct Station and attempted to hold up a delicatessen store.

The boy was arrested following an assault on a janitor in the 1400 block of Rhode Island avenue northwest. Captured and taken to the Second Precinct Station, he escaped from police and a short time later reappeared at the delicatessen store, 1338 Fourteenth street northwest.

There he seized a knife from the counter and tried to hold up a clerk, James Quinn. The clerk grappled with the boy and, although cut, finally managed to hold him for police.

Lone Bandit Gets $90 In Drug Store Holdup

Making his second successive appearance, Washington's dapper lone bandit last night held up a drug store at 1656 Columbia road northwest. He escaped with $90.

Benjamin Bass, manager, was alone when the bandit entered shortly before midnight, drew a revolver and forced Bass to remain quiet while he looted the till.

Brewer Heurich, 95, Completes 69th Round Trip to Fatherland

Cheerful and Chipper After Rest Cure at Wiesbaden, Germany, He Plans to Resume Work; Surprises Voyagers With Activity.

Christian Heurich, who will be 95 on September 12, returned home yesterday after a vacation trip to Germany—his sixty-ninth round trip across the Atlantic.

He took a rest cure at Wiesbaden, and came back feeling cheerful and chipper, so much so that he plans to put in a day's work today at his fortress-like brewery overlooking the Potomac. A day's work with Heurich means arriving in the office at 8 a. m.

With Mrs. Heurich and a party of friends, Heurich left here on July 6 and sailed on the S. S. Europa. They came back on the same liner docking yesterday.

"We had a grand time," Mrs. Heurich said last night at their summer home in west Hyattsville. "Mr. Heurich never suffers from seasickness. He was so active that everybody was surprised to learn his age.

"If he wasn't walking the decks, he usually was playing skat. That's a game of cards. One day he played for five hours—from 2 to 7. Now he's talking about going to the office tomorrow. Am I going to let him? Why, I suppose I'll have to."

Born in Germany, Heurich went to work in a brewery when 14. From the beginning he was determined to become a brewmaster, and a good one. He worked in various breweries in Germany, then went to France and to Austria to study other methods. He came to the United States in 1866, a year after the close of the Civil War and, after working in various cities, founded his brewery here in 1872.

Heurich always had ascribed his long life to moderation.

"I was raised on a beer bottle," he once said. "I take a glass of beer now when I feel like it, but I have always practiced temperance."

He always will think that prohibition, with its indiscriminate drinking of bootleg beverages, destroyed the American's ability to judge beer.

"They can't tell good beer from middling, any more," he said on his ninety-fourth birthday.

Poison Bottle Struck From Woman's Hand

The woman had already swallowed part of the bottle's contents. She was in a serious condition at Gallinger Hospital.

Rialto

With war emblazoned in the headlines of every newspaper, the Rialto brings us a war story, not of men fighting in the trenches but a fast-moving spy drama.

"Dark Journey," a British production, shown for the first time in Washington, offers not only great entertainment but gives the audience a real insight into the vast unseen armies employed by both sides during the World War. The only method of protection these armies were able to use was a cloak of secrecy that at times became so great that its members were unable to tell who their cohorts were and it is around one of these periods that the plot is woven.

Conrad Veidt, who is at his best, is a German spy posing as a debonair deserter from the Germany navy living out his exile in Stockholm, one of the few neutral capitals.

It is in this capacity that he meets Vivien Leigh, a French counter-spy who has been giving the Germans false, irrelevant military information. She poses as a modiste in the Swedish capital.

Veidt portrays a new type of movie hero. He is neither young nor handsome, but he manages to get as many gasps out of the feminine attendance as Gable or Taylor. Vivien Leigh is beautiful, and seems in every way to be living up to the prophecies her British discoverers made about her only a few months ago. B. O.

Over the Andes.

Flying in the shadow of their spotty pasts, a group of devil-may-care aviators whose licenses have been revoked in the States, defy death in a dangerous air service over the Andes Mountains in "Flight From Glory," featuring Chester Morris and Whitney Bourne.

Shakespeare and Howard, Fontanne and Barrymore Are Lined Up for New Season at the National Manager Plohn Divulges Not-Quite-Complete List of Bookings Beginning Sept. 13 With 'Brother Rat;' Robert Montgomery and Tallulah Bankhead Among Stars; 'Love Under Fire' Previewed.

By Gerald G. Gross

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

WITH the first September morn only a few days distant and the opening of Washington's 1937-38 legitimate season not far behind, Manager Edmund Plohn of the National Theater yesterday cracked under a severe grilling and confessed what is in store.

Very well, then, his statement was made without coercion, the confession was more in the nature of a proud inventory-taking and he didn't quite tell all that is in store for the Capital's playgoers. But he did reveal the name of every coming attraction upon which definite commitment can be made. The incomplete roster follows, with the shows due to reach here "more or less in the order named:"

First, as has been announced, "Brother Rat" opens the season on September 13, the original New York company presenting this comedy of military school life. On the next Monday night "Susan and God," the new Rachel Crothers play, comes in with Gertrude Lawrence and Osgood Perkins heading the cast. (Miss Lawrence was here last season with Noel Coward's one-act play cycle, "Tonight at 8:30," and Mr. Perkins has been a fairly frequent visitor at the National.)

"Madame Bovary," marking the Theater Guild's first local invasion of the new season, is scheduled to open October 4. As for what will appear between "Susan and God" and "Madame Bovary," that's still indefinite. The latter stars Constance Cummings, is Gaston Baty's dramatization of the Flaubert novel and is directed by Miss Cummings' husband, Benn W. Levy. It will have its premiere in Washington, opening in New York on October 18.

Next, according to Manager Plohn's outline, comes a dash of Ibsen in the form of "A Doll's House," with Ruth Gordon. Ibsen, you know, is—or should be—the patron saint of Eugene O'Neill.

On October 18, which would be the following week, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne storm the citadel in the Guild's "Amphitryon 38." S. N. Behrman did the adaptation from the French of Jean Giraudoux and a breezy job he did, from reports of the show as produced in San Francisco and Los Angeles last spring. "Amphitryon 38" probably will play a few days at Ford's, Baltimore, before coming here. From Washington it will be taken to Cleveland before opening in New York on November 2.

Well, sir, the season will continue to unwind with "Leaning on Letty," which will mark Charlotte Greenwood's first appearance on a local stage in a very, very long time, unless we are very, very much mistaken; "Tovarich," with the New York cast; Margaret Sullavan in "Stage Door;" "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle," another Guild production.

The last named, it should be noted, stars Ethel Barrymore and is Sidney Howard's first original play since 1932. Dudley Digges, Elizabeth Young and Donald Cook will be included in the strong supporting cast.

To continue, Maurice Evans' successful "King Richard II" of last season will come next, at least approximately followed by Max Gordon's production of that much talked about drama of last year on Broadway, "The Women;" Robert Montgomery (yes, the movie Montgomery) in "Nearly A Murder," and Sam H. Harris' production of the Pulitzer prize-winner, "You Can't Take It With You." Next, Tallulah Bankhead in "Anthony and Cleopatra," with Conway Tearle as Anthony (guess who plays Cleo!); "Having A Wonderful Time," the comedy that put Broadway in stitches; another comedy, "Yes, My Darling Daughter;" still another comedy, "Room Service," and, eventually, Katharine Cornell at the conclusion of her world tour.

"What," you exclaim, "no musical comedies or revues!" Well, the bookings are not yet completed, nevertheless you need not be surprised if the National has very few—possibly none at all—of either this year. Both were mighty scarce last season and, with the movies grinding out bigger and better "Varsity Shows" and "Broadway Melodies" and "Vogues," etc., they are certain to be still less numerous during the approaching year.

Yesterday's formal inspection of the National's improved interior was eminently successful, for not only did the new seats turn out to be divinely comfortable but the sliced tongue, potato salad and all their other platter-fellows were delicious. And it would be a serious omission not to add that Manager Plohn was a gracious host and that the frieze wall-covering is no longer a soiled yellow but now a pleasant shade of red, harmonizing nicely with the seats. The latter number 1,697, a slight reduction from the house's previous capacity. And speaking of things not to forget to mention, "The Life of Emile Zola" opens the new New National, as it were, at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

A satisfying comedy which you will have forgotten already when you are leaving the theater but which will provide an hour and a quarter of good, clean amusement is coming to the Capitol tomorrow. We know because we previewed it yesterday at the Fox exchange.

It is called "Love Under Fire" and its stars are Loretta Young and Don Ameche and the boy meets the girl on a train bound for Spain. He is a Scotland Yardman on vacation, she a social secretary fleeing a crime—but it is that kind of a plot that should not be exposed in advance.

Ameche is showing phenomenal improvement as a screen actor. Loretta Young looks younger and prettier than ever. Indeed, "Love Under Fire" should be good box office from every aspect, with its peculiar mixture of quasi-melodrama, comedy and mouth organ specialties by Borrah Minevitch and his gang.

* * * *

Rain or no rain, "A Texas Steer" continues to thrive at the Roadside Theater with its two-week run about a quarter over. Just the same, the company is looking ahead to "Murder in the Red Barn," favorite Roadside production of many patrons, which will be revived on Labor Day as the group's final presentation of the season. Three members of the original cast which did the piece for the first time in the Roadsiders' barn back in 1934 or thereabouts will resume their roles. They are Eugene Kressin, as the villainous William Corder; Janet Coon and Fred Haskin. Harold Minor, Margaret Osterwald and Karl Gay will take the same characterizations they had in the company's second production of the nineteenth century melodrama. (This one will be the third.)

* * * *

The Loew-down from Ray Bell:—

Willie Howard, whose Fra-a-anch pronunciation convulses his fans, dominates the two-reeler called "The Affairs of Pierre," which will be part of the screen trimmings for "Love Under Fire" at the Capitol next week. Willie appears too briefly in "Broadway Melody of 1938," now at the Palace.

It's a girl at the James Mathews'. He is chief of the Capitol's service staff. Mother and daughter are doing well in Columbia Hospital.

Five years ago Ann Shirley played the child Barbara Stanwyck in the film "So Big." Unknown then, Miss Shirley today is a featured player in "Stella Dallas," which also stars Miss Stanwyck and which comes to the Palace next month.

Johnny Perkins arrived in town last night, just in time to be drafted as a judge for the talent hunt at the Wardman Park tonight. He and Sheilah Barrett co-headline the Capitol's new stage bill.

Sam Wheeler, of the Twentieth Century-Fox Exchange, is handling tickets for the Variety Club's testimonial dinner to Gene Ford next Monday night at the Willard. District 8420 is Mr. Wheeler's phone number.

* * * *

Leslie Howard, his work completed in Walter Wanger's "Stand In," was scheduled to sail for London yesterday aboard the Queen Mary at the same time countryman Raymond Massey was arriving at Newark Airport preparatory to taking the next ship for England. Howard is headed for the Alexander Korda Studios, where he will play the title role in "Lawrence of Arabia."

Riding the caboose . . . "The Life of the Party," an all-laugh special with Joe Penner, Gene Raymond, Parkyakarkus, Victor Moore, Harriet Hilliard, Helen Broderick and others, will follow "Make a Wish" at RKO-Keith's . . . Ian Hunter, who loves Kay Francis in the Earle's "Confession," came to this country with an English stage production of "School for Scandal" . . . frustrated by rain, "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" won't be presented in the Monument grounds before next week, if then . . . a radio set in the Trans-Lux lounge will broadcast the account of the Louis-Farr fight tonight . . . Paul Robeson may have been an All-American football player at Rutgers but he is a Zulu warrior in "King Solomon's Mines," opening at the Metropolitan tomorrow . . . "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "The Stolen Prince" will wind up the dramatic season of Roosevelt Community Center tonight and tomorrow night.

* * * *

Saw "The Spanish Earth" last night, along with several hundred others in the Press Club Auditorium. Space limitations demand a brief review. The six-reeler is frankly Loyalist propaganda, has some good camera shots, is dull for long stretches, contains little of a "horror" nature (as most had expected) and, in sum, amounts to about 6,000 feet of war newsreel clipped together.

Newcomer in "Dark Journey"

This face is better known in London than it is in Washington, for it belongs to Vivien Leigh, a favorite in British pictures but who only yesterday made her screen debut here in "Dark Journey," which opened at the Rialto. She plays opposite Conrad Veidt in this story of rival wartime spies.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Aug. 25.

ARTHUR MENKEN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanwood Menken, who was wounded while taking newspaper photographs in Madrid this year, left New York secretly by plane. He'll take the Clipper to China. His destination is Shanghai . . . Now that Mervyn LeRoy has stepped out of the United Artists deal, last night's report was that Harry Warner is buying Sam Goldwyn's interest in U. A. . . . A. C. Blumenthal is said to be engineering the deal for $15,000,000. The bankers involved expect to be paid off at the rate of $250,000 a week . . . The cabaret squad, formed to thwart jewel robberies in night clubs, has been ordered to stay out of cabarets—and do all their sleuthing from the outside.

* * * *

HAROLD S. VANDERBILT, who successfully defended the America's Cup, is a perennial rival of the Four Aces—world's champion contract bridge team. Vanderbilt was unable to enter a team in the recent National Bridge Tourney, at Asbury Park, because the dates conflicted with the yacht races. When the tourney was over and the Four Aces won, they wired Vanderbilt: "This, too, was easy sailing."

* * * *

THE MARCH OF TIME, in recording the Chinese-Japanese situation, sent its cameramen to the Associated Press here to photograph the newspapermen studying reports of the strained situation. Time didn't march on, for the cameramen blew a fuse and disrupted the A. P.'s wire service for almost two hours.

* * * *

MOSS HART regaled his friends with fanciful descriptives of his new 87-acre estate in Pennsylvania. A listener later asked George S. Kaufman: "Does Moss tell the truth?" . . . "He does," Kaufman replied, "but I don't think he can stand a withering cross-examination!"

* * * *

L. WOLFE GILBERT arrived from Hollywood to attend the Songwriters Protective Association meeting at the Astor today with regard to the ban on wired music. Gilbert has the proxies of Irving Berlin, Sigmund Romberg, Jerome Kern and almost all of the other movie tunesmiths . . . Arrangements now are being completed for Maurice Chevalier's appearance in the new Ziegfeld Follies. Chevalier will not open in that show. He will be used to bolster it after it first has had a long run . . . The International Casino premiere has been postponed again. Berenson & Cohen are the newest investors there—$50,000.

* * * *

THEODORE DREISER, who now is at Bedford Hall, in Cold Springs, is living in the firehouse there! . . . Billy Rose took a seven-minute ride in the Tunnel of Love, at Coney Island, last week . . . Sidney Rayner, of the Met, will portray Enrico Caruso in the screening of the opera star's biography. Final arrangements are awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Caruso.

* * * *

THE TOTAL RECEIPTS from Dick Merrill's coronation flight, including testimonials, movie appearances, stamps, etc., now amount to $60,000—which is exactly the cost of the plane and the expense of installing additional gas tanks . . . George Marshall, the Washington sportsman who was brought to Dallas to produce the centennial show this year, practically has been stripped of his authority . . . The final scene in "Zola" has Anatole France saying: "He was for a moment in the conscience of man"—which makes little sense. The Hollywood Theater displays that quote. What Anatole France really said was: "He was for a moment the conscience of man."

* * * *

THE PAPERS published photos of the two young ladies who hid under the bed in Robert Taylor's stateroom in an attempt to stow away so that they could get the screen star's autograph. The girls were placed there by Mel Heyman and Milton Weiss—of M-G-M's publicity department . . . A socialite forgot his false teeth at "21" and was too embarrassed to call for their return . .

Talent Contest.

Agriculture, Interior, Treasury, REA, ICC and Farm Credit will fight it out in the Quest for Talent finals at the Wardman Park tonight. Lined up before the NBC microphone will be: Barytone, Gordon Barnes; tap dancer, Bob Mahoney; blues singer, Amy Orent; ballad singer, Enid Mitchell; violinist, Bernard Slebes, and impersonator Louis Pike, all singing and tapping and impersonating in the hope of winning a three-day all-expense junket to New York.

Ghost Walks.

Editor Joseph D. Cooper, of the Agriculture Exchange, offers this explanation to a reader curious about the origin of the pay-day adage, "the ghost walks!"

"If you remember your 'Hamlet,' you may recollect something about a ghost. Itinerant players in the early part of the last century and before used this scene to 'impart culture to families of the backwoods,' who usually thronged to see this form of drama. The total admission price was divided among the players as salary.

"Ergo—when pay-day comes, the 'ghost walks.'"

N. F. F. E. will organize a Friday night bowling league at a meeting to be held in the federation rooms tonight at 7:30. Plans will be made and officers elected. Teams already have been organized in several departments, but thre are still openings.

Two long-time Commerce employes will be retired September 1. Frank W. Litchfield, in the foreign and domestic commerce division, has been with the department 30 years, 10 months and 20 days. Arthur S. Hull, of the Patent Office, has served 25 years.

The A. F. G. E. urges prompt action if you're planning to go on one of its Labor Day excursions to New York or Philadelphia. Call in person at Room 720 in the Washington Loan & Trust Building, 900 F street northwest, between 4 and 6 p. m. any day next week to make reservations.

Mummy.

Several centuries ago a prehistoric miner had an unfortunate encounter with a 5-ton rock in Mammoth Cave, Kentucky. The incident proved fatal to the miner, but was a lucky break for the National Park Service. The peculiar atmosphere of the cave preserved the mummy until it was discovered recently by CCC workers. It now rests in a waterproof, rustproof exhibition case and attracts as many as 2,000 persons to the cave daily. During July Mammoth Cave National Park's receipts were 107 per cent higher than during July, 1934, and the same month a nearby hotel reaped 288 per cent more business than it did three years ago.

Philatelists who want first-rate issues of the special stamp to be placed on sale September 17 in commemoration of the 150th birthday of the Constitution can get them at the Philatelic Agency here September 18.

First-day sales of the 5-cent Virginia Dare stamp at the Manteo (N. C.) postoffice last week amounted to $15,850.

Appointments.

Three major offices vacant for some time in the Bureau of Reclamation have been filled. Roy B. Williams comes from western projects to fill the position of assistant Commissioner. J. Kennard Cheadle, associate professor of law at Syracuse University, will become chief counsel and assistant to the Commissioner in September. Cheadle was assistant solicitor in the Interior Department from 1933 to 1935. Wesley R. Nelson, engineer at Boulder Dam before coming to Washington last year, was appointed chief engineer in the Washington office.

Those photographs at the entrance to the Interior Cafe and in North Building are the work of Hyman Greenberg and Frank Werner. Artist Milton Tinsley framed them.

"Employee" or "employe?" Uncle Sam prefers the former.

These and other questions you may have wondered about are answered in an abridged Style Manual for correct Government usage, obtainable from the Superintendent of Documents for 20 cents. Covers compounding, hyphenization, capitalization, use of numerals, abbreviations and many, many other puzzles.

Mississippi Beauty To Lead Tour Here

Miss Elaine Russell, pretty auburn-haired Mississippi girl who won the national title of Miss American Legion at Miami, Fla., will arrive in Washington with a caravan of floats September 15, it was announced yesterday.

The floats will represent Mississippi history, recreation, cotton, dairying and industry. The tour will end in New York with a big parade, which Miss Russell will lead on September 21.

Forty-five Post newspaper boys grin in anticipation of a 2-day holiday in Atlantic City which they won as a result of their high rating in a circulation contest. 5 U. S. Agencies Acquiring New Housing Space

Expanding records and increased activities have forced acquisition of additional housing space for several Government agencies, it was announced yesterday by Clay J. Guthridge, chief of the Government's space-control unit.

The Social Security Board has rented the three top floors of a garage at 1114 Vermont avenue for files and storage.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue division concerned with collecting social security taxes has taken the buildings at 2303 Fourteenth street for files and storage, at the same time continuing to hold space at 1331 U street.

The National Labor Relations Board next month will move to the Shoreham Building, where it will occupy 20,000 square feet of space, in comparison with the 12,000 square feet it now has at 1010 Vermont avenue.

The National Bituminous Coal Commission, now located at 1511 K street, has leased 60,000 square feet of space at 734 Fifth street, and will move there as soon as the building is completed.

The Battle Monuments Commission has moved from three small rooms in the Commerce Department Building to three large rooms in the new Postoffice Department Building.

1,200 Midshipmen at Annapolis After Summer Practice Cruise

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 25.—Three battleships, a gunboat and six destroyers anchored off the Naval Academy today, bringing approximately 1,200 midshipmen back from summer practice cruises to Europe and along the Atlantic Coast.

The battleships, New York, Arkansas and Wyoming, with the New York flying the flag of Rear-Admiral Wilson Brown, squadron commander, arrived in Annapolis Roads, 6 miles out from the academy, shortly before midnight. On board were about 1,000 midshipmen members of the senior and sophomore classes at the academy.

The midshipmen left here on June 4, the day after the annual graduation ceremonies. They have been to Kiel, Germany; Funchal, Maderia, and Tor Bay, England. When they left they were scheduled to visit Athens, Greech, and Livorno, Italy, but their itinerary was shifted with the increase of Spanish war activity in the Mediterranean.

The academy saluting battery fired a 13-gun salute for Admiral Brown this morning. The New York returned a 7-gun salute for Capt. Bryson Bruce, acting superintendent of the academy.

The gunboat Erie, and the destroyers J. Fred Talbott, Roper, Fairfax, Jacob Jones, Claxton and Manley arrived about noon, with 200 members of the junior class of midshipment who had made a month's cruise to the Navy Proving Grounds, Dahlgren, Va., Newport, R. I., and New York City.

After landing their midshipmen the destroyers Claxton, J. Fred Talbott, Roper, Jacob Jones and Fairfax steamed out of the harbor for Hampton Roads, Va.

Immediately after the landing of the midshipmen from the battleships tomorrow the entire senior, junior and sophomore classes will be granted leave until 10 a. m. September 24.

The freshmen class, composed of 550 midshipmen, sworn in during the summer will have the academy to themselves until September 6, when 81 members of the Navy varsity football squad report to begin fall practice.

Cent-a-Ton Levy Asked to Finance Coal Advertising

The American Retail Coal Association is urging the National Bituminous Coal Commission, now holding public meetings at the Carlton Hotel, to amend its regulations to allow an appropriation by the coal industry of several hundred thousand dollars for newspaper advertising, it was learned yesterday.

The association, believing that the facts of the industry have never been adequately explained to the consuming public, asks that the mine operators allocate 1 cent per ton for advertising purposes. To permit this, it seeks to amend a provision of the code which would, in effect, prohibit mine operators from participating in co-operative advertising campaigns.

In a statement submitted to the commission, E. W. Dobson, chairman of the board of the association, declared that to his knowledge the bituminous coal industry is "the only major industry in the United States which places upon its retail outlets the burden of industry advertising."

The industry, he said, "must recognize that deliberately planned day-in-and day-out advertising is required by competitive conditions."

Washingtonian Is Honored by Good Templars

J. Raymond Schmidt, of Washington, was elected grand counselor of the International Order of Good Templars, Grand Lodge of Maryland, Virginia and the District at the annual meeting at Poplar Springs, Md., yesterday. C. H. McElfresh, of Monrovia, Md., was elected grand chief templar.

Schmidt, representing the National Capital Lodge of Washington, became national superintendent of legislative work in July, 1936. He is also general superintendent of the National Civic League and associate editor of the National Voice, tabloid temperance weekly published in Los Angeles.

"The new liquor traffic," the report asserted, "has made barmaids of 1,200,000 American girls."

Other officers elected, besides McElfresh and Schmidt, who also was named a deputy international templar, were Miss Flora Felming, Mount Airy, Md., grand vice templar; Laura R. Church, Washington, grand superintendent of legislative work; Mrs. May Bowman, Poplar Springs, Md., grand superintendent of juvenile work; Raymond E. Hardy, Poplar Springs, Md., grand secretary; F. Lillian Rodenhi, Baltimore, grand assistant secretary; George T. Rodenhi, Baltimore, grand treasurer; the Rev. Charles E. Subock, jr., Mount Airy, Md., grand treasurer, and Harold Watkins, Monrovia, Md., grand marshal.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Aug. 25. — Settin' Around (Columbia): Harry Cohn is the Mighty Mogul of this up and coming studio. A dozen years ago he was producing "quickies" on PovertyRow and no one in Hollywood would have given a plugged nickel for his chances of crashing the big time. Once a quickie producer, always a quickie producer, Hollywood believed. But Harry Cohn had a strange idea. He believed that a man could succeed by producing good pictures.

JEAN ARTHUR.

Harry is a Hollywood heretic. Instead of subscribing to the ancient custom of placing players under contract, he has gone into the open market and hired his stars, when needed. And he has made some of our Great Ones look very silly by taking the stars that they discarded and making them ace box-office attractions. Grace Moore had made two flop pictures for M-G-M . . in fact, because of her M-G-M disasters, Hollywood had arbitrarily decided that both Grace and musical pictures were out. Harry took Grace and made a picture called, "One Night of Love." It grossed a couple of million, made her tops on the screen, and started a cycle. He took Jean Arthur, another Hollywood failure, and made her a great star. Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert were both slipping at their own studios when Cohn sent their stock soaring skyward with "It Happened One Night." Ronald Colman was on the skids when he signed for "Lost Horizon." Gary Cooper was in the doldrums when "Mr. Deeds" brought him back to the top with a rush.

At the Columbia Ranch, watched the filming of location scenes for "The Awful Truth," costarring Irene Dunne and Cary Grant. Irene was riding a motorcycle with more courage than skill. Between scenes, she worried. Director Ray McCarey, and I tried to console her by citing the thousands of people who ride those infernal contrapions without suffering anything worse than an occasional broken leg, but Irene was not to be comforted. "'I had a dream last night," she said. "I was riding that awful, thing down a crowded boulevard with hundreds of cars following me, blowing their horns and . . ." "Eureka!" shouted Ray. "That's just the ending we have been looking for—we'll close the picture that way!"

Realism is king on the "Park Avenue Dame" set. This morning Scott Colton, a newcomer in pictures, had to stage a fight scene with Richard Arlen. The boys battered one another around half-heartedly for a few takes while Director Al Rogell stood behind the camera and made sarcastic comment. Gradually their blows began to pick up steam. "Get in there and rough it up," Rogell sneered. "You act like a couple of sissies doing the love waltz!"

At that precise moment Dick launched a punch that started floor-high and landed flush on Colton's jaw. Scott dropped as though he had been pole-axed. "Fine," said Rogell. "That's something like it. Get up Scott and we'll do it again!" But Scott did not get up. He was out cold —with a dislocated jaw. Shooting will be resumed in a couple of days—they hope.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month.

You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

FIRST PICTURES OF SHANGHAI BATTLE

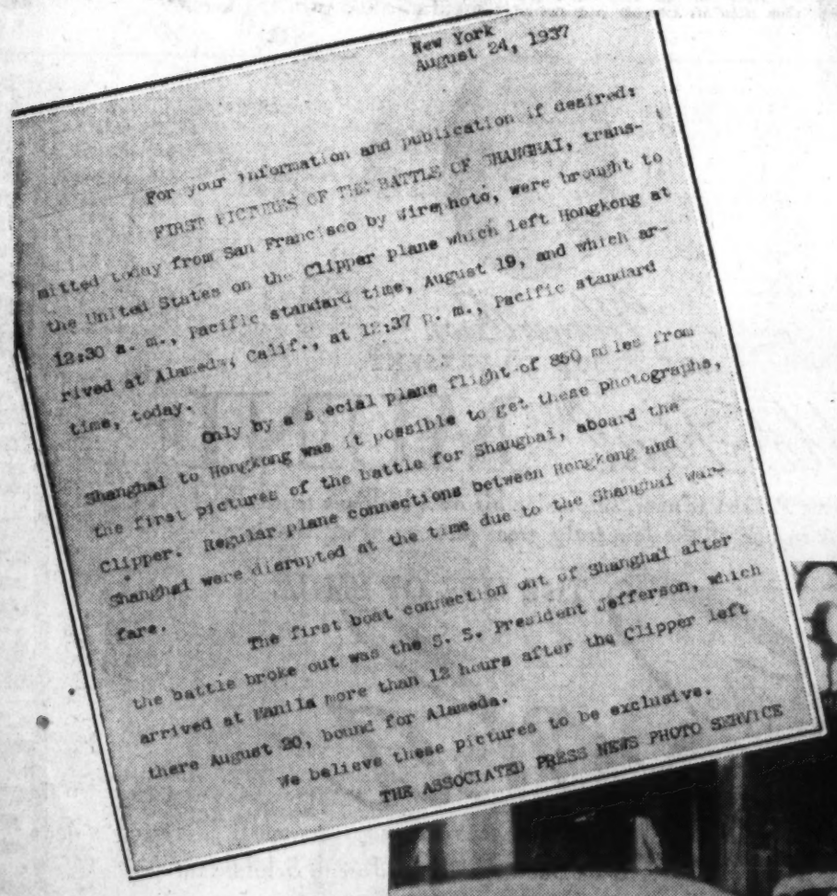

140 Hours From Shanghai to Washington

By Special Plane, China Clipper, and Wirephoto

New York
August 24, 1937

For your information and publication if desired:

FIRST PICTURES OF THE BATTLE OF SHANGHAI, transmitted today from San Francisco by Wirephoto, were brought to the United States on the Clipper plane which left Hongkong at 12:30 a. m., Pacific standard time, August 19, and which arrived at Alameda, Calif., at 12:37 p. m., Pacific standard time, today.

Only by a special plane flight of 850 miles from Shanghai to Hongkong was it possible to get these photographs, the first pictures of the battle for Shanghai, aboard the Clipper. Regular plane connections between Hongkong and Shanghai were disrupted at the time due to the Shanghai warfare.

The first boat connection out of Shanghai after the battle broke out was the S. S. President Jefferson, which arrived at Manila more than 12 hours after the Clipper left there August 20, bound for Alameda.

We believe these pictures to be exclusive.

Quality Urges As Best Guide For Purchases

Lasting Models Available Which Combine Latest Modes.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

SHOES are of paramount importance in the college girls' wardrobe. Because of the strenuous life she leads, there cannot be too many pairs of shoes, if they are chosen with discretion to meet every requirement of the campus, schoolroom and social life. In planning a shoe wardrobe, quality as well as style trends should be taken into consideration.

Shoes should wear well and at the same time possess a maximum of smartness. Since the modern college miss is a criterion among the younger set for fashion trends and style vagaries, she will want to select footwear which is the last word in the fall and winter modes.

Campus shoes have gone style-conscious without losing any of their comfort. Gone are the sloppy, flat-heeled, shapeless footwear of former seasons. There are a number of interesting campus versions from which to make a choice. Newest are the "softies," those popular boxless toes of suede or calf, with sturdy heels and soles and perforated vamps. Oxford ties of suede or bucko contrasted with reptile leathers or calf and equipped with detachable tongues are other campus favorites.

Football Styles.

For football games, to accompany tailored suits or spectator sports tweeds, there are chic looking shoes in suede, or calf, designed with clever details and medium heels. High-heeled suede step-ins, ornamented with illusion bands of grosgrain ribbon, or smart tongues which are lashed down to the foot, are almost college requirements, to wear to teas, informal dances and other "dressy" school festivities. They are styled to complement the new short skirts, high necklines, corselet waistlines and pencil silhouettes. The classic opera pump is also in this category, appearing in a number of fascinating new versions.

Dancing gowns require lovely shoes in the same theme. These may be of silver or gold kid, or one of these rich colors combined with satin dyed to match the gown, or brocades in vari-colored themes. Styles in evening shoes are as numerous and alluring as they are in the fall and winter evening attire. With skirt hems in the majority of cases higher in front than in back, or styled in the popular ankle length, shoes are coming in for a lot more scrutiny. Hence, it is necessary this year to be able to put your best foot forward, or mar the entire effect of an otherwise effective ensemble.

Shoe Pointers.

Whether or not the college girl can select an extensive shoe wardrobe, or because of a limited budget must adhere to a minimum number of pairs, here are a number of pointers she will want to know about:

Practically all shoes are high-throated this fall; there is a tendency toward flaring lines; soft toes are news in both sports and dress shoes; grosgrain trimming is much in evidence on all types of footwear; heels are of varying heights; combinations of leather are popular; side effects are new and smart; tongues cling to the foot to give an illusion of slimness; footwear may match or contrast with the costume; feet in the 1937-38 manner must be trim, chic and slender appearing.

Here is a modern young miss off to college in a chic frock of black acele crepe. Her shoe wardrobe consists of:

White satin and gold kid evening shoes.

Chic medium-heeled suede shoes (top), for football games and the schoolroom, with high-throated vamp, and criss-cross design in patent leather (note smart side cut-out treatment).

Suede shoes for dressy occasions, with the new illusion grosgrain bands and cut low on one side only.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Should She Return? Asks Wife Who Left Husband Because His Speech, Manner, Occupation Shame Her.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 28 years old, have been married nearly eight years and have a 6-year-old child. I have always worked and am the independent rather than the self-sacrificing type. I feel I would be sacrificing a lot if I continued to live with my husband. We have been separated for three years and now he wants me to "come back." I don't know just how to state the case so I won't seem to unspeakably snobbish.

* * * *

My husband is a good man, hardworking, faithful, doesn't drink nor gamble to excess and is fine in many ways. I want to give him full credit. He is following in his father's footsteps and there could be no more honorable pattern, as I consider his father an unusually fine man. It is hard for me to say—but I despise my husband's means of livelihood! . . . He is always dirty. I didn't know this when I married him but even if I had I would have gone ahead, because my mother practically engineered the marriage, and he is a splendid fellow.

* * * *

When we go out I am always embarrassed because his hands are dirty. He simply can't get them clean. His manner is uncouth and his English is very poor. He doesn't know when to stop talking and is often a bore. In short, he has absolutely no culture or polish. His working clothes are filthy; he has to be coaxed into a bath and there is always a layer of dirt in the tub, on the floor and everywhere. He never picks up his clothes and has other unmentionable habits.

* * * *

"I have cultivated a circle of well-educated, well-bred friends into which I am ashamed to take my husband. It's an intolerable situation and I feel like an ungrateful and unworthy person to say these things, but I feel I simply must. My husband has never had to assume financial responsibility for myself and our child, because I have always worked. This may be why he still loves me. I have never asked him for anything and have bought everything for the baby.

* * * *

Please don't get the idea that I am "snooty" or consider myself better than my husband but there is a definite need in life for a little culture and good manners and my husband has neither. For instance: We were invited to a violin recital recently and my husband accompanied me reluctantly. Afterward he scoffed at the idea that anyone enjoyed it. He openly remarked that all who attended were "fourflushers." Of course, I was humiliated but I couldn't explain to these people that they didn't understand him; that underneath his crude exterior is the spirit of a fine and honorable man.

* * * *

What shall I do? Shall I divorce him and utterly wreck his life? Or stick to him and sacrifice myself? I am certain I do not love him; but I feel so sorry for him and pity, they say, is akin to love. Perhaps in later years his steadfast and loyal companionship would compensate for our living in a lower social strata than I now aspire to. Am I silly and do I magnify the importance of background? He is worthy of a wife who corresponds to his mother—a hard-working, illiterate woman whose entire life and interests are her home and family. I wish I were like that but I am not. Should I try to be? To reform him is impossible. I have tried. I shall anxiously await your answer. If I deserve a good "bawling out" I know you'll give it to me. Yours truly, MISMATED.

* * * *

The Preservative Instinct.

DEAR MISMATED: Tennyson, in his poem, "Locksley Hall," discusses the marriage of persons unequally mated, and paints a picture of what is likely to happen in these words:

"Yet it shall be: thou shalt lower to his level day by day,
What is fine within thee growing coarse to sympathize with clay.
As the husband is, the wife is:
thou art mated with a clown,
And the grossness of his nature will have weight to drag thee down."

* * * *

No doubt it was sheer instinct to escape such a fate as this which drove you to leave your husband in the first place. Therefore, I believe it would be folly to return to him. I doubt that his life would be wrecked if you burn the bridge you have already crossed. On the contrary, I believe it would make for his greater happiness in the long run. I believe that his own instinct for survival would prompt him to seek a more suitable wife to take your place; one who can respect and love him for all his praiseworthy qualities and never realize or concern herself about his lack of those intellectual and cultural qualities which are so tremendously important to you.

* * * *

If you have fastidious habits, esthetic tastes, a responsive imagination and a talent for living graciously, you are not being at all silly in giving these gifts full play. Background is every bit as important as the individual conceives it to be. I don't advise you to try to conform to your husband's way of living for the reason that I don't believe you could conform, in the long run, any more successfully than he has been able to conform to your standards. Sooner or later, you would revolt again, and the next time the revolt might take a more undesirable form than simply leaving him.

* * * *

You owe it to your child to give him the best type of rearing, the most gracious home background, that you can give him. It is a sorry thing for a child to grow up in a household where he must divide allegiance between two parents who have nothing whatever in common, either in social or mental interests or objectives. It is better for the child that such a situation be cleared up definitely before he is old enough to be emotionally hurt by the cleavage, or overt or covert strife. M. H.

Clothes for Men Are Predicted as Baggier, Brighter

What kind of clothes will the men of the future wear?

Exponents of dress reform for men have long been discussing that question and now they seem to have gotten down to some concrete prophecies. A competition for ideas on more comfortable dress for men, sponsored by the Men's Dress Reform Party of England, brought forth some startling creations. Contestants appeared in everything from tennis shorts to costumes of Spanish bull fighters.

While none of the entries met with the wholehearted approval of the judges, they indicated several trends that were interesting. One was toward bagginess. The other was toward greater ornamentation.

The slogan of the Men's Dress Reform Party is "Fewer, lighter, cleaner, brighter clothes." Its platform includes free necks, showing of the knees, and elimination of collar studs. It condemns plus fours as the "silliest, baggiest bifurcations" ever invented.

Pleasant Homes

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

YESTERDAY a lady came to tea whom we'd met in China. And we haven't been able to get down to earth since because she reminded us of enchanting weeks we once spent in Peking. And recalled a visit we'd had in a beautiful home just a stone's throw from the walls of the Forbidden City.

It was the home of a Mrs. W. J. Calhoun, widow of a former American Minister to China. A lovely little white-haired lady is Mrs. Calhoun, who wore the softest of white Chinese brocaded silk and made a dramatic picture against the brilliance of the old Chien Lung palace, that she had bought and renovated for her home. Like all such places, it nestled behind a drab stone wall that presented a non-committal front to the outside world. You entered this wall through a brilliant red gate guarded by an antique doorman who peeked at you first through a little slot in the side wall. Inside the wall, the rooms of the house wandered hither and yon around through flowering courtyards, so that each room had windows on opposite sides and sometimes on a third side.

The ceilings of the various rooms were brilliantly painted in characteristic Peking palace designs, usually emerald green in tile-like squares, with elaborate motifs in crimson and gold and white and blue and purple. It may sound barbaric, but the effect was quite magnificent. Most of the wood trim of the room was in the same brilliant red and the walls were hung with antique fabrics, fine old scrolls and panels, these mostly in antique parchment tones, very mellowed in effect.

The furniture was partly carved Chinese blackwood, but not so dragon-y as we usually see in this country, and combined in such a way as to seem very tranquil and pleasant. Mrs. Calhoun's bed was probably the most beautiful piece she had. This was an old one of a light fruitwood, carved like lace with posters and a carved canopy.

Too often Oriental furniture in America seems rather stuffy and heavy, but that's because it isn't used properly. In Mrs. Calhoun's home it was so beautifully co-ordinated and in such a perfect setting, that the effect was something breath-takingly beautiful, yet with a certain tranquility that is the essence of every Chinese home.

Reds, Browns Lead In Drapery Colors

A review of the New York Curtain and Drapery Show recently held in New York shows that reds, browns and rust tones lead in drapery fabrics. Among the glass curtains, white, cream and ecru are still the favorites, but there are some in a wide range of solid colors. Horizontal stripes in shades of a single color are also seen.

As to fabrics, there are more brocades than any other type. Some chintzes are being shown, also some reps and moired poplins and bengalines with large multicolored floral prints with a wide range of background colors. Many rayons in drapery and bedspread fabrics are shown, some rayon in glass curtains—also marquisette and net.

Styles featured show that among the glass curtains there was a greater percentage of ruffled type than tailored. Among the draperies there are some with fringes—mostly made of rayon—but the majority of them are plain.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Articulate Speech.

Children may be unable to speak properly because of physical defects. Impaired hearing is one. A child's articulate speech usually begins at the age of 9 months, but parents need not worry if the child does not talk before the age of 2 years, provided the delay is not due to impaired hearing. After two to two and a half years, however, there is something wrong if the child does not begin to speak.

Sometimes the deficiency is due to defects in the central nervous system, or muscular inco-ordination of the vocal cords.

A pleasant speaking voice depends upon good hearing and the environment of pleasant speaking voices. As to what is a pleasant voice, we have the votes of a number of college students.

Answering the question: "Are you well satisfied with your speech as it is?" about one-fourth of any group responds "yes" and about three-fourths "no."

"In what way would you like to improve it?" was answered, aside from a small number who stuttered or lisped and naturally wanted to eliminate those faults, by a desire for these qualities: Enunciation, voice and tone quality, slower speech, distinctness, poise, clearness, diction, volume, fluency, lower pitch, pronunciation.

"Do you like to talk?" is generally answered in the affirmative.

The peculiarities in the voice of others most readily noticed is in the order named: Pronunciation, personality, foreign accent and loudness.

"What can you tell about a person from his speech?" is answered thus by a group of college students: Education, affectation, culture or refinement, where the speaker comes from, character, breeding, environment, training, intelligence, interests, social status, sense of humor, interest in subject, moods, politeness, type, leadership.

"The pleasantest voice you know?" has the following characteristics according to different people: Low pitch, clear, soft, well modulated, animated, mellow, vibrant, rich, resonant, expressive, quiet, slow, good enunciation, distinctness, good diction, musical.

Questions From Readers.

E. G.: "How can cancer of the breast be relieved in its earliest stages?"

Answer: Sampson Handley, of London, recently wrote as follows:

"The most important of all the problems of breast cancer, and perhaps the one which has received the least attention, is how to prevent the disease. How can the fatal progress from simple lymphstasis to carcinoma be arrested? It is impossible to re-establish the potency of the blocked lymphatic channels, and so to restore the normal environment of the tissues of the breast. But fortunately we can administer to the abnormally stimulated tissues a dose of radiation sufficient to depress without destroying their vitality and proliferative activity.

"In the Practitioner for April, 1910, the reviewer advocated the X-ray treatment of chronic mastitis. It is frqeuently followed by disappearance of the mastitic induration and by relief of pain. Only a short course of treatment is required, but the radiation should be of high voltage (180,000). Since the introduction of high voltage X-rays, out of some hundreds of cases, I have not observed a single one in which a carcinoma subsequently developed in the radiated breast. It seems a fair inference that we now possess a weapon which, properly employed, is able to prevent breast cancer."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 25.

THE LONG-FEARED hour has struck with a loud, terrifying clang! Our fair (well, middling) city has been attacked from the air! Not even our gallant troops on Governors Island just off the Aquarium, have been able to do anything about it, save suffer themselves!

ALICE HUGHES.

Yes, it has happened. The Japanese beetles, for several years the scourge of Jersey's gardeners, have crossed the Hudson and are upon us, fangs bared. And, as is usually the case, fate being what it is, the chief sufferers are the unhappy rich in their cloud-scraping pent-houses! Hardly a begonia remains in many of these lofty garden-spots, and the masters' putting-greens have been gnawed right down to the sod by the Japanese gnashers!

The beetles have also had the incredible audacity to attack Mr. Jack Rockefeller's Center Gardens of All Nations, on the eleventh floor setback of the huge RCA Building, with a force of only a battalion. Encouraged by this success, they sent a whole division against the pretty gardens on Governors Island, Manhattan's military post held by the Eighteenth Infantry of the dandy First Division. The geraniums along Officers' Row are now only tragic stalks! What sort of army is this, that can't lick a few beastly beetles, we taxpayers ask? How about a few beetle-guns, Mr. Secretary of War?

But, ha, ha, we poor folks are doing better. I managed to snatch my two potted plants from the fire-escape before they were nipped and the park department boys tell me that constant spraying of their trees and shrubs has largely foiled the foul invaders! So again the wealthy suffer. Must be a Red plot.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Our newest institution of higher learning for the girls. The School for Fashion Careers, is buzzing merrily on its campus at 9 Rockefeller Plaza. The first semester starts September 13, with Mrs. Elizabeth Burris-Meyers, late of New York University, as dean, under the joint directorship of Miss Tobe and Julia Coburn. Many big New York stores are giving $700 scholarships, the winners chosen by fashion test. Seems about 75 students will toe the mark to qualify for good jobs in the fashion world . . .

Dorothy Parker, fast-cracking poetess turned movie scripter, was a cute sight as she scrambled aboard the Normandie the other day with her young spouse, Alan Campbell. She wore a peasant getup—a white waist, a flaring skirt and a big-brimmed, high-crowned straw hat—no doubt because she now owns an old farm just over the Pennsylvania line! Miss Constance Bennett, Connie to you, was also aboard, much more social than she used to be with the bedraggled, cringing slaveys of the press . . .

* * * *

And speaking of Bennetts, Connie's little sister Joan has been up at Saratoga, watching the gee-gees scamper, and being photographed at table with Alfred G. Vanderbilt, the young, stubborn catch. Hey, Ginger Rogers! . . .

Maureen Orcutt, whose marriage to a Mr. Crews just didn't seem to pan out, and who is back at her golfing, is expected to become a writer on the ancient Scottish sport for one of our papers.

Broadway is certainly going to be more itself this fall. Hollywood exiles are returning in droves, especially the once-tumultuous Marjorie Rambeau, who is said to be headed our way in a new play called "Story to Be Whispered."

Hope Hampton has always been a colorful figure in our evening world, but she's reached a new peak, now that she is returning to the screen after a lapse of 20 years. Slimmed to 107, her hair a gay pinkish blonde and festooned with gems, Hope is headed again for Hollywood. Not that she needs the cash—her husband, Jules Brulatour, reaps a stupendous income from raw movie film—meaning, naturally, the unexposed sort!

Few Legislators Extend Sojourn in Washington

Senator Ashhurst to Complete His Study of Judicial System; Senators Hatch and Pope Also Continue Work Here.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

While most members of Congress and their families are either at home, going home, or off for Europe and other vacation locales, a few are staying right on in the Capital without making any definite plans for departure.

Senator and Mrs. H. F. Ashurst will be here until he has finished outlining an investigation of the judicial system so that when Congress convenes again the joint sub-committee of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees can get down to real business. When they do leave, the Ashursts will head for their home in Prescott, Ariz.

The sponsor of the resolution providing for the judiciary canvass, Senator Carl A. Hatch, also is staying in town for a few days to wind up the work in his Capitol Hill office. By the end of the month, however, he hopes to leave for the West, stopping a few days in Topeka, Kans., and then going on to his home in Clovis, N. Mex. Mrs. Hatch and their daughter, Miss Marsha Hatch, have been there since early in July. Their son, Stewart Atwood Hatch, who is on the staff of the Vernon (Texas) Daily News, also will spend his vacation in Clovis. The Senator expects to return to Washington in November.

Lundeens Leave for Alaska Today

Senator and Mrs. Ernest Lundeen are leaving today for Alaska. A member of the Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs, the Senator is particularly interested in the problems of fisheries, the government-owned railroad into Fairbanks and improvements to the aviation field at Fairbanks. The Lundeens expect to do much flying on their trip. Weather permitting, they will go to Seattle by plane and will take a number of other air trips when they reach Alaska.

Their children, Ernest Ward, jr., and Joan, will remain in Washington until their parents' return for the special session of Congress, which most Senators are predicting will be called early November. Ernest, jr., who has had two years of preparatory work in Valley Forge Military Academy in Pennsylvania, will enter Woodrow Wilson High School, and Joan, who attended school in Minneapolis last year, will enter the Alice Deal Junior High School here in September.

Popes Plan to Go Monday

If Senator James P. Pope, chairman of the joint Senate and House Agriculture Committee, can wind up his office work by Monday, he and Mrs. Pope will leave then for their home in Boise, Idaho, to stay until Congress convenes. But friends back in Boise may not have a chance to see the senior Senator and Mrs. William E. Borah at all this year. He expects to work right on into the fall without even thinking about an adjournment vacation; and as long as he is here, Mrs. Borah expects to stay, too.

Vacation schedules in Senator Edward R. Burke's family are as indefinite as they have been any time this summer. According to present plans, Mrs. Burke and Miss Barbara Burke will stay in Washington through September. The Senator may make a brief visit to Nebraska and Kansas the middle of next month if he finds it possible to accept some invitations to speak in Omaha and Topeka. Later, if his work here is not too pressing, he may join the Congressional group that will go to study the welfare of the Hawaiian Island inhabitants.

Capital Nautical Notes

Ships setting sail for Europe yesterday had their decks crowded with diplomats and Congressional families—some of whom have the annual interparliamentary conference as an excuse for making a trip abroad. Aboard the George Washington were the United States Minister to Bulgaria, Ray Atherton; the Minister to Czechoslovakia, Wilbur J. Carr, and Mrs. Carr; William Keblinger, American consul at Hamburg; Senator Joseph G. Guffey, Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis and Representative and Mrs. Carroll Reece.

Among the notables on the Queen Mary, which also sailed yesterday, were the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles. The Minister of Norway, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, was aboard the Norwegian American liner Stavangerfjord when it steamed out of New York harbor yesterday. Mme. Morgenstierne and her two children will stay on at Bluemont, Va., for the next few weeks, returning to Washington about October 1, when the Minister is also scheduled to return.

* * * *

Among the summer vacationers who will be back in Washington before long will be Mrs. Edward B. McLean, her daughter, Miss Evalyn McLean, and her two sons, Edward Beale, jr., and John R. 2d. Mrs. McLean has spent the last two months at her summer place at Colorado Springs, Colo. She expects to return about September 15.

Premiere to Attract Notables

Just when social activities in Washington threaten to hit a new low, there comes a motion picture premiere to draw a distinguished crowd and to prove something can happen here—even at the fag end of summer.

The list of those who have accepted invitations to attend is both long and lively. Among the notables scheduled to be on hand when the performance begins at 8:30 are the Ambassador of Chile, Don Manuel Trucco; the Ambassador of Cuba, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga; the Minister of Denmark, Otto Wadsted; the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Maryland Girl, D. C. Man Wed

Miss Katheryne Severance, Gaithersburg, Married to Ellis Porter.

A WEDDING of interest to Washington took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Severance, of Gaithersburg, Md., when their daughter, Miss Katheryne Blanche Severance, became the bride of J. Ellis Porter, of this city.

The Rev. Norman O. Scribner, of Epworth Methodist Church, performed the ceremony on the lawn before an improvised altar banked with oak leaves, assorted flowers and palms.

Before the ceremony, Jack Fohrney, of Arlington, played violin selections and Miss Evelyn Schwartz, of Chevy Chase, sang, accompanied by Mrs. Lucy Mayo.

The bride wore a white taffeta gown with puffed sleeves, and her tulle veil was held in place with a cap of seed pearls. She wore long gloves and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Frank A. F. Severance, of New York, a sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing pink chiffon and carrying white gladioli.

Little Patricia Berkner, of Chevy Chase, was flower girl and wore a blue net frock trimmed with ruffles of pink and blue ribbon. Lawrence Thomas, of Gaithersburg, served as ring bearer.

Frank A. F. Severance, of New York, a brother of the bride, acted as best man, and ushers were T. Irving Fulks and William I. King, both of Gaithersburg.

ABOUT THE TOWN

With Dudley Harmon.

Virtually everyone who hasn't yet wrangled an invitation to visit a rich friend tried to forget about being stuck in Washington the other evening out at the Shoreham. The place seemed more crowded than usual because the dancing was in the main hall, the dining room being closed for some mysterious reason.

Eight Republican national committeewomen were brave about the wind and rain to huddle with John Hamilton over a cocktail on the terrace. Mr. Hamilton, by the way, looks older than his pictures. . . . Senator McAdoo twirled around the floor with little Mrs. McAdoo for a few dances, but they left early. They have been patiently waiting for the weather to clear so they can fly to their summer home in Santa Barbara.

Larry Bungardeanu, of the Rumanian Legation, was with some one who resembled a movie star in white fox and a smattering of diamonds. Nancy Brereton was also there, sporting an orchid.

At a ringside table sat a group which included Robert E. Coe, the Georges Howes, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, Jack Wood, of New York, a classmate of George Howes' at architectural school, and Charles Eustis Bohlen.

Bob Coe recently blew into town for a few weeks at the State Department before going to Moscow, his new post. He will beat Mr. Bohlen to it by several months as the latter will not take up his new duties there until January. Mrs. Bohlen is at present visiting in her home town, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Howe was up from Middleburg, where she spends the summer while Mr. Howe "batches it" with Arthur Krock and Benjamin Thoron in the latter's home in Georgetown. Although George Howe, who is an architect, always seems to be starting a new wing in somebody's house or drawing up plans for a cottage in the country, he somehow manages to find time to write, and is now on his second book. The works of Nathaniel Hawthorne are likewise an interest of his, and he collects Hawthornia like mad.

* * * *

SEPTEMBER, OF COURSE, is moving month, and this year there seems to be even more shuttling about than usual among people we know. The Robert Joyces have leased the N street home of Mr. and Mrs. Hart Foster in Georgetown, and will leave Col. William Donovan's house, which they leased for the summer, about September 15 . . . Keith Officer, Australian Counselor of the British Embassy, is moving into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter White on O street in Georgetown late this fall. Mrs. White, meanwhile, is house hunting, on flying trips to Washington from Nantucket.

DANIEL FROHMAN and August Heckscher, were 86 and 89, respectively, yesterday, and Fannie Hurst decided to help celebrate by giving a party in their honor at Billy the Oysterman's in New York. Assisting Miss Hurst in receiving was Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, former Minister to Denmark, who also writes, although on a lesser scale than the famous novelist.

Miss McMahon To Be Bridesmaid At N. Y. Wedding

Miss Phoebe McMahon, of Washington, will be a bridesmaid at the wedding on September 21 of Miss Jean Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nash, of New York and Short Hills, N. J., to John P. Beresford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percival Beresford, of Edgartown, Mass. The ceremony will take place in the Church of the Ascension, in New York, the Rev. Donald B. Aldrich, the rector, officiating.

Miss Nash will have as her matron of honor her sister-in-law, Mrs. Norman C. Nash, of Fairfield, Conn. Bridesmaids will be Miss Eileen Beresford, of Edgartown; Miss Anne Halsey, of Irvington-on-Hudson, and Mary Elizabeth Gill, of South Orange, N. J. Godfrey Beresford will serve as his brother's best man.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception for the immediate families and a few friends at Sherry's.

11 D.C. Girls See Europe In a Group

Y. W. C. A. Resident Maps Plan Which Provides Low-Cost Tour.

Travelers Go to London, Holland, Reich and Switzerland.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The dream of a trip to Europe became a reality this summer for a party of 11 Washington girls and four others, all of whom are employed, but managed to fit a month's tour into both their vacation time and their budgets. Some of them have just returned and the rest are coming home this week-end. The trip was directed by Miss Ada Bruncke, librarian at the Department of Commerce, who lives at Strong Residence of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Bruncke is remaining in Europe a short time longer to visit relatives in Germany. She had been abroad several times and last spring suggested to Miss Mary Nell Smith and Miss Louise May, who also are Strong Residence girls, that it would be interesting to go again this season. She not only had the idea, but a plan all mapped out whereby they could make the trip in a party for $350 with about $50 added for extras. They wanted to go.

Miss Smith mentioned it to Mrs. Eunice Robinson, who is employed in the same office with her at the Department of Agriculture and she promptly decided to join the party. In almost no time, the group was made up and definite arrangements for the tour were under way. Others from Washington were Mrs. Lily Belle Lewis, who is employed at the Treasury Department; Mrs. Helen Bolton, of the Interstate Commerce Commission; Miss Lillian Honig, a nurse at Georgetown Hospital; Miss Eva Foley and Miss Helen Hubatch, employes of the Postoffice Department. These, with Mrs. Robinson, Miss Smith, Miss May, of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and her cousin, Miss Sally Hively, have all returned.

Also from here were Miss Gwendolyn Marcyes, of Federal Communications and Miss Bessie Myers, of Interstate Commerce, who are returning tomorrow on the later boat, with Miss Lucille Myers and Mrs. Gayle Henry, of Washington State and Miss Marie Baumgardner, of St. Paul, Minn., who made up the remainder of the party.

Miss Peterson Entertains Group

They sailed July 22 aboard the S. S. New York, taking third-class passage. Miss Elsa Peterson, chairman of the Strong Residence Committee, and her aunt, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, who are spending part of the summer in Europe, were on the same ship and invited the girls up to have tea with them one afternoon of the voyage.

London was the first sight-seeing point, and, after visiting the Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey and other places of interest there, they went by bus to the Shakespeare country. Most of their short tours were by bus, with journeys by train or boat from one city to another. From England they went to Holland, where a visit to the quaint Isle of Marken was included, and they stayed at Cheveningen, a summer resort on the North Sea.

Everyone was riding bicycles in both Holland and Germany, and, in Germany some of the girls in the party rented them and pedaled about doing a little sight-seeing of their own. Cologne, a trip up the Rhine and visits to Heidelberg, Nuremberg and Munich were included on their visit to Germany.

Members of the party who had expected to find the country depressed and sad, found it, on the contrary, full of activity, and the people ready to smile and laugh. Their impression of Germany was less like what they had expected than of any other place they visited.

In Switzerland, however, they were surprised, while having luncheon at Furkas Pass, 9,000 feet up in the Alps, to have a group of Swiss singers, by whom they were being entertained, furnish their program with "Dixie," sung in English.

Trip Climaxes Residence Here

The European tour marked for most of the girls in the party the climax of adventure which started with their coming to Washington to take Government positions. A majority of them came here three or four years ago from towns in the South or Middle West, and before coming had done little, if any, traveling. Several of the group, since they have been living in the Capital, have taken other trips, Bermuda or West Indies cruises, on their vacations. They also have been continuing their college educations by attending night courses at the universities here. They were a congenial party, the youngest, Miss Hively, just 20, who left a position in California to take the trip because she thought the experience was the most valuable thing the summer could offer. The oldest in the group was not yet 40 and, as a whole, their interests and zest for travel were the same.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

MRS. GRACE MORRISON POOLE, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has returned from a summer in Europe. She is now at her home in Brockton, Mass., preparing for her marriage to Dr. Henry Gilbert Reynolds, of Paducah, Ky., which is to take place soon, but the date of which she is carefully guarding.

In a letter to Miss Vella Winner, of General Federation headquarters, she makes interesting observations on her European trip. She took a party of 18 on the tour and based her comments on the impressions of the whole group.

In England, she said, there was a growing feeling of the need for a closer bond between the English-speaking countries as a stabilizing factor for world peace, but there was also a sense of restlessness due to the war clouds over other nations. The Scandinavian countries were like a different world, she said. There was no rushing from one thing to another; there were neither very rich nor very poor people; majesty and beauty combined in the scenery and there was an evident desire on the part of the inhabitants to live peacefully and quietly—to live life to the full.

Of Soviet Russia, where the party spent but five days, Mrs. Poole said conditions there constantly brought to mind the old proverb, "Two wrongs never make a right." To judge the new regime fairly, one must have known the old, which she did not, she said, but what change there has been has brought no evidence of happiness, only poverty and tragedy, as she observed it. If it has given freedom to women, she said, with the freedom have come the burden of carrying on the heaviest kind of work, side by side with men and the minimizing of the sanctity of marriage.

The Soviet's chief care is for the children who are being given every opportunity for physical and mental development, but no moral or spiritual education, so far as she could learn. No government, which is so afraid of having its people leave that it puts barbed-wire fences along its national borders, and which turns its back on God, can hope to lead the way to peace, prosperity and contentment, she believes.

Poland, since her visit there seven years ago, has changed greatly for the better, in Mrs. Poole's opinion. In Germany, she and her party felt the country was fighting for its economic freedom and that the sound of marching feet—those of the youth and the children—might be the answer to the question of what the future holds for Europe.

MRS. EDGAR B. MERITT was in Washington yesterday, making a sort of flag-station stop between trips to West Beach, Md., and New York City, where she will be for several days.

She has been visiting Miss Cornelia H. Hill, of West Beach, and was guest of honor last Thursday at a meeting of the North Beach Women's Club held at Miss Hill's summer home.

Mrs. Hoadley Addresses Darnestown Group on 24th Anniversary.

Clubs 40 years ago and today were the theme of an address by the president of the Maryland State Federation, Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley yesterday afternoon at the twenty-fourth anniversary party of the Darnestown Woman's Club. Mrs. Hoadley, who with three of the six living charter members of the organization, was a guest of honor, urged the women to take active interest in community affairs.

"Forty years ago," she said, "club women were concerned with things which pertained to their homes and children. The radio has now brought the world into the home and women cannot escape responsibility for being well informed on world affairs. Men and governments are asking what they think on important questions of the day. Their views have weight."

Prominent Guests.

Present at the anniversary meeting yesterday were Mrs. Charles H. Nourse, at the home of whose daughter-in-law, Mrs. Upton D. Nourse, the affair was held; Mrs. Ernest Darby and Mrs. Morris Haines. Other charter members, who were not able to attend, were Mrs. Millard Rice, Mrs. Brook Vincent and Mrs. R. B. Beall.

Four generations of Mrs. Nourse's family were represented. In addition to her and her daughter-in-law, who was hostess, her granddaughter, Mrs. Raleigh Chinn, of Georgetown, recording secretary of the club, was there and in charge of the program, and her great-granddaughter, little Miss Alice Chinn, assisted in serving.

When refreshments were served, at the close of the program, Mrs. Nourse, who is past 90 years of age and the senior member of the club, cut the birthday cake. She also read the poem which was selected as best of those with which the roll call was answered, but declined to accept the prize.

Poem of Long Ago.

Mrs. Morris Haines' poem was an original one written years ago on a similar occasion and bringing in the names of differet members active in the club at that time. The Darnestown Club was a charter member of the Montgomery County Federation.

A memorial service was one of the features of the afternoon. Miss Eleanor Darby read a history of the club, which was formed at the suggestion of Mrs. Ernest Darby, as Miss Darby read the names of deceased members and told of their contribution to the club during the years of their membership. Mrs. James B. Murphy, socially prominent New York woman, is shown stepping from an air liner at Newark, N. J., first American refugee to reach home after making most of the trip by air. Among the first to evacuate Shanghai during the "bloody Saturday" battle, she made a number of remarkable pictures from the deck of the German liner Kulmerland as it navigated the Whangpoo River while air bombs rained about the waterfront bordering the International Settlement. The photo above she made after a bomb struck the Asiatic Petroleum Co. (British owned) wharves and the huge tanks burst into flames.

Locals Take Game After Grim Battle

Lose 5-Run Lead but Put Pressure on VanAtta for Victory.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, Aug. 25.—Within the space of two innings, fat Eddie Linke exchanged the goat's horns for the hero's mantle this afternoon, and by that token Washington won another ball game—its third straight.

In the seventh, Linke was a forlorn figure out there. Relieving Jimmy DeShong on the mound, he proceeded to pitch away a two-run lead and permit the Browns to tie the score. It apparently was an unhappy choice of relief pitchers by Manager Bucky Harris.

But in the eighth—ah, Linke was something. He pitched a three-base hit to Rollie Hemsley, the first man to face him, and then he reformed suddenly. With the Nats seemingly lost, the red-faced fat boy bore down, limited the next three hitters to infield taps and left the potential winning run on third base.

Win Game In Ninth.

Then, in the ninth, the Nats went out and won the ball game, 7 to 6, chiefly because Joe Kuhel, making his third hit of the game, lashed a vicious two-bagger against the right-field screen.

Washington won the ball game the hard way, it might be added. The Nats had it won by a score of 5 to 0 as late as the sixth inning, but then, along about the cocktail hour, Jimmy DeShong's pitching suddenly went sour and the Browns crashed through with four runs that made it a new ball game.

The Browns outhit the Nats, 14 to 13, if that matters. But Washington bunched half of its hits in those fourth and fifth innings when the Nats jolted left-handed Rumm Van Atta for their 5-0 lead. They nudged Lou Koupal for a run in the seventh and got that winning run off Bill Trotter in the ninth.

Travis Starts Something.

Cecil Travis, who was to make three hits this afternoon and end his own personal prolonged batting famine, started things moving in the fourth inning with a single to center. A bit later Second Baseman Lipscomb contributed a grievous muff of Joe Kuhel's hot smash and Buddy Myer drove home the first run of the ball game with a smart single through the box.

Freddie Sington, who has been staging a hitting revival of late, drove in the second run of the inning with a well-tagged double over Vosmik's head against the left-field wall, but the rally came to a sudden end when, after Millies was purposely passed, DeShong hit into a double play.

Almada Cuts Off Run.

All of this time, DeShong was doing the Browns dirt with some near-invincible pitching. Almada's superb throw to the plate cut off a Brownie run in the second inning, but otherwise DeShong was not in trouble during those first five innings.

But in the sixth, the Browns started acting up and DeShong barely staggered through the session with four of his lead of five runs packed away. Nine of the Browns went to bat and they packed five hits into the inning. West doubled to right, Vosmik singled to center, Clift beat out a slow hit to Lewis, Bell contributed a long double to right, and Manager Jim Bottomley, who put himself on the spot, went in as a pinch-hitter for Van Atta and drove the fourth run home with a well-spanked single to right.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 25.—Scoring six runs in the first two innings, the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Boston Bees, 6 to 0, in the Beehive today, before 3,500 fans.

The biggest factor in the game was the 12-hit attack of the powerful Pirates, led by the big stick of Lloyd Waner, centerfielder. But hardly less spectacular was the pitching of Russ Bauers. Pirate rookie, who held the Bees to six hits and won his fifth consecutive victory.

Shea Loses in Second Round Amateur Match

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 25.—William L. Shea, the Middle Atlantic champion from the Congressional Club, near Washington, D. C., bowed out of the National Amateur here today in a second-round encounter, to the sub-par sticks of Freddie Haas, the National Intercollegiate champion from Baton Rouge, losing 5 and 4.

Haas played the first nine in 34 strokes, 3 under the par of 37, and held a 1-up lead over the 18-year-old Georgetown University sophomore, who was out in 35, 2 under perfect figures. Shea's game fell apart on the second round, however, and Haas won on the fourteenth hole.

Shea won a marathon match in the first round this morning over a Pacific Northwest star, Leslie Leal, on the twenty-first hole. Willy's victory on the third extra hole was the longest match of the 32 first-round encounters.

Big guns of amateur golf boomed with devastating force today, and the end of a double round of firing found the defending titleholder the outstanding favorite and two former kingpins still in the fight for the 1937 national championship.

Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati, seeking to retain the crown, scored first and second round matches with comparative ease. He pushed Robert Babbish, Rochester, Mich., out of the picture in the opening setto, 4 and 3, and ended the day with a 5-and-4 win over Fred Clark, jr., of San Gabriel, Calif.

Outstanding among the day's achievements was the comeback struggle of veteran Chick Evans. The Chicago oldster, nearly 50, and playing his twenty-eighth amateur championship, made an uphill fight to defeat Charles Finger, Burlingame, Calif., youngster, on the twentieth hole. In the second round he cracked par all over the Alderwood course to whip Joe Lynch, Boston, 3 and 2.

Evans clubbed out a sensational 33, 4 under par, to lead Lynch, 3-up at the ninth. For the 16 holes played he was 2 under standard figures.

Charging into the third round also were Johnny Goodman, Omaha, a prime favorite to annex the amateur title, and former Champion Ross Somerville, of Canada.

Goodman Wins.

Goodman, winner of the National Open in 1933, clouted a 4-and-3 victory over Jimmy McHale, Los Angeles. Johnny was 2-up at the turn. In the first round he swamped Donald McPhail, Baltimore, 7 and 6. Somerville, leader of the parade in 1932, equaled Evans' spectacular first nine 33, in defeating Matt Palacio, jr., San Rafael, Calif., 3 and 1. In the opening match he won from Bob Servis, Dayton, Ohio, 2 and 1.

One of the standouts of the day was Ed Kingsley, Murray, Utah, and State titleholder from 1932 through 1935. Kingsley defeated T. Suffern Tailer, New York socialite, 2 and 1, after the latter had put out Medalist Roger Kelly, Los Angeles, 1 up, in the first round.

Two 1936 Walker Cup team members, Reynolds Smith, Dallas, and Walter Emery, Oklahoma City, hooked up in a second round bout with Smith having the edge by a 2 to 1 margin.

Ray Billows, New York State champion from Poughkeepsie, scored impressively with a double victory, 8 and 7 over Robert Thompson, Stanford University, and a 2 and 1 second rounder over Roy Wiggins, Portland.

Kocsis Victor.

Kocsis, last year's national intercollegiate head man, defeated Earl Christiansen, Miami, Fla., 4 and 3, capped the day with a 1 up decision over Robert Conliff, jr., Oklahoma City. Strafaci, one-time national public links ruler, defeated Walter Blevins, Kansas City, and followed with a win over Vincent Dolp, Portland.

Bill Holt, Syracuse, N. Y., sent Arthur Doering, jr., Chicago, out of the second round 4 and 3 after beating the Vancouver, B. C., star Ken Black, 3 and 1, in the morning.

Break in Weather Brings Customers Flocking to Ticket Office—Prediction of Rain May Keep Ticket Sales Down to $200,000.

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

The weather man didn't promise to be any too kind about it. After several days of almost continuous rain, which threw a heavy damper over the ticket sale, the forecast today was that tomorrow night will be cloudy with light showers possible.

Even with this prediction, the outlook is for a crowd of between 30,000 and 40,000 and a gate of around $250,000.

Today's sunshine brought with it a spurt in the movement of pasteboards to gladden the heart of Promoter Mike Jacobs, who insisted that with another day of fair weather "I'll fool them yet."

Mike has said all along the fight would not do less than $300,000 and he stuck to that figure today, adding that if box office business continues brisk tomorrow, the house might gross even more.

If a postponement is necessary, the bout will be held Friday night.

"This is a last-day fight town," said Jacobs. "You'll see 'em rushing for tickets tomorrow. I just turned down an order for 100 ringsiders. The cheaper seats will go tomorrow. I've got 20 ticket offices open and they're all doing business."

Louis Is 6 to 1.

Odds, which had been stationary at 4 to 1 for a week, shot to 6 to 1 today and Broadway gamblers said they might reach 7 to 1 by the time Louis and Farr climb into the ring at approximately 9 o'clock (E. S. T.) tomorrow night, depending on the amount of Farr money showing up tonight and tomorrow.

Bookmakers report very little action. They attribute the light betting to the fact that the public apparently gives the Welshman little more than an outside chance to upset the dope and trim the hard-hitting Negro.

In an Associated Press poll of 25 New York, out-of-town and British sporting writers, only one was found—John Macadam, of the London Sunday Dispatch—who picked Farr to win. Most of them think Louis will stop the Britisher well within 12 rounds.

Louis and Farr, both trained to the minute, took things easy at their training camps at Pompton Lakes and Long Branch, N. J., today preparatory to motoring into town for the weighing-in ceremonies at noon before the State athletic commission.

Tommy Is Confident.

Both have put in many weeks of hard work. Farr has not been impressive in many of his drills, but he has shown a quality of boxing which some experts think may prove decidedly annoying to the champion. His confidence is superb.

Farr, also 23, was virtually unknown in this country until he whipped Baer, but he has been fighting throughout England and Wales for years and picked up plenty of experience and ring knowledge.

No fault can be found with Louis' condition. He fights regularly and keeps himself in trim both mentally and physically. He is hitting as hard as ever and has improved his boxing. Louis expects to weigh in at 198 tomorrow. Farr's fighting weight is 204 and he is down to that now.

Farr feels he is faster and smarter than Louis and rugged enough to take the champ's terrific punches. He has no set plan of action, but said in a pre-fight statement today he is confident of winning.

"I'll box cautiously for the first round, size Louis up and condpet my campaign accordingly," he said.

Louis said he is prepared for any style of fight the Welshman may offer. "If he runs I'll be ready and if he rushes I'm set for that. I hope to knock him out, but will not name the round. But I'll end the fight as early as possible."

Timber Lady Race Winner At Marlboro

Defeats High Hedge for Feature Purse on Opening Day.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 25.—With a track better suited for outboard motor boat competition than the sport of kings, the Maryland racing scene shifted to Prince Georges County this afternoon and more than 4,000 fans braved the elements to take part in the reception. They stayed to see more fire added to a rivalry that has marked half-mile racing in the State, when W. D. Jones' Timber Lady took the measure of H. L. Bowers' High Hedge.

Both are get of the sire Tall Timber and it was a case of girl beats boy, for Timber Lady led throughout the five and a half furlongs to down her older opponent by the decisive margin of four lengths. In fact, at the end, High Hedge had all he could do to win second money by a head from H. M. Simpson's Prince Turley.

Timber Lady was the favorite at a $5.10 mutuel and was clocked in 1:09, fair time under the rugged conditions.

Can Bloom, a daughter of Canter, showed a liking for the muddy course and splashed to a half-length victory over Broken Rhythm in the first race. Waugh Scout was third in the field of eight. The start was miserable, with the well-played Green Water being knocked back. She would not extend herself and was pulled up. Can Bloom, ridden by Jockey Manny Berg, paid an $18.40 mutuel.

Mud breeding told in the second race when Nimule, gelded son of Flying Ebony, winner of the Kentucky Derby over a sloppy, sticky track, led from start to finish over the 6½-furlong course. Jockey L. Pikor guided the winner, which had a margin of a length over Justa Jimmie at the end. Aella was third but failed to seriously threaten. Nimule rewarded his backers with a $7.90 payoff.

Nathan Hale made good with ease for the favorite players in the third race. In the role of a $5.10 choice, the Tryster gelding always had a commanding lead during the 6½-furlong test. Brief was second and Pack Away third. Jockey Herbie Lauch was aboard Nathan Hale.

A pair of old half-mile campaigners accounted for the purses in the fifth and sixth races. Sun Way came down to the wire by six lengths to pay $6.40 and Jim Brown scored by three lengths to bring his backers a return of $18.10. The day's finale went to the front-running Justa Play, a $12.30 shot. Despite the poor conditions upward of $50,000 was wagered on the program.

Time Out! By Chet Smith

It's your fault, Henry. You would bring those two Easter bunnies home for Junior!

At The Post . . . .

Dear Al: Jockeys Lou Pikor and Buddy Root were married last week at Cumberland. Their brides saw their husbands ride first and second in the second race. Horsemen predict a bright future for young Eddie Kilgore, an apprentice rider. He is 17 years old and hails from the horse country at Berryville, Va. Eddie is under contract to Arthur Hullcoat and rode his maiden winner on closing day of the Agwan meeting. At Cumberland, Eddie rode nine winners in seven days. Bobby Martin is his agent. Pork Chops, the press box mascot, reported today. Someone presented the scribes with a cherry pie. Pork Chops was present for the cutting, and said "Dat pie am 'bleeding.'" Due to the fact that this track has only a chalk board for odds, and this was not in operation, due to the rain, those in the grandstand had to go down to the betting ring to find out the probable prices or bet blind. This and a number of other things hereabouts probably will improve when the sun comes out.

First race—Lee Walker will like the off track and seems to have a slight edge over the other prominent members of this field. Carries top weight, but I'm going to string along. Scout Allow has done about everything asked of late and is dangerous. Never Cease for the show.

Second race—Tom's Boy is second on the also eligible list, but will be hard to beat if sent postward. Has plenty of early speed and may steal a good lead on this field. Carver has some good races and is a threat. Sea Charmer is in good hands.

Third race—I had to go pretty far back to get Monocacy for this event. This one will love the bad going and may score at good odds. Miss Troy has plenty of speed and may forget to stop in company of this sort. Lady Glasgow is far from her best form, but could awake here.

Fourth race—Shebang, tossed in here with feather weight of 100 pounds, looks the part of a probable winner. Shaggy Ann probably will pass up the apprentice allowance so that Palumbo can ride, and I believe the Shebang will benefit from the shift in weights. Chipetamio for the minor award.

Fifth race—Misled is better than generally rated. Has worked well and I'm going to take my chances. Happy Host is the probable favorite and will win if it is not the day for the top one. Miss Adeline will like the tough track.

Sixth race—Our Ship is not the same horse that showed such good form once at Laurel. However, this one has shown enough for us to expect a winning effort in a field of this caliber. Jim Brown has been dogging it of late and could awake with a bang. Keyed Up should be at least third.

Seventh race—Prince Petty has a bad rail post position here, but I believe he has the speed to get to the middle of the track and in the better going. Balmacan and Moresoris for the place and show.

Best bet—Tom's Boy.

INFILEE, distant trailer for three-quarters, came around field to take the place in concluding strides. PENWAY went to front with bold rush at the half and was meekly handled approaching finish. HAPPY ROAD was pulled up sharply when in close quarters and would not extend himself thereafter.

SIXTH RACE—About $1\frac{1}{16}$ miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from chute. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 4:56. Off 4:57. Winner, G. Pye's ch. g. Sandlot Pick-ups

Joe Harris' Senate Beer nine which is making it hot for unlimited nines in the vicinity of Wheaton, Md., where it operates, is thriving under new management . . . SAM HARVEY, himself a ballplayer of note, being a regular outfielder with the strong local PWA nine, recently replaced FRANCIS DAY as the team's pilot . . . although the team plays its home games at Wheaton a goodly portion of the squad has been drawn from the Washingtgon sandlots . . . the pitchers, JIM MURPHY, who also plays with PWA in a week-day league, and BUCK LAWSON, who takes the mound for Heurich in the Industrial League here, are, well-known in local circles, as are all their mates . . . the catching department is fortunate indeed to have two such talented performers as HENRY GICHNER, former Cornell University star, who backstops regularly, and CHARLES HOWARD, who steps capably into the breach when GICHNER needs relief . . . in the infield are BILL FREAS, a former Maryand University athlete at first . . . EDDIE FITZGERALD at second base . . . MAX COE, another PWA luminary, at shortstop and JAKE FARRELL, who etched his name in the athletic hall of fame at Mount St. Mary's (Emittsburg), rounds out the inner defense at third base . . . in the outfield are three hard-hitting young men who would be notable additions to any team . . . VIC GUAZZA, JR., son of the local sandlot official VIC, SR., is in left . . . MANAGER HARVEY takes gentle care of right field and a real flyhawk, one GEORGE SCHRABLE, roams the stretches of center field . . .

This column has received a splendid gesture in form of a letter from EVELYN LYNCH, who, although a girl, has shown herself able to play first base with the best of the male stars . . . Miss Lynch, who is remembered for her performance with the famed old Linworths, who at one time were the scourge of Southwestern Washington, writes to offer her services in the benefit game which will be staged for TONY BARRUTO, September 11, at Griffith Stadium. In offering her services to the all-star squad, which FRANK CINNOTI is selecting to meet the strong Bureau of Investigation team, Miss LYNCH writes, "If you think Mr. CINNOTI would be interested in me as an added attraction, I would appreciate your giving him my name and address" . . . 2413 Pennsylvania avenue northwest . . . DI. 8653.

It certainly is gratifying to note how everyone is flocking to offer to do anything to put over this benefit game for the popular manager who has been very ill in Providence Hospital . . . TONY never realized he had so many friends and both he and FRANK CINNOTI, who suggested, and is arranging the contest, wish to thank all who have been so kind in the past, and CINNOTI urges all sandlot fans to help one of the most beloved figures sandlot baseball in this city has ever known. . .

Men Past 40
Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality. This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for women) and are sold and recommended by Unity Drug Stores and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a well known American physician so you can take it with confidence. It contains no nux vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drugs. A booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain, sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W 45th St. N. Y. Ask for economy size. Save $1.

Tom Farr Has Never Been Kayoed.

By Shirley Povich.

St. Louis, Aug. 25.—The best thing that can be said about Tommy Farr is that the Britisher has never been knocked out in 71 fights. That is twice as many professional bouts as Louis has fought. And the sensitiveness of Louis' chin was nicely demonstrated one evening last year by Max Schmeling.

POVICH.

There is apparently no complaint, either, with Farr's courage in the clutch. He got up off the canvas to win a decision from Bob Olin, a former light-heavyweight champion. But, with that, Farr's strong points appear to be summed up.

Well and good was his performance in getting up off the floor to beat Olin but that prompts the question of what Farr was doing on the floor in the first place. Echo wants to know how come Olin, only the best of a poor crop of light-heavies could put the 208-pound Farr on the floor. That leaves something to be explained.

* * * *

It gives rise to the question of what will happen when Joe Louis hits the Britisher on the lug. Olin is no Louis but if he can tip Farr over then the Detroit Negro figures to lay him like a target. And Louis is a far better sharpshooter with his punches than Olin. When the champion parks that left hook of his on somebody's chin that unlucky guy is a case for his handlers.

* * * *

It's Farr's tough luck, too, that he is going into the fight with the typically British straight left as his chief weapon. If there is one thing that is not calculated to bother Louis, it is a left hand. Jim Braddock had a superb left and so did Max Schmeling, but the only two times Louis has been on the floor he was dumped with right hands—Braddock's uppercut and Schmeling's right cross.

* * * *

It appears to be the old story of the boxer vs. the slugger, and this department, like Napoleon, likes to string along with the side that has the heavy artillery. That means Louis in this case, of course. There is no doubt, though, of Farr's boxing talent. He shaded the clever Tommy Loughran in a strictly boxing match and kept away from the vicious right hand with which Maxie Baer pole-axed Schmeling.

* * * *

That last notation brings up the the old mulberry-bush comparison of things. Farr beat Baer who knocked out Schmeling who knocked out Louis and thus the Britisher might be ranked at least a worthy foe for the Negro lad, but the futility of that kind of a comparison is well known. Football fans know it; know how, by a series of comparative scores, Gallaudet would figure to beat Minnesota by 30 points.

* * * *

The sooner that Joe Louis can bring the battle to a happy conclusion, the better his handlers will like it, and thus a speedy end looms for Farr. The mere possibility that Louis will be tagged on the chin is enough to disturb his trainer and co-managers. There is still some kind of evidence that Louis's mandible is a bit brittle and his board of strategy would rather not have it tested. On the heels of that stunning knockout by Schmeling came that little incident in the first round at Chicago last month when Braddock put Louis on the floor with a right uppercut to the jaw.

* * * *

Farr's victory over Max Baer is not to be taken too seriously. The manner in which Baer will conduct himself in the prize ring is entirely too unpredictable. On the night when he is a serious, earnest fighter he is a good fighter. On the night when he holds the opposition too lightly and clowns his way along, he is a very poor fighter indeed. I suspicion that he was a poor fighter that evening against Farr in England.

* * * *

The only disturbing factor in making any prediction on the fight is that little incident that happened in Yankee Stadium last June a year ago. On that occasion, Max Schmeling was conceded even less chance to beat Louis than Farr is given at this writing. Schmeling was apparently a doomed man, walking to his execution at the hands of Louis. Yet he won. That battle will forever be a deterrent against hawking the family heirlooms to take a flyer on any prize fight.

Iowa Youth Beats Bosox By 8-1 Count

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—Bob Feller, his curve ball streaking across the outside corner, today struck out 16 men—one less than the major league record he shares with Jerome (Dizzy) Dean—and carried the Cleveland Indians to an 8 to 1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The gold-plated invaders came back in the nightcap for a 7 to 2 triumph over Willis Hudlin, clinched with three-run outburts in the seventh and eighth innings.

The 18-year-old Iowa schoolboy sent 12,000 fans into near-hysteria as he held the dangerous Sox to four hits in a mound duel with Buck Newsom.

Jimmy Foxx, Frank Higgins and Gene Desautels each fanned three times. Manager Joe Cronin, Roger Cramer, and Eric McNair struck out twice. Dominic Dellesandro was the other vicitm. Ben Chapman made two of Boston's hits.

The Tribe's 'wonder boy' demonstrated his control—lack of which has cost him victories in the past—by walking only four men.

Trapshooting Contest Ends in Class Mix-Up

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 25 (AP).—More than 100,000 targets were thrown today at the Grand American Trapshoot, but after all that shooting no one knew who won the Class AA championship—the day's top honor. The mix-up, first in years at the big trapshoot, left it up to the executive committee to decide whether Charles Bogert, of Sandusky, Ohio, or Hale C. Jones, of Woodriver, Ill., was the victor.

Bogert broke 200 of 200 and thought he had the title in the bag with his perfect performance, but a stenographer's error had shoved him down a notch in the books, into Class A, and the committee decided that was where he must stay.

The decision threw Bogert into a tie with Stanley Meadows, 17-year-old national junior champion from Des Moines, Iowa, who broke 200 in a row in Class A.

Budge-Mako Advance in Net Tourney

Doubles Champs Defeat Mulloy-Jarvis to Pace Event.

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 25.—A breath-taking finishing-spurt by Don Budge and Gene Mako, the defending champions in the men's division of the National Doubles tennis tournament at Longwood, today enabled those invincible Davis Cup stalwarts to lead the parade of eight seeded teams into the third round barckets.

Only two sets of favorites advanced with straight-set victories, the sort of decisive triumphs that every one of the eight successful women's teams gained as they reduced their competition to the same stage.

Budge and Mako won 12 of the last 14 games as they overtook the unseeded but inspired Gardner Mulloy, Miami, and Alfred Jarvis, Tenafly, N. J., for a 6—1, 3—6, 3—6, 6—1, 6—1 victory. That match was their second five-setter in their last three competitive starts.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel, the German stars who topped the foreign list of seedings, also encountered rugged opposition from Norman Bickel and Norbert Burgess, who bowed, 6—4, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3.

Hughes and Hare were the victims of fifth-seeded Bobby Riggs and Bernie Coghlan, of Los Angeles, 4—6, 6—4, 11—9, 10—8. The Britishers appeared assured of victory until the seventh game of the third set, when Hare tripped and fell against a net post, injuring an ankle.

Bryan Grant, Atlanta, and Wayne Sabin, Los Angeles, eliminated Fumituru Nakano and Hideo Nishimura, the fifth seeded Japanese team.

Gregory Mangin, of New York, and Jiro Yamagishi, the Japanese champion, had to go five sets before overcoming Russell Bobbitt, Atlanta, and Frank Guernset, jr., Orlando, Fla., 6—2, 4—6, 6—1, 3—6, 6—3; and Jacques Brugnon and Yvon Petra, the only French entry, survived by eliminating Murray Delaford and Clarence Jones, of England, 6—0, 6—4, 6—2.

Battles, Rentner SignGrid Contracts

The last two Redskin holdouts capitulated yesterday when Cliff Battles and Pug Rentner, both backs, affixed their signatures to contracts offered them by Owner George Marshall. Although it was not officially confirmed, both are believed to have won their salary battle. Twenty-eight players are now in camp.

Turner, Ahearn Get $5,000 Offer to Cancel Ambers Bout

A tempting plum of $5,000 last night was dangled before the eyes of Promoter Joe Turner and his matchmaker, Goldie Ahearn, by Mike Jacobs, New York boxing promoter, but it meant canceling the match between Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers and Howard Scott, scheduled Tuesday night at Griffith Stadium.

Jacobs' wire read as follows:

Fearful of injury stop Offer you five thousand to release Lou Ambers from fight with Howard Scott Tuesday night stop Please give this careful consideration stop Will give you five thousand on release of said Amber's contract stop Mike Jacobs.

Jacobs has Ambers signed for the feature bout of his champion of champion card booked for September 23 at New York. His opponent will be the top-ranking challenger Pedro Montanez, and without this bout the card will have to be postponed or canceled entirely. Jacobs guaranteed Ambers $60,000 as his end of the purse.

But like the old meller-drammer hero, Ahearn raised a dramatic, and a trifle sweaty paw, and with a sudden interest in his public said he wouldn't even consider throwing his public down for $5,000. Not five grand, when Ambers is liable to gross at least 20 grand here. In which opinion Uncle Joe Turner heartily concurs.

Dave Miller's Death Shocks Local Boxing

Manager of Middleweight Champion Was Well Liked Here.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

News of the untimely passing of Dave Miller, manager of Middleweight Champion Freddie Steele, who succumbed suddenly yesterday in Tacoma, Wash., came as a shock to local ring fans and those more intimately connected with the sport. The feeling that boxing had lost an ardent fan and supporter was universal.

It was a heavy blow to those who became acquainted with Miller only last month when he brought Steele here to box "Hobo" Williams in the Variety Club's show. In the brief span of four weeks they came to know the rotund and jovial theater owner who found both relaxation and another outlet for his boundless energy in boxing.

In him they recognized a true friend, a loyal member of a fraternity whose members were recruited from every walk of life, and he enjoyed their undisguised admiration and respect.

There were no weighty, formal eulogies upon word of his passing. Fans, managers and fighters alike simply said "he was a great guy," and meant it sincerely. This plain, unvarnished phrase was the highest tribute they could pay him in the parlance of the game Miller loved so well.

The first hint of Miller's illness came while he was here in Washington with Steele, training for the Williams fight. He complained of the heat, and suffered immeasurably from it. The ministrations of a physician were refused, however, for Dave wanted nothing to interfere with his being in Steele's corner the night of the fight. After that he planned to return home for a complete rest and treatment.

In a long distance telephone conversation with the sports editor, Ray Arcel, the Nation's leading fight trainer who makes his headquarters in New York and who worked with Steele and Miller here last month said:

"I am heartbroken. Dave Miller was one of the whitest men I have ever met in the fight business. I heard the news today in Jack Dempsey's place and have been stunned by it. I don't know what to say except that boxing has lost one of its strongest pillars, Steele has lost a fine manager and I have lost a great friend."

DAVE MILLER.

Heine Miller, secretary of the boxing commission, said:

"He was a square shooter and a grand fellow. He was one of the game's smartest managers, and boxing has lost a wonderful man."

Promoter Joe Turner said:

"Boxing loses one of its finest managers with the death of Dave Miller. I have known Dave for a number of years and found him a swell guy, and a real, high-class manager."

Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn added this tribute:

"I did not meet Dave Miller until he came to Washington with Freddie Steele for the Variety Club show. But he certainly proved himself to be a great manager and sportsman. He was a swell person."

Pete Sarron To Abdicate His Throne

Petey Sarron will not defend his world featherweight boxing championship against Henry Armstrong in October, even if he beats Freddie Miller, it was learned last night, but will abdicate his throne and devote his remaining days in the ring to picking on lightweights.

The old bugaboo, weight, finally has gotten the best of the erstwhile Alexandria Assassin, and after his championship bout with Miller next week in Johannesburg, South Africa, he will move up into the heavier division.

Meanwhile, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn has confirmed the report that Sarron will fight here October 11, his first local appearance since he lifted the crown from Miller's brow last summer. But there may be a hitch in Sarron's well-laid plans. Ahearn might not want him, especially if he returns home without his title, and possibly if he can't make a weight agreeable to Joey Archibald.

"Sarron won't be worth a nickel in here wit oud his title," Ahearn pointed out. "A woild champeen is somethin' fans will pay to see, but he'll be just anudder fighter if Miller beats 'im. I ain't certain whether or not I'll take him. Anudder Archibald-Gevinson fight might be better."

"Hobo" Williams, defeated by Middleweight Champion Freddy Steele last month, returns to the ring Monday night at Baltimore, where he will face Ben Brown, of Atlanta, in a 10-round bout.

Cox Will Meet Dusek Tonight

Wrestling will be moved indoors tonight, with the entire card scheduled for Griffith Stadium to take place at Turners Arena, Fourteenth and W streets.

Promoter Joe Turner has decided to hold the five matches at his Fourteenth street emporium of sport, due to the inclement weather and the fact that he has arranged what he considers his best card of the season.

Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, meets Rudy Dusek, the Nebraska villain, who is just as agile and alert as ever, though he is getting on in years. Cox and Dusek are to clash in one half of the double wind-up, and in the second half one Jack Patterson, who proved a sensation last Thursday night with his "boomerang" hold, returns for a duel with Henri Piers, the crowd-pleasing Dutchman.

The entertainment begins at 8:30.

While chief interest will center on the return bout between Cox and Dusek—(bad blood exists between these two, you are advised)— fans are coming to see the highly touted Spanish Indian, Chief Thunder Bird, who recently blew in from the Coast, where he created a sensation.

Thunder Bird, hailing from a tribe in Vancouver Island, meets Eli Fischer, the gangling former Rutgers football star, and is expected to unveil his new-fangled "death lock," which has cut down many an outstanding Coast wrestler.

Giants Beat Cubs Twice, Halve Lead

49,707 Fans Go Wild as New York Wins Way Back Into Race.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 25.—The crippled New York Giants put aside their crutches today, beat the pace-making Chicago Cubs twice, and put themselves right back in the thick of the National League pennant race while a seething, near-capacity crowd of 49,707 at the Polo Grounds went wild. The double triumph cut the Cubs' lead from four to two games.

Yanks Club Lee to Win 10-5 Victory

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—The New York Yankees had a cinch with their one-time jinx, Thornton Lee, today and coasted in with a 10-to-5 victory over the White Sox to maintain their 10¼-game lead in the American League race.

They clubbed Lee to the showers in less than four innings, piled up to 7-3 lead before the fifth inning started, and breezed in from there without much difficulty as Bump Hadley, although tagged for ten hits, tightened up with men on base.

Although they were shut out in their homer-hitting specialty, they landed on Lee and Duncan Rigney for a dozen hits, three of them by little Don Heffner, who filled in for the ailing Tony Lazzeri at second base, and drove three runs across.

Wheat Holds Steady With Short Covering

Early Advance of 1¼ Cents a Bushel Is Followed By Selling.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Wheat lost an early advance of 1¼ cents a bushel today, but closed slightly higher than yesterday as a result of buying attributed to previous sellers and traders encouraged by the market's stubborn firmness so far this week.

Trading was quiet and prices fluctuated nervously over a range of about 1¾ cents, but there was no pronounced selling pressure. Further small sales of North American wheat for export were reported, but the business was disappointing and this, together with other unsettling factors, comprised the bearish market picture which even optimistic bulls could not disregard.

Wheat closed ⅛@¾ higher compared with yesterday finish, September, 1.05½@1.05⅝; December, 1.07¼@1.07⅜; May, 1.09½@1.09⅝; corn was 1½ up to ⅜ down, September, 98⅜@98½; December, 65⅜@65½; May, 66½; oats, ⅛@½ down; September, 28½; rye, 2¼@2½ higher. September, 79½; provisions, 7 to 23 cents lower.

Wholesaling Gains In 5th District

Richmond, Va., Aug. 25 (AP).—Sales in the first seven months of 1937 in five wholesale lines in the Fifth Federal Reserve District increased materially over the corresponding period of 1936, the Federal Reserve Bank, of Richmond, reported today. The bank's district wholesale trade report covered 57 firms in the grcery, dry goods, shoes, hardware and drug lines.

Wholesale hardware sales registered the greatest gain, the report said, rising 25.5 per cent over the January-July, 1936, period. A gain of 16 per cent was reported in the shoe trade, 14 per cent in drugs, 12.4 per cent in groceries and 5.3 per cent in dry goods.

The hardware sales increase likewise was carried out during July, 1937, showing a gain of 19.6 per cent over July, 1936. The bank reported a decrease of 9.7 per cent in wholesale dry goods for July of this year, however.

Steel Activity Lags Despite Expected Rise

Auto Industry Is the Chief Contributor of New Orders.

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 25.—Except for renewed buying from the automobile industry, little indication of a "substantial pick-up" in steel orders was noted today by Iron Age in its weekly summary.

Improvement observed a week ago, it said, "has not carried through in an impressive manner."

The gain in aggregate business so far in August over the corresponding July period was described as moderate.

"Most of the betterment this month," the trade publication continued, "has come from the automobile industry, from which larger orders are expected next month, when production of new models gets into full swing.

Railroad Equipment Buying.

"Although railroad equipment buying has been given a slight boost by the placing of 500 freight cars by the Texas & Pacific and a number of small locomotive orders, the outlook for substantial purchases in time to become a part of steel-mill schedule this year is clouded by delays in settlement of railroad wages and freight rates. Several of the railroad car shops will come to the end of their orders within a month or so unless further business develops immediately.

"Building construction, although featured occasionally by a few sizable projects, is not showing marked gains in the aggregate. On the contrary, the recent volume has been disappointing to structural mills and fabricators.

"The Government's shipbuilding program, which the steel industry hoped would get under way soon enough to aid this fall's steel volume, has been postponed at least two months because of continued labor strife."

Pennsylvania Net Lower for July

The Pennsylvania Railroad reported yesterday for July net railway operating income of $6,937,712, a decrease of $933,258 compared with July last year. Freight revenues rose $1,352,147 for the month to a total of $30,222,522 and passenger revenue gained $507,512 to a total of $6,130,167. Railway operating expense for July was $28,505,564, an increase of $2,627,405 over July last year.

For the seven months to July 31, net railway operating income was $41,546,911, a decrease of $318,025 compared with the same period last year.

Virginia Peanut Crop Is 1,299,225 Bags

Richmond, Va., Aug. 25 (AP). — A total of 8,798 Virginia farms reported 115,737 acres in peanut production last year with an average yield of 11.2 bags per acre, the State Cooperative Crop Reporting Service announced today. The total yield was 1,299,225 bags.

Southampton County led the State with a production of 422,111 bags from 34,935 acres. Nansemond County followed with 197,750 bags produced in 15,215 acres. Sussex County produced 192,487 bags in 18,278 acres threshed.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Drag Through Day Without Definite Trend; Wheat Firm; Cotton Declines.

New York, Aug. 25.—Neither in volume nor in strength of prices were stocks, bonds and commodities able to show that August 25 was any different from August 24, or to give a hint that tomorrow will give relief. Turnover in stocks didn't get far away from half a million shares and prices were irregular throughout. Cotton gave way a little and wheat hardened. September futures rose ⅜ of a cent, to $1.05½ a bushel.

Financial markets had to drag through another day without the guidance of anything new. Midweek trade reviews held the same tone as those of last week. The Iron Age noted that new business in steel had been somewhat disappointing, although a little better than it was in July, and hopes had not been abandoned for an early improvement. Railroad freight traffic last week moved up a little and electricity output reached a new top.

Optimism Elsewhere.

Visitors to Wall street from other parts of the country are reported to say that industrial and agricultural activity leads them to regard the next few months with optimism. Corporation earnings promise to be good this quarter and next quarter. The great lack is speculative interest, and much of that probably is caused by the absence on vacation of so many who ordinarily do a little trading just to keep their hands in.

Government bonds were inactive with small changes in prices and those mixed. Stocks looked firm at times and weak all around at others. Chrysler drew attention for an hour or so with a sharp gain, but the advantage was suddenly lost, as was the case with Steel day before yesterday. Telephone, Edison and a few other utilities were firm. Coppers failed to get anywhere. Steel acted poorly in the afternoon. Some of the sugars hardened. Railroad shares were mercifully left on side tracks.

Discount Rate.

Reduction of the discount rate by three Federal Reserve Sytem regional banks, including Chicago, leads to the general expectation the New York bank will come down to 1 per cent at the weekly board meeting tomorrow. If such a cut be made, and it has been strongly hinted in official quarters, it will be the lowest rate on record for the systemh. The charge of 1 per cent will still be much above the going rate on the best short-term bank investments as Treasury discount bills, and consequently will not lead to a rise in discounting. Banks have their investment maturities planned to avoid the need of borrowing money except in unusual circumstances, and in any event they scarcely will keep money tied up in a yield of one-half to three-quarters of 1 per cent and borrow funds at 1 per cent.

Chep Money Policy.

Meanwhile, the new discount rate policy on its face gives notice that an excessively cheap money market is to be maintained by the officials at Washington. Presumably all the hubbub about hot money, excess reserves and the like can be disregarded, for a time. The prophet crying in the wilderness against the dangers of inflation to follow cheap money for long has been Marriner Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board. The great protector of Government bond prices, which necessarily means defender of excessively cheap money, is ex officio Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury. When two such forces meet, one must give way, and this time, as previously, it seems to have been the Federal Reserve Board.

The conflict now going on seems to be divided on the sides of immediate expediency and the long term view. Are bond prices to be supported now at the risk of future decline, or is it better to allow them to decline a litle in order to avoid too sharp a fall later if money should tighten in spite of control and inflation develop?

Gov. Eccles of the Feredal Reserve board, in his recent testimony before the House Banking and Currency Committee, left no doubt of how he stood. Certain excerpts now being published, or republished, are interesting. Noting that low interest rates were forcing the prices of Government bonds to levels which would stop purchasing by large investors and institutions, because of the fear of a decline once money rates tightened, Eccles suggested that "there was a huge credit expansion under way which would have such a repercussion as to practically paralyze the country."

Eccles further said that bank reserve requirements were lifted partly to create a psychological condition that would increase interest rates and prevent inflation, and "that interest rates, due to the huge excess reserves, had gotten down to such a low rate that they could not be expected to be sustained there for any reasonable length of time, that they had reached a point where your insurance companies, your mutual savings banks, your trustees and others were willing to buy your long term securities from the Government down to a 2.2 per cent average—the low point they reached."

Deeper and Deeper.

"The danger of investing funds in long term securities," Eccles continued, "at excessive low rates is that if rates go up through a restrictive policy there would be terrific losses and depreciation on those securities and the reserve system has some responsibility (but, he might have added, only the faintest shadow of power), particularly when you take into account the public interest, the mutual savings bank depositors and the holders of insurance policies, as well as your fiduciary institutions generally. It is true that debtors would like to see interest rates vanish to a point where you would have no interest."

Interest rates are to be kept down and Government bond prices are to be supported, nevertheless, and the Federal Reserve Board will be tagged with the official responsibility. Wise enough men to extricate the country from the mess of money management under the New Deal and the danger inherent in the huge debt might be found if a halt to spending could be forced. Nobody will be wise enough to ward off the penalties that are certain to be exacted for the insane pursuit of pleasure in spending for its own sake that characterizes the Administration.

Electricity.

Peak loads in electric power production, formerly largely dependent upon manufacturers' use of power and consumption of electricity for home and business illumination are now responding to new factors as air conditioning, electric refrigeration and radio.

Power Output Rises To New High Peak

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Weekly production of electricity in the United States again soared to the highest figure in the records of the industry.

For the week ended August 21 output was 2,304,032,000 kilowatt hours, an advance of .1 of a per cent over the previous record figure of 2,300,547,000 in the preceding week, and a gain of 10 per cent over the 2,093,928,000 in the like week of last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

Cotton Reacts To Favorable Crop Reports

Moderate Advance Is Followed by Declines of 5 to 11 Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 25.—Early moderate advances in cotton today were followed by reactions on favorable weather and crop advices. December declined from 9.71 to 9.56 and closed at the low, with final prices 5 to 11 points net lower.

The market opened 4 to 9 points higher, practically at the highs for the day, on foreign and trade buying influenced by steady Liverpool cables. Offerings increased when the weekly weather report proved favorable for the Western belt as a result of general rains. The chief complaint from the East was of increased weevil activity. Southern offerings increased somewhat in the afternoon and slight partial recoveries were erased toward the close.

Trading was generally quiet as the market awaited a definite Federal cotton loan announcement. Restricted business extended to spot cotton and cotton goods.

July	10.10	9.85	9.85

Spot, steady; middling, 9.78.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil was easier today and at new low levels for the season under increased liquidation and hedge selling promoted by the easiness of lard and hogs and the decline in cotton. Final prices were 11 to 13 points net lower. Sales, 130 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; September closed 7.67; October, 7.65; December and January, 7.64; March, 7.68.

Curb Prices Dip In Narrow Range

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The curb market lumbered along on light volume today with fractional price shifts favoring the down side. Mining shares lifted a little. Utilities and oils wavered. Newmont Mining climbed 2 points to 103. Lake Shore Mines, Mesabi Iron and Pioneer Gold were fractionally improved.

Other gainers included American Gas & Electric at 33½, up ¼; International Petroleum at 35, up ½; and Sunray Oil at 4⅜, up a fraction.

Aluminum Co. slumped 3½ to 150. Down fractions to around a point were Electric Bond & Share, Cord Corporation, Creole Petroleum, United Wall Paper, Sherwin Williams, American Light & Traction and Cities Service. Transactions totaled 139,000 shares against 126,000 yesterday.

Harry Low Arrested On Charges by SEC

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Harry Low, former president of the Trenton Valley Distillers Corporation, Trenton, Mich., was arrested on a charge of violating the 1933 securities act today during a Securities Exchange Commission investigation of deals involving the concern's securities.

A warrant, which specifically charged Low with violating section 24 of the securities act, was served on Low by a United States marshal who took him into custody.

Large Issue Planned By Am. Water Works

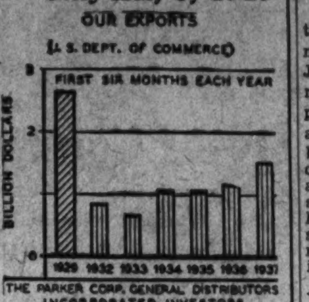

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Sale of $51,000,000 of new securities is planned by American Water Works & Electric Co. in its voluntary reorganization plan filed today with the Securities Commission in compliance with the utility holding company act of 1933.

Of these funds, needed to effect simplification of the company's capital structure, $40,000,000 would be raised through sale of a new issue of collateral trust bonds and the remaining $7,000,000 through sale of additional common stock, the company's offices stated here. Further details of the proposed offering were not made public.

Mt. Rainier State Loan Votes 26th Dividend

The State Loan Co. of Mount Rainier, at a meeting of the board yesterday, declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on preferred profit-sharing stock. This is the twenty-sixth consecutive dividend that has been declared.

U. S. Experts Trade Only Half of 1929

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—Our foreign trade is increasing but is still for below normal. Exports in the first half of this year exceeded the same 1936 months by 33 per cent, but were only a little more than half exports in the first six months of 1929. However, the balance of trade is rising heavily against us.

In previous quarters, dividends of 75 cents were paid.

United Elastic.

Dividend Omited.

Consolidated Biscuit Co., with plants at Mount Vernon and Chicago, Ill., and Louisville, Ky., omitted payment of the 15-cent quarterly common dividend due at this time. The last payment was on June 23.

Far East Conflict Lifts Tungsten Price

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Quotations for tungsten shot upward in metal markets here today on Sino-Japanese hostilities. China furnishes two-thirds of the world's supply of tungsten, and the trade feared a shortage if Chinese exports should be hampered. Tungsten is used chiefly in manufacture of light bulbs and in the steel trade, authorities said. United States manufacturers have adequate supplies to last for some time. A long tie-up of Chinese exports, however, might result in a shortage, it was said.

Tungsten ore, delivered in New York, was nominally quoted at $26 to $32 a short ton, against actual business at $24 a ton a week ago, the American Metal Market said.

Dried Fruits Steady.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 25 (AP).—(United States Department of Agriculture).—Very few wool buyers showed any interest in the market today. The few buyers making occasional bids used the dullness as a lever in an effort to secure wool at lower prices than they had recently been paying. The bulk of the scattered bids was on good French combing lengths, fine original territory wool at 95 cents, scoured basis and under. Some houses refused bids as high as 95 cents while others were willing to accept this price for limited quantities.

Oil Production Hits New Peak In Aug. 21 Week

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 25.—Ideal motoring weather and the summer holiday season combined to reduce total stocks of gasoline 1,827,000 barrels in the week ended August 21, the American Petroleum Institute reported today.

Together with the heavy draft on inventories, the institute reported a new record peak in daily average crude oil production of 3,729,350 barrels, an increase of 10,750 over the preceding week.

Production east of California increased 12,150 barrels, to 3,054,350. Refineries operated at 88.9 per cent of capacity and 3,415,000 barrels of crude daily were run to stills. This compared with operations of 83 per cent and runs to stills of 3,340,000 in the preceding week.

Stocks of finished and unfinished gasoline at refineries, terminals, in transit and pipe lines total 67,260,000 barrels at the end of the week, compared with 69,087,000 at the end of the previous week.

Crude and refined oil imports averaged 197,000 barrels daily, against 236,714 in the previous week.

Police Twice Tear Down Stone Walls as 10-Year-Olds Besiege Jersey City; Rocks Greet Those Who Dare Picket Line.

By the Associated Press.

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 25.—Barricades of rock arose on the streets today as 200 militant youngsters staged a sit-down strike for municipal playgrounds that confused police and barred passageway to motorists.

Within sight of United States Senator A. Harry Moore's house the young demonstrators blocked off a thoroughfare on both ends and paraded with signs proclaiming:

"We want playgrounds," "Why don't Senator Moore get us playgrounds," and "Sit-down strike."

Their siege behind the 2-foot wall met first the onslaught of a laundry truck whose driver swung up on the sidewalk in an effort to pass.

Twenty emergency and radio police rushed to the place and dispersed the embattled 10-year-olds without harm to either side. The officers then removed the barriers and departed.

Within 20 minutes a new wall, now 3 feet high, was raised. A motorist tried to pass, but his car was quickly stopped by swarming children.

A patrolman was assigned to guard the area tonight.

Quantico, Va., Aug. 25.—The Klemfuss Cup for the company with the highest average of rifle qualifications in the Fifth Battalion Fleet Marine Corps Reserve was won by Company B, First Lieut. James A. Hennessy commanding. This company consists of a first platoon based in Washington, and a second platoon at Indianhead, Md.

Second place went to Company A, Capt. John W. Augustine commanding. The Warburton Cup for officer's high rifle score went to Capt. Charles B. Nerren, of Company G. Second place ended in a tie between Capt. Ralph M. King and Capt. Augustine, of F and A companies, respectively.

The U. S. M. C. R. Cup for the highest rifle score for enlisted men was won by Sergt. H. F. Stille, of Company A, with second place to Gunnery Sergt. Robert T. Eicholtz, of Company C. The Chesterfield Cup for the highest rifle score, privates, was won by Private John A. Pergis, of Company D, with Private William C. Abell, of A, second.

In spite of almost incessant rain the health of the battalion is excellent. Yesterday it went through attack demonstration with the First Battalion Fleet Marine Force in a driving rainstorm.

The Fifth Battalion is scheduled to move out on a practice hike to the combat area at daybreak tomorrow, spend tomorrow night in pup tents and engage in attack maneuvers beginning early Friday morning. The final parade and review with presentations of awards will take place Saturday at 2 p. m. on Lyman Field, a concrete parade ground, due to the soggy condition of the old parade area.

Guest of honor Saturday will be Col. William P. Upshur, director of the Marine Corps Reserve, who will review the final parade and present the Col. Frank H. Edmonds general efficiency cup to the company with the greatest number of points in military competitions.

Included in Saturday's schedule will be a final formation in honor of Maj. Lewis B. Regan, inspector-instructor of the Fifth Battalion, who is to be detached following the current training period, and the presentation of the Haitian Brevet de Merite awarded by the President of Haiti to First Sergt. Fred Elton, enlisted instructor of the battalion, who served for ten years as a commissioned officer in the Gendarmerie d'Haiti.

Bob Burns Says—

Excitement depends a lot on what kind of a life you're use'ta living. I'll bet the people who have swum the English Channel didn't get as much thrill out of it as I did when I swam across the 30-foot swimming hole back home.

I was at a dinner down home one time given in honor of a big-game hunter who had just returned from Africa and he made quite a talk explaining that his very nature craved excitement. He said his very soul fed on dangerous thrills where one false move might mean sudden death. When he finished talking, my Cousin Purdie went up to him and shook hands and says, "Brother, I know exactly how you feel. I'm one of those devil-may-care fellas, myself. Many a time when it looked like rain, I have deliberately gone out without my umbrella."

shipping. Neutral observers believed its purpose primarily was to retaliate for destruction of Japanese property by Chinese shells and war planes.

Eyewitnesses of the landing of Japanese forces in central China said the invaders already had begun moving in on Shanghai from landing places at Liuho and other points on the Yangtze as well as at the Woosung forts, further inland toward the embattled city.

Identical movements, it was believed, were being carried out on the coast, east of Shanghai and south of the Yangtze estuary, bringing a column up from the rear to strike behind Pootung, rich industrial section across the Whangpoo River from the heart of Shanghai.

Thousands of other Japanese were known to be lying off the coast aboard transports awaiting an opportunity to land.

It became evident also that the defense lines in Chapei, Kiangwan and other fronts ringing the International Settlement of Shanghai were feeling the increased Japanese pressure.

Although there was no cessation of the hostilities that have rung in the ears of the city's millions for 14 days, nor any apparent wholesale evacuation, Chinese commanders admitted "certain positions" were abandoned "strategically."

The Chinese quit Chapei, on the north side of the International Settlement, and withdrew considerable forces from the vicinity of the North Station in the same sector.

Japanese pressed vigorously for a quick advantage, pounding the Chapei, Kiangwan and Pootung areas with combined naval and heavy artillery bombardments. Exploding shells from large-caliber guns repeatedly rocked the city.

It appeared likely the hostilities would spread to the thronged Nantao quarter, a native section on the southern edge of the French settlement, from which the Chinese continued a heavy shelling.

The Japanese warned they would disregard the enormous population unless the firing ceased.

They warned also that if Chinese troops attempted to retreat across the Whangpoo from Pootung into Nantao, Japanese forces would pursue them.

Natives in Panic.

The natives, aware of their peril, were thrown into panic. Thousands stormed past areas already aflame to seek refuge in the French area. Officials, there, however, barred the way because of the problem of caring for natives now being given sanctuary there.

The Japanese staged a night air raid on Nanking for the second successive night, creating terror in the capital. Chinese planes met the invaders in the vicinity of Chinkiang, a suburb, and drove them off.

In northern Hopei and Chahar provinces, where weeks of torrential rain gave way to clearing skies, Japan hurled the strength of her air bombers and heavy guns, partly freed from the rain and mud, to bolster attacks southward from Tientsin and northward against the Nankow Pass and Kalgan.

Chinese defenders, reports said, were holding their almost impregnable positions in historic Nankow Pass against two Japanese columns, one attacking directly from the south and the other attempting to skirt the Chinese in the rocky hills to the west.

(Despite previous reports from some Japanese sources claiming capture of Kalgan, about 100 miles north of Peiping where a Japanese army is marching south through Inner Mongolia, authentic Japanese military sources said only that occupation of Kalgan is "imminent.")

Hundreds of Japenese sacrificed their lives in the mass effort to land troops in the Shanghai area and for many hours yesterday the Chinese kept them from gaining a foothold.

Troops Plunge Ashore.

Thousands of troops kept pouring over the sides of Japanese transports, particularly near the Woosung forts north of the city where the Yangtze and Whangpoo meet.

Some succeeded in establishing positions ashore. Others plunged hadlong into snares the Chinese had set for them and suffered fearful losses.

One Japanese force was almost annihilated in a Chinese trap when, after advancing over what seemed to be abandoned second defense lines, they found themselves caught between suddenly exploded hidden mines and a wall of machine-gun fire from secret nests.

The Chinese, however, admitted defense of the waterway also had cost them heavily, and they were reported to have retreated from many river positions.

The operation shifted the brunt of the war from Shanghai to the coastal area north and east of it. Apparently in retaliation for the setbacks to its army, the Japanese fleet roved the Yantze, demolishing Chinese villages.

Foreign observers estimated the two weeks of conflict in the Shanghai area had taken a toll of more than 100,000 killed and wounded and had cost at least $125,000,0000 in destruction.

Menacing fires still were unchecked in three sections of the city, in the east, north and south, where densely settled Nantoa was burning most fiercely.

Hongkew's vast industrial area was reduced to ashes. Fires were devastating Pootung a half-mile below the Dollar Line wharves, and Chapei, which has a normal population of 1,000,000 Chinese.

Japanese Field Headquarters, Lianghsiang, Aug 25 (AP).—Japanese strategists tonight admitted they were worried about Chinese resistance in North China as their offensive remained without decisive result.

Heavy weather considerably reduced effectiveness of the Japanese mechanized forces south of Peiping, while Chinese menaced their foe in a 20-mile gap between columns at Mentokow and Nankow, west and northwest of Peiping.

Photographers Wear 'Tin Hats' For Shanghai Action Pictures

Associated Press 'Foreign Legion' Under Fire Daily With Both Armies; Gets Shots of Bombing While Debris Falls.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Aug. 25.—A steel-helmeted Associated Press "foreign legion" is fighting the Shanghai war with speed cameras and flash bulbs instead of guns and grenades.

Day and night a corps of Associated Press photographers of a half-dozen nationalities is under fire in Chinese and Japanese lines and in flame and shell-scarred Shanghai. The "foreign legion" includes American, British, Russian, Chinese, Japanese and Turkish cameramen.

On two occasions they wore bullet-proof vests and crawled into skirmish zones.

The field staff sends hundreds of plates daily to the Shanghai bureau office. The developing and printing staff works under high tension to speed pictures to America by every possible means.

At the office, the biggest complaint is lack of ice or really cold water. This has caused much trouble in handling films because of present high temperatures.

When a Chinese bomb wrecked the Cathay and Palace Hotels in Nanking road, Associated Press cameramen were there before the debris stopped falling. One of the staff was coming back from an assignment when the bombs crashed downward.

His snutter was clicking while the dead and dying lay untouched and smoke and debris filled the air. His pictures already are in America. They will reach Europe in a matter of hours.

After the "bloody Saturday" bombing of Frenchtown, the Associated Press "foreign legion" reached the spot as Chinese planes were speeding away.

When a heavy projectile crashed into the department store section, an Associated Press photographer was just a block away. Jarred by the blast, he sprinted to the scene and caught "moment after" shots.

In North China a similar staff is recording Japanese and Chinese troops in battle. A courier using nearly every means of transportation crossed through Japanese and Chinese lines to rush a recent consignment of North China pictures to Shanghai.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. Then pains may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Japan Pledges To Safeguard Foreign Rights

Security of Ships From Blockade Promised by Hirota.

By the United Press.

Tokyo (Thursday), Aug. 26.—Japan's harried foreign minister, Koki Hirota, strove desperately today to convince angry foreign diplomats that the Japanese navy's blockade of the China coast against Chinese shipping will not interfere with foreign rights in China.

Hirota sent officials to the United States, British, French and other embassies to announce the blockade and assure the representatives of the powers that foreign ships will not be interfered with.

He was believed to be particularly concerned about the attitude of Great Britain, which already has lost more than $150,000,000 of her billion-dollar investments in Shanghai.

Hirota told the foreign diplomats that the foreign office hopes soon to issue a communique to reassure world opinion with regard to the blockade.

He reiterated that "a state of war does not exist between Japan and China" and indicated that no formal declaration of war is expected by Japan.

The diplomats, for their part, emphasized the need of a statement by the Japanese government to clarify the whole situation, especially with regard to the naval blockade.

Washington Missionary Nurse Flees Remote Chinese Station

'Prepared for Anything,' Miss Dizney Reveals in Letter to Sister.

Miss Helen Dizney, a Washington nurse, is leaving Techow, in wartorn Shantung Province, for the Coast, a United Press dispatch said last night.

With Miss Dizney are two other American medical missionaries, Dr. Alma Cooke, of Oakland, Calif., and Lucia Lyons, of Detroit. All had announced their intention to remain at their posts despite the danger, but were forced to leave when John M. Allison, consul at Tsinanfu, Shantung Province capital, told them the American consulate there would be closed.

Allison said he planned to leave Tsingtao, Shantung Province port, aboard the U. S. S. Isabel September 4.

In a letter received here only a few days ago Miss Dizney wrote she was "prepared for whatever happens," her sister, Margaret E. Dizney, said last night.

According to Miss Dizney's sister, who is a public health service nurse for the American Red Cross here, the missionary nurse had been on duty in China for 17 years. A native of Kentucky, she went to the Orient immediately after graduation from a nursing school at Oak Park, Ill.

She spent a vacation in Washington last year and spoke at that time at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

She was doing hospital duty in Techow, where she had been for four years. Part of her work consisted of training young Chinese girls to become nurses.

Margaret Dizney revealed she had heard from her sister during the last month. In one letter, Miss Dizney said troops were forming between their remote post and Tientsin.

Miss Dizney's father, E. Franklin Dizney, also lives at 1819 G street northwest.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 25 (AP).—Jimmie Mattern, Texas flier, abandoned the search for his friend, Sigismund Levanevsky and five other Soviet fliers missing in the Arctic tonight.

"We have done everything possible," said Mattern.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 25 (AP).—Arctic twilight caused airmen on both sides of the Pole to speed their widening search for six missing Soviet fliers today.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, British explorer, and four companions were believed far over the ice pack, having taken off from Coppermine, northwest territory of Canada, last night.

Washington Man Escapes Shanghai

Leland G. True, son of Mrs. T. T. Houston, 713 Nineteenth street northwest, was among the 100 Americans who fled Shanghai Tuesday on the President Pierce, it was learned yesterday. True had been in Shanghai a little more than a year.

An engine expert for the United Aircraft Export Corporation, True is a graduate of Maryland University and McKinley Technical High Schools.

During the World War he served as quartermaster with the rank of captain at Mitchell Field Long Island, and later was acting adjutant in Detroit.

Mrs. Houston said yesterday the last letter from her son was dated July 15. At that time, True wrote, the war was far removed from Shanghai.

Plans to Defend Shanghai Sped By Americans

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Aug. 25.—United States authorities today perfected plans for the defense of Americans in Shanghai and, "if the worst comes," for their complete evacuation.

Twenty-five hundred Americans remain here, of whom 700 are women.

Further evacuations are planned, but for those who will stay behind a scheme has been drawn up for concentration at one spot in event of emergency and possible evacuation of all aboard United States men o' war.

Consul General Clarence Gauss and an emergency committee of United States citizens worked together on defense plans.

Reinforced Japanese troops were expected momentarily to launch a drive to expel the Chinese from Shanghai, and foreigners were speeding efforts to strengthen defenses.

If the Japanese push from Woosung, at the mouth of the Whangpoo River, through northern Shanghai, northern borders of the International Settlement will be subjected to terrific pressure by Chinese armies, which American and other foreign defense forces will be called upon to repel.

Authorities saw no hope of immediate peace here. They said efforts of diplomats to establish a neutral zone appear unacceptable to both sides.

Grave international problems are predicted by some for the next phase of the war, with the possibility of Japanese taking over customs and other governmental activity in Shanghai.
